TO B

Alone the country life—how sweet!
But wood and meadow heath and hill,
The dewy morn, the noonday heat
The nest half hid the poppied wheat,
The peaty purling rill
The brake fern's odorous retreat
The hush of eve serene discreet
With you are sweeter still

And this shall be for music when no one else is near
The fine song for singing the rare song to hear!
That only I remember that only you admire
Of the broad road that stretches and the roadside fire

R. L. Stevenson

ARGUMENT

THIS little book aims at nothing but providing companionship on the road for city-dwellers who make holiday It has no claims to completeness of any kind it is just a garland of good or enkindling poetry and prose fitted to urge folk into the open air, and, once there, to keep them glad they came—to slip easily from the pocket beneath a tree or among the heather, and provide lazy reading for the time of rest with perhaps a phrase or two for the feet to step to and the mind to brood on when the rest is over

E V L.

April 1899.

And hark! how blithe the Throstle sings!
He too is no mean preacher
Come forth into the light of things,
Let Nature be your teacher

She has a world of ready wealth
Our minds and hearts to bless—
Spontaneous wisdom breathed by health,
Truth breathed by cheerfulness

One impulse from a vernal wood
May teach you more of man,
Of moral evil and of good
Than all the sages can.

Sweet is the lore which Nature brings;
Our meddling intellect
Mishapes the beauteous form of things:
We murder to dissect.

Enough of Science and of Art
Close up these barren leaves
Come forth, and bring with you a heart
That watches and receives.

William Wordsworth

THE FAREWELL TO WINTER AND THE TOWN

Come spur away,
I have no patience for a longer stay
But must go down
And leave the chargeable noise of this great town
I will the country see

Thomas Randolph

Oh day if I squander a wavelet of thee
A mite of my twelve hours treasure
The least of thy gaze or glances
The shame fall on Asolo mischief on me!
Thy long blue solemn hours serenely flowing
Whence earth we feel gets steady help and good—
Thy fitful sunshine minutes coming going
As if earth turned from work in gamesome mood
All shall be mine!

Robert Browning (Pippa Passes)

O the gleesome saunter over fields and hillsides!
The leaves and flowers of the commonest weeds the moist fresh stillness of the woods
The exquisite smell of the earth at daybreak and all through the forenoon

Walt Whitman

I wish people would come into the country on May Day and fix in town the first of November

Horace Walpole

The Meadows in Spring

'TIS a dull sight
To see the year dying,
When winter winds
Set the yellow wood sighing
Sighing oh! sighing

When such a time cometh
I do retire
Into an old room
Beside a bright fire
Oh, pile a bright fire!

And there I sit
Reading old things,
Of knights and lorn damsels,
While the wind sings—
Oh drearily sings!

I never look out
Nor attend to the blast;

For all to be seen
 Is the leaves falling fast
 Falling, falling!

But close at the hearth,
 Like a cricket, sit I
Reading of summer
 And chivalry—
 Gallant chivalry!

Then with an old friend
 I talk of our youth—
How 'twas gladsome, but often Foolish forsooth
 But gladsome gladsome!

Or to get merry
 We sing some old rhyme
That made the wood ring again
 In summer time—
 Sweet summer time!

Then go we to smoking,
 Silent and snug
Nought passes between us,
 Save a brown jug—
 Sometimes!

And sometimes a tear
 Will rise in each eye,

Seeing the two old friends
So merrily—
So merrily!

And ere to bed
Go we, go we Down on the ashes
We kneel on the knee
Praying together!

Thus, then, live I,
Till, mid all the gloom
By heaven! the bold sun
Is with me in the room
Shining, shining!

Then the clouds part,
Swallows soaring between
The spring is alive
And the meadows are green!

I jump up like mad,
Break the old pipe in twain
And away to the meadows,
The meadows again!

Edward FitzGerald

YONDER in the heather there's a bed for sleeping,
Drink for one athirst, ripe blackberries to eat
Yonder in the sun the merry hares go leaping
And the pool is clear for travel wearied feet

Sorely throb my feet, a tramping London highways, (Ah! the springy moss upon a northern moor!)
Through the endless streets, the gloomy squares and byways,
Homeless in the City, poor among the poor!

London streets are gold—ah give me leaves a glinting
'Midst grey dykes and hedges in the autumn sun!
London water's wine, poured out for all unstinting—
God! For the little brooks that tumble as they run!

Oh my heart is fain to hear the soft wind blowing,
Soughing through the fir tops up on northern fells!
Oh my eye's an ache to see the brown burns flowing
Through the peaty soil and tinkling heather bells.

Ada Smith

Wander Thirst

BEYOND the East the sunrise, beyond the West the sea,
And East and West the wander thirst that will not let me be
It works in me like madness, dear to bid me say good bye
For the seas call and the stars call, and oh! the call of the sky!

I know not where the white road runs, nor what the blue hills are,
But a man can have the Sun for friend and for his guide a star
And there's no end of voyaging when once the voice is heard,
For the river calls and the road calls and oh! the call of a bird!

Yonder the long horizon lies, and there by night and day
The old ships draw to home again, the young ships sail away
And come I may, but go I must, and if men ask you why,
You may put the blame on the stars and the Sun and the white road and the sky!

Gerald Gould

The Lake Isle of Innisfree

I WILL arise and go now, and go to Innisfree,
And a small cabin build there, of clay and wattles made
Nine bean rows will I have there, a hive for the honey bee
And live alone in the bee loud glade

And I shall have some peace there, for peace comes dropping slow,
Dropping from the veils of the morning to where the cricket sings
There midnight's all a glimmer and noon a purple glow,
And evening full of the linnet's wings

I will arise and go now, for always, night and day,
I hear lake water lapping with low sounds by the shore
While I stand on the roadway or on the pavements gray,
I hear it in the deep heart's core

W B Yeats

BEST and brightest, come away,—
Fairer far than this fair Day,
Which, like thee, to those in sorrow
Comes to bid a sweet good morrow
To the rough year just awake
In its cradle on the brake
The brightest hour of unborn Spring
Through the winter wandering,
Found it seems, the halcyon morn
To hoar February born
Bending, from Heaven in azure mirth
It kissed the forehead of the earth,
And smiled upon the silent sea,
And bade the frozen streams be free
And waked to music all their fountains,
And breathed upon the frozen mountains
And like a prophetess of May
Strewed flowers upon the barren way,
Making the wintry world appear
Like one on whom thou smilest, dear

Away, away, from men and towns,
To the wild wood and the downs—
To the silent wilderness
Where the soul need not repress
Its music, lest it should not find
An echo in another's mind,

While the touch of Nature's art
Harmonizes heart to heart

Radiant Sister of the Day
Awake! arise! and come away!
To the wild woods and the plains,
To the pools where winter rains
Image all their roof of leaves,
Where the pine its garland weaves
Of sapless green, and ivy dun,
Round stems that never kiss the sun
Where the lawns and pastures be
And the sandhills of the sea,
Where the melting hoar frost wets
The daisy star that never sets,
And wind flowers and violets
Which yet join not scent to hue
Crown the pale year weak and new,
When the night is left behind
In the deep east, dim and blind,
And the blue noon is over us,
And the multitudinous
Billows murmur at our feet,
Where the earth and ocean meet,
And all things seem only one
In the universal Sun

Percy Bysshe Shelley

The Early Morning

THE Moon on the one hand, the Dawn on the other
The Moon is my sister, the Dawn is my brother
The Moon on my left and the Dawn on my right
My Brother, good morning my Sister good night

Hilaire Belloc

Mrs Stuart's Retirement

FROM the Court to the Cottage convey me away!
For I'm weary of grandeur, and what they call "gay
Where Pride without measure
And Pomp without pleasure,
Make life in a circle of hurry, decay

Far remote and retired from the noise of the Town,
I'll exchange my brocade for a plain russet gown!
My friends shall be few,
But well chosen and true
And sweet recreation our evening shall crown!

With a rural repast, a rich banquet to me,
On a mossy green bank, near some shady old tree,
The river's clear brink
Shall afford me my drink,
And Temp'rance my friendly Physician shall be!

Ever calm and serene with contentment still blest,
Not too giddy with joy or with sorrow deprest
I'll neither invoke
Nor repine at, Death s stroke !
But retire from the world, as I would to my rest

Henry Carey

THE ROAD

In its widest sense the open road is the sign and symbol of all outdoor life of all holiday making in which the sense of the athlete is awakened —in a word of all that is active and adventurous from sailing and rowing to cliff climbing and moorland tramping But fascinating as these are, there is a something even more fascinating in the thought of the open road when we narrow the meaning and confine it to the paths trod by the feet of men and horses and cut by their wheels—restrict it that is to those nerves and sinews of the soil which bind village to village city to city and land to land Think of all the many and diverse tracks which, once landed at Calais if only you keep going eastward will take you to Moscow or Tobol k westward to Lisbon or Madrid and southward to Rome What is more intellectually exhilarating to the mind and even to the senses than to stand looking down the vista of some great road in France or Italy or up a long and well worn horse track in Asia or Africa a path which has not yet been trod by the foot or the wheel of the gazing wayfarer or by the hoof of his horse and to wonder through what strange places by what towns and castles, by what rivers and streams by what mountains and valleys it will take him ere he reaches his destination?

The Spectator

Jog on jog on the foot pathway,
And merrily hent the stile a
Your merry heart goes all the day
Your sad heart tires in a mile a

Shakespeare

I am told there are people who do not care for maps and find it hard to believe The names the shapes of the woodlands, the courses of the roads and rivers, the prehistoric footsteps of man still distinctly traceable up hill and down dale the mills and the ruins the ponds and the ferries, perhaps the Standing Stone or the Druidic Circle on the heath here is an inexhaustible fund of interest for any man with eyes to see or twopence worth of imagination to understand with!

Titania's Courtesy to the Wayfarer

TITANIA Peas blossom! Cobweb! Moth! and Mustard seed!

(Enter four Fairies)

First Fairy Ready

Second Fairy And I

Third Fairy And I

Fourth Fairy Where shall we go?

Titania Be kind and courteous to this gentleman
Hop in his walks and gambol in his eyes,
Feed him with apricocks and dewberries
With purple grapes, green figs and mulberries
The honey bags steal from the humble bees
And, for night tapers crop their waxen thighs,
And light them at the fiery glow worm's eyes,
To have my love to bed, and to arise
And pluck the wings from painted butterflies,
To fan the moonbeams from his sleeping eyes
Nod to him, elves, and do him courtesies

The Vagabond

(To an air of Schubert)

GIVE to me the life I love
Let the lave go by me,
Give the jolly heaven above
And the byway nigh me
Bed in the bush with stars to see
Bread I dip in the river—
There's the life for a man like me
There's the life for ever

Let the blow fall soon or late
Let what will be o'er me
Give the face of earth around
And the road before me
Wealth I seek not, hope nor love
Nor a friend to know me
All I seek, the heaven above
And the road below me

Or let autumn fall on me
Where afield I linger,
Silencing the bird on tree,
Biting the blue finger
White as meal the frosty field—
Warm the fireside haven—
Not to autumn will I yield
Not to winter even!

Let the blow fall soon or late,
Let what will be o'er me
Give the face of earth around,
And the road before me
Wealth I ask not hope nor love
Nor a friend to know me
All I ask the heaven above
And the road below me

Robert Louis Stevenson

The White Road up Athirt the Hill

WHEN high hot zuns da strik right down
An burn our zweaty frizen brown
An zunny hangèns that be nigh
Be back'd by hills so blue s the sky
Then while the bells da sweetly cheem
Upon the champèn high neck'd team
How lively, wi' a friend, da seem
The white road up athirt the hill

The zwellèn downs, wi' chăky tracks,
A climmèn up ther zunny backs,
Da hide green meads, an' zedgy brooks
An clumps o trees wi' glossy rooks,
An' hearty vo'ke to lafe and zing,
An' churches wi ther bells to ring
In parishes al in a string
Wi white roads up athirt the hills

At feast, when uncle's vo'ke da come
To spend the da wi' we at huome,
An we da put upon the buard
The best of al we can avvuord,
The wolden oons da ta'ke an' smoke
An' younger oons da play an joke,
An' in the evemen all our vo'ke
Da bring 'em gwáin athirt the hill

Var then the green da zwarm wi wold
An' young so thick as sheep in vuold
The billis in the blacksmith's shop
An mēsh green waterwheel da stop
An' luonesome in the wheelwright's shed
While zwarms o comen friends da tread
The white road down athirt the hill

An' when the winden road so white
A clummèn up the hill in zight,
Da lead to pliazen, east ar west
The vust a know'd an lov'd the best,
How touchèn in the zunsheen's glow
Ar in the shiades that clouds da drow
Upon the zunburn d down below, s the white road up athirt the hill

What pirty hollers now the long
White roads da windy roun' among,
Wi' diary cows in woody nooks,
An' hâymiakers among their pooks,

An housen that the trees da screen
Vrom zun an' zight by boughs o' green,
Young blushèn beauty s huomes between
The white roads up athirt the hills

William Barnes

The Joys of the Road

NOW the joys of the road are chiefly these
A crimson touch on the hard wood trees

A vagrant's morning wide and blue,
In early fall when the wind walks, too

A shadowy highway cool and brown,
Alluring up and enticing down

From rippled water to dappled swamp
From purple glory to scarlet pomp

The outward eye, the quiet will,
And the striding heart from hill to hill

The tempter apple over the fence
The cobweb bloom on the yellow quince,

The palish asters along the wood,—
A lyric touch of the solitude

An open hand, an easy shoe,
And a hope to make the day go through —

Another to sleep with, and a third
To wake me up at the voice of a bird

The resonant far listening morn,
And the hoarse whisper of the corn,

The crickets mourning their comrades lost
In the night's retreat from the gathering frost

(Or is it their slogan, plaintive and shrill
As they beat on their corselets valiant still?)

A hunger fit for the kings of the sea,
And a loaf of bread for Dickon and me

A thirst like that of the Thirsty Sword,
And a jug of cider on the board

An idle noon, a bubbling spring
The sea in the pine tops murmuring

A scrap of gossip at the ferry
A comrade neither glum nor merry,

Asking nothing revealing naught,
But minting his words from a fund of thought,

A keeper of silence eloquent,
Needy, yet royally well content,

Of the mettled breed, yet abhorring strife,
And full of the mellow juice of life,

A taster of wine, with an eye for a maid
Never too bold and never afraid,

Never heart whole never heart sick,
(These are the things I worship in Dick)

No fidget and no reformer, just
A calm observer of ought and must,

A lover of books but a reader of man,
No cynic and no charlatan,

Who never defers and never demands,
But smiling, takes the world in his hands —

Seeing it good as when God first saw
And gave it the weight of His will for law

And O the joy that is never won
But follows and follows the journeying sun,

By marsh and tide, by meadow and stream,
A will o' the wind a light o' dream

Delusion afar delight anear,
From morrow to morrow, from year to year

A jack-o lantern, a fairy fire,
A dare, a bliss and a desire!

The racy smell of the forest loam,
When the stealthy sad heart leaves go home;

(O leaves O leaves I am one with you
Of the mould and the sun and the wind and the dew!)

The broad gold wake of the afternoon
The silent fleck of the cold new moon,

The sound of the hollow sea's release
From stormy tumult to starry peace

With only another league to wend
And two brown arms at the journey's end!

These are the joys of the open road—
For him who travels without a load

Four Solaces

I The Meadow at Noon

HERE fling thyself down on the grassy meadow, O traveller, and rest thy relaxed limbs from painful weariness since here also, as thou listenest to the cicalas' tune the stone pine trembling in the wafts of west wind will lull thee, and the shepherd on the mountains piping at noon nigh the spring under a copse of leafy plane so escaping the ardours of the autumnal dogstar thou wilt cross the height to morrow, trust this good counsel that Pan gives thee

Author unknown

II The Roadside Pool

DRINK not here, traveller, from this warm pool in the brook, full of mud stirred by the sheep at pasture but go a very little way over the ridge where the heifers are grazing for there by yonder pastoral stone pine thou wilt find bubbling through the fountained rock a spring colder than northern snow

Leonidas of Tarentum

III The Orchard Corner

I, HERMES, stand here by the windy orchard in the cross ways nigh the grey sea shore, giving rest on the way to wearied men, and the fountain wells forth cold stainless water

Anyte

IV Hermes of the Ways

GO and rest your limbs here for a little under the juniper, O wayfarers by Hermes Guardian of the Way, not in crowds, but those of you whose knees are tired with heavy toil and thirst after traversing a long road for there a breeze and a shady seat and the fountain under the rock will lull your toil wearied limbs, and having so escaped the midday breath of the autumnal dogstar, as is right, honour Hermes of the Ways.

(J W Mackail's translation)

Auvergnat

THERE was a man was half a clown
(It's so, my father tells of it)
He saw the church in Clermont Town,
And laughed to hear the bells of it

He laughed to hear the bells that ring
In Clermont Church and round of it
He heard the verger's daughter sing
And loved her for the sound of it

The verger's daughter said him nay
(She had the right of choice in it)
He left the town at break of day
(He hadn't had a voice in it)

The road went up, the road went down,
And there the matter ended it
He broke his heart in Clermont Town
At Pontgibaud they mended it

Song of the Open Road

I

A FOOT and light hearted I take to the open road, Healthy free, the world before me
The long brown path before me leading wherever I choose

Henceforth I ask not good fortune, I myself am good fortune
Henceforth I whimper no more, postpone no more need nothing,
Done with indoor complaints libraries, querulous criticisms,
Strong and content I travel the open road

The earth that is sufficient,
I do not want the constellations any nearer,
I know they are very well where they are,
I know they suffice for those who belong to them

(Still here I carry my old delicious burdens,
I carry them men and women, I carry them with me wherever I go,
I swear it is impossible for me to get rid of them
I am fill'd with them and I will fill them in return)

You road I enter upon and look around, I believe you are not all that is here,
I believe that much unseen is also here

Here the profound lesson of reception, nor preference nor denial,
The black with his woolly head, the felon, the diseas d the illiterate person, are not denied ,
The birth, the hasting after the physician the beggar s tramp, the drunkard s stagger, the laughing party of mechanics,

The escaped youth the rich person's carriage, the fop, the eloping couple,
The early market man, the hearse, the moving of furniture into the town, the return back from the town,
They pass, I also pass, any thing passes, none can be interdicted
None but are accepted none but shall be dear to me

You air that serves me with breath to speak!
You objects that call from diffusion my meanings and give them shape!
You light that wraps me and all things in delicate equable showers!
You paths worn in the irregular hollows by the roadsides!
I believe you are latent with unseen existences, you are so dear to me

You flagg'd walks of the cities! you strong curbs at the edges!
You ferries! you planks and posts of wharves! you timber lined sides! you distant ships!
You rows of houses! you window pierc'd façades! you roofs!
You porches and entrances! you copings and iron guards!

You windows whose transparent shells might expose so much!

You doors and ascending steps! you arches!

You grey stones of interminable pavements! you trodden crossings!

From all that has touch'd you I believe you have imparted to yourselves and now would impart the same secretly to me

From the living and the dead you have peopled your impassive surfaces, and the spirits thereof would be evident and amicable with me

The earth expanding right hand and left hand,

The picture alive, every part in its best light,

The music falling in where it is wanted, and stopping where it is not wanted,

The cheerful voice of the public road the gay fresh sentiment of the road

O highway I travel, do you say to me Do not leave me?

Do you say Venture not—if you leave me you are lost?

Do you say I am already prepared, I am well beaten and undenied, adhere to me?

O public road, I say back I am not afraid to leave you, yet I love you,

You express me better than I can express myself

You shall be more to me than my poem

I think heroic deeds were all conceiv'd in the open air, and all free poems also
I think I could stop here myself and do miracles,
I think whatever I shall meet on the road I shall like, and whoever beholds me shall like me,
I think whoever I see must be happy

From this hour I ordain myself loos'd of limits and imaginary lines
Going where I list, my own master total and absolute Listening to others considering well what they say,
Pausing, searching, receiving, contemplating,
Gently, but with undeniable will divesting myself of the holds that would hold me

I inhale great draughts of space,
The east and the west are mine, and the north and the south are mine

I am larger better than I thought,
I did not know I held so much goodness

All seems beautiful to me,
I can repeat over to men and women You have done such good to me I would do the same to you,
I will recruit for myself and you as I go,
I will scatter myself among men and women as I go,

I will toss a new gladness and roughness among them,
Whoever denies me it shall not trouble me
Whoever accepts me he or she shall be blessed and shall bless me

Now if a thousand perfect men were to appear it would not amaze me,
Now if a thousand beautiful forms of women appear'd it would not astonish me
Now I see the secret of the making of the best persons
It is to grow in the open air and to eat and sleep with the earth

Here a great personal deed has room,
(Such a deed seizes upon the hearts of the whole race of men,
Its effusion of strength and will overwhelms laws and mocks all authority and all argument against it)

Here is the test of wisdom
Wisdom is not finally tested in schools,
Wisdom cannot be pass'd from one having it to another not having it,
Wisdom is of the soul, is not susceptible of proof, is its own proof,
Applies to all stages and objects and qualities and is content,

Is the certainty of the reality and immortality of things, and the excellence of things,
Something there is in the float of the sight of things that provokes it out of the soul

Now I re examine philosophies and religions
They may prove well in lecture-rooms yet not prove at all under the spacious clouds and along the landscape and flowing currents

Here is realisation
Here is a man tallied—he realises here what he has in him;
The past, the future, majesty, love—if they are vacant of you, you are vacant of them

Only the kernel of every object nourishes
Where is he who tears off the husks for you and me?
Where is he that undoes stratagems and envelopes for you and me?

Here is adhesiveness, it is not previously fashioned, it is apropos
Do you know what it is as you pass to be loved by strangers?
Do you know the talk of those turning eye balls?

Here is the efflux of the soul,
The efflux of the soul comes from within through embower'd gates, ever provoking questions,

These yearnings, why are they? these thoughts in the darkness, why are they?

Why are there men and women that while they are nigh me the sunlight expands my blood?

Why when they leave me do my pennants of joy sink flat and lank?

Why are there trees I never walk under but large and melodious thoughts descend upon me?

(I think they hang there winter and summer on those trees and always drop fruit as I pass.)

What is it I interchange so suddenly with strangers?

What with some driver as I ride on the seat by his side?

What with some fisherman drawing his seine by the shore as I walk by and pause?

What gives me to be free to a woman's and man's good will? what gives them to be free to mine?

The efflux of the soul is happiness here is happiness,
I think it pervades the open air, waiting at all times,
Now it flows unto us we are rightly charged

Here rises the fluid and attaching character,
The fluid and attaching character is the freshness and sweetness of man and woman

(The herbs of the morning sprout no fresher and sweeter every day out of the roots of themselves, than it sprouts fresh and sweet continually out of itself)

Toward the fluid and attaching character exudes the sweat of the love of young and old,
From it falls distilled the charm that mocks beauty and attainments Toward it heaves the shuddering longing ache of contact

Allons! Whoever you are, come travel with me!
Travelling with me you find what never tires.

The earth never tires
The earth is rude silent incomprehensible at first Nature is rude and incomprehensible at first,
Be not discouraged, keep on, there are divine things well enveloped,
I swear to you there are divine things more beautiful than words can tell

Allons! we must not stop here
However sweet these laid up stores, however convenient this dwelling we cannot remain here,
However sheltered this port and however calm these waters, we must not anchor here,
However welcome the hospitality that surrounds us, we are permitted to receive it but a little while

10

Allons! the inducements shall be greater,
We will sail pathless and wild seas,
We will go where winds blow, waves dash, and the Yankee clipper speeds by under full sail

Allons ! with power, liberty, the earth, the elements,
Health, defiance, gaiety, self esteem curiosity
Allons ! from all formules !
From your formules, O bat eyed and materialistic priests

The stale cadaver blocks up the passage—the burial waits no longer

Allons yet take warning !
He travelling with me needs the best blood thews, endurance,
None may come to the trial till he or she bring courage and health
Come not here if you have already spent the best of yourself
Only those may come who come in sweet and determin'd bodies
No diseas'd person, no rum drinker or venereal taint is permitted here
(I and mine do not convince by arguments, similes, rhymes,
We convince by our presence)

II

Listen ! I will be honest with you
I do not offer the old smooth prizes, but offer rough new prizes,
These are the days that must happen to you

You shall not heap up what is call'd riches,
You shall scatter with lavish hand all that you earn or achieve,
You but arrive at the city to which you were destin'd, you hardly settle yourself to satisfaction before you are call'd by an irresistible call to depart
You shall be treated to the ironical smiles and mockings of those who remain behind you,
What beckonings of love you receive you shall only answer with passionate kisses of parting,
You shall not allow the hold of those who spread their reach'd hands toward you

12

Allons! after the great Companions, and to belong to them!
They too are on the road—they are the swift and majestic men—they are the greatest women,
Enjoyers of calms of seas and storms of seas,
Sailors of many a ship, walkers of many a mile of land,
Habitués of many distant countries habitués of far distant dwellings,
Trusters of men and women, observers of cities, solitary toilers,
Pausers and contemplators of tufts, blossoms shells of the shore
Dancers at wedding dances, kissers of brides, tender helpers of children, bearers of children,

Soldiers of revolts, standers by gaping graves, lowerers down of coffins,

Journeyers over consecutive seasons, over the years, the curious years each emerging from that which preceded it,

Journeyers as with companions, namely their own diverse phases

Forth steppers from the latent unrealised baby days,

Journeyers gaily with their own youth, journeyers with their bearded and well grain'd manhood,

Journeyers with their womanhood, ample unsurpassed, content,

Journeyers with their own sublime old age of manhood or womanhood

Old age, calm expanded, broad with the haughty breadth of the universe,

Old age flowing free with the delicious near by freedom of death

Allons! to that which is endless as it was beginningless,

To undergo much, tramps of days, rests of nights,

To merge all in the travel they tend to, and the days and nights they tend to

Again to merge them in the start of superior journeys,

To see nothing anywhere but what you may reach it and pass it,

To conceive no time, however distant but what you may reach it and pass it,

To look up or down no road but it stretches and waits for you, however long but it stretches and waits for you,

To see no being not God's or any, but you also go thither

To see no possession but you may possess it enjoying all without labour or purchase abstracting the feast yet not abstracting one particle of it

To take the best of the farmer's farm and the rich man's elegant villa, and the chaste blessings of the well married couple and the fruits of orchards and flowers of gardens

To take to your use out of the compact cities as you pass through

To carry buildings and streets with you afterward wherever you go,

To gather the minds of men out of their brains as you encounter them, to gather the love out of their hearts,

To take your lovers on the road with you, for all that you leave them behind you

To know the universe itself as a road, as many roads, as roads for travelling souls

All parts away for the progress of souls,

All religion, all solid things, arts, governments—all that was or is apparent upon this globe or any globe, falls into niches and corners before the procession of souls along the grand roads of the universe

Of the progress of the souls of men and women along the grand roads of the universe, all other progress is the needed emblem and sustenance

Forever alive, forever forward,
Stately, solemn, sad, withdrawn, baffled, mad turbulent, feeble, dissatisfied,
Desperate, proud, fond, sick, accepted by men, rejected by men,
They go! they go! I know that they go, but I know not where they go,
But I know that they go toward the best—toward something great

Whoever you are, come forth! or man or woman, come forth!
You must not stay sleeping and dallying there in the house, though you built it, or though it has been built for you

Out of the dark confinement! out from behind the screen!
It is useless to protest, I know all and expose it

Behold through you as bad as the rest,
Through the laughter, dancing, dining, supping, of people,
Inside of dresses and ornaments, inside of those wash'd and trimm'd faces,
Behold a secret silent loathing and despair

No husband, no wife, no friend, trusted to hear the confession,
Another self, a duplicate of every one, skulking and hiding it goes,
Formless and wordless through the streets of the cities, polite and bland in the parlours,
In the cars of railroads, in steamboats, in the public assembly,
Home to the houses of men and women, at the table, in the bed room, everywhere,
Smartly attired, countenance smiling, form upright, death under the breast bones, hell under the skull bones,
Under the broadcloth and gloves under the ribbons and artificial flowers,
Keeping fair with the customs speaking not a syllable of itself
Speaking of any thing else but never of itself

Allons! through struggles and wars!
The goal that was named cannot be countermanded

Have the past struggles succeeded?
What has succeeded? yourself? your nation? Nature?
Now understand me well—it is provided in the essence of things that from any fruition of success, no matter what, shall come forth something to make a greater struggle necessary

My call is the call of battle, I nourish active rebellion,
He going with me must go well armed,
He going with me goes often with spare diet poverty, angry enemies, desertions

15

Allons! the road is before us!
It is safe—I have tried it—my own feet have tried it well—be not detained!
Let the paper remain on the desk unwritten and the book on the shelf unopened!
Let the tools remain in the workshop! let the money remain unearn'd!
Let the school stand! mind not the cry of the teacher!
Let the preacher preach in his pulpit! let the lawyer plead in the court, and the judge expound the law

Camerado, I will give you my hand!
I give you my love more precious than money,
I give you myself before preaching or law,
Will you give me yourself? will you come travel with me?
Shall we stick by each other as long as we live?

Afoot

LONG is the road twixt town and town that runs,
Travelled by many a lordly cavalcade,
With trappings gay and rich caparisons,
Jester and squire, and laughing knight and maid
With gallant clash and stir they go their way
I trudge afoot thro all the drouth of day

For me the misty meadows fresh with morn,
The tramp thro' noontide heat to evening gray,
The far seen smoke from the day's goal upborne,
The halt, the friendly greeting by the way
The distant hill behind fair hill descried,
The road by day, the rest at eventide

I know each wayside wood, each moorland brown
Each hidden byway and reposeful nook,
Where I may linger when the sun goes down,
Dipping tired feet in some cool flowing brook
I know the free hill and the glooming glen,
And kindly fires, and humble homes of men

SPRING AND THE BEAUTY OF THE EARTH

Sweetest Earth I love and love thee,
Seas about thee skies above thee,
Sun and storms
Hues and forms
Of the clouds with floating shadows
On thy mountains and thy meadows

Earth there's none that can enslave thee
Not thy lords it is that have thee
Not for gold
Art thou sold
But thy lovers at their pleasure
Take thy beauty and thy treasure

Margaret L. Woods

Unnumber'd cottages and farms
That have for musing minds unnumber'd charms

George Crabbe

One passage in your letter a little displeased me The rest was nothing but kindness which Robert's letters are ever brimful of You say that this World to you seems drain'd of all its sweets! At first I had hoped you only meant to intimate the high price of Sugar! but I am afraid you meant more O Robert I don't know what you call sweet Honey and the honeycomb roses and violets are yet in the earth The sun and moon yet reign in Heaven and the lesser lights keep up their pretty twinklings Meats and drinks, sweet sights and sweet smells a country walk, spring and autumn follies and repentance quarrels and reconcilements have all a sweetness by turns Good humour and good nature friends at home that love you, and friends abroad that miss you—you possess all these things, and more innumerable, and these are all sweet things You may extract honey from everything

Charles Lamb to Robert Lloyd

Turn o' the Year

THIS is the time when bit by bit
The days begin to lengthen sweet,
And every minute gained is joy—
And love stirs in the heart of a boy

This is the time the sun, of late
Content to lie abed till eight,
Lifts up betimes his sleepy head—
And love stirs in the heart of a maid

This is the time we dock the night
Of a whole hour of candlelight
When song of linnet and thrush is heard—
And love stirs in the heart of a bird

This is the time when sword blades green,
With gold and purple damascene,
Pierce the brown crocus bed a row—
And love stirs in a heart I know

Katharine Tynan Hinkson

The Earth Child

OUT of the veins of the world comes the blood of me
The heart that beats in my side is the heart of the sea
The hills have known me of old, and they do not forget
Long ago was I friends with the wind, I am friends with it yet

The hills are grey, they are strange they breed desire
Of a tune that the feet may march to and not tire
For always up in the distance the thin roads wind,
And passing out of sight, they pass not out of mind

I am glad when morning and evening alter the skies
There speaks no voice of the stars but my voice replies
When wave on wave all night cries out in its need,
I listen, I understand, my heart takes heed

Out of the red brown earth, out of the grey brown streams,
Came this perilous body, cage of perilous dreams,
To the ends of all waters and lands they are tossed, they are whirled,
For my dreams are one with my body yea, one with the world

Gerald Gould.

The Spring

WHEN wintry weather's al a done
An' brooks da sparkle in the zun
An nâisy buildèn rooks da vlee
Wi' sticks toward ther elem tree,
An' we can hear birds zing, and zee
Upon the boughs the buds o' spring,
Then I don t envy any king,
A vield wi' health an' zunsheen

Var then the cowslip s hangen flow'r
A wetted in the zunny show'r
Da grow wi' vilets sweet o' smell,
That mâidens al da like so well
An drushes' aggs, wi sky blue shell,
Da lie in mossy nests among
The tharns, while the da zing ther zong
At evemen in the zunsheen

An' God da make His win' to blow
An rân to val var high an low
An' tell His marnen zun to rise
Var al alik an groun an' skies
Ha' colors var the poor man's eyes
An' in our trials He is near
To hear our muoan an' zee our tear
An' turn our clouds to zunsheen

An' many times, when I da vind
Things goo awry, and vo'ke unkind

To zee the quiet veedèn herds,
An' hear the zingèn o' the birds,
Da still my spurrit muore than words
Var I da zee that 'tis our sin
Da make oon s soul so dark 'ithin
When God wood gie us zunsheen.

APRIL, April
Laugh thy girlish laughter
Then, the moment after Weep thy girlish tears!
April that mine ears
Like a lover greetest,
If I tell thee, sweetest
All my hopes and fears
April, April,
Laugh thy golden laughter,
But the moment after,
Weep thy golden tears!

William Watson

In Early Spring

O SPRING I know thee! Seek for sweet surprise
In the young children s eyes
But I have learnt the years, and know the yet
Leaf folded violet

Mine ear, awake to silence, can foretell
 The cuckoo's fitful bell
I wander in a grey time that encloses
 June and the wild hedge-roses
A year's procession of the flowers doth pass
 My feet, along the grass
And all you sweet birds silent yet I know
 The notes that stir you so
Your songs yet half devised in the dim dear
 Beginnings of the year
In these young days you meditate your part,
 I have it all by heart

I know the secrets of the seeds of flowers
 Hidden and warm with showers
And how, in kindling Spring, the cuckoo shall Alter his interval
But not a flower or song I ponder is
 My own, but memory's
I shall be silent in those days desired
 Before a world inspired
O dear brown birds compose your old song phrases
 Earth thy familiar daisies

The poet mused upon the dusky height
 Between two stars towards night,
His purpose in his heart I watched a space,
 The meaning of his face
There was the secret, fled from earth and skies
 Hid in his grey young eyes

My heart and all the Summer wait his choice,
And wonder for his voice
Who shall foretell his songs, and who aspire
But to divine his lyre?
Sweet earth, we know thy dimmest mysteries,
But he is lord of his

Alice Meynell

Song

THE year's at the spring
And day's at the morn
Morning's at seven
The hill side's dew pearled
The lark's on the wing
The snail's on the thorn
God's in His heaven—
All's right with the world!

Robert Browning

Lynton Verses

SWEET breeze that sett'st the summer birds a swaying,
Dear lambs amid the primrose meadows playing,
Let me not think!
O floods upon whose brink
The merry birds are maying,

Dream, softly dream! O blessed mother, lead me
Unsevered from thy girdle—lead me! feed me!
I have no will but thine,
I need not but the juice
Of elemental wine—
Perish remoter use
Of strength reserved for conflict yet to come!
Let me be dumb,
As long as I may feel thy hand—
This, this is all—do ye not understand
How the great Mother mixes all our bloods?
O breeze! O swaying buds!
O lambs, O primroses O floods!

Thomas Edward Brown

Home Thoughts from Abroad

OH to be in England now that April's there
And whoever wakes in England sees, some morning unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!
And after April, when May follows
And the white throat builds, and all the swallows!
Hark, where my blossomed pear tree in the hedge
Leans to the field and scatters on the clover
Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray's edge—
That's the wise thrush, he sings each song twice over

Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture!
And, though the fields look rough with hoary dew
All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children's dower —Far brighter than this gaudy melon flower!

A May Burden

THROUGH meadow ways as I did tread,
The corn grew in great lustihead
And hey! the beeches burgeonéd
By Goddés fay, by Goddés fay!
It is the month the jolly month,
It is the jolly month of May

God ripe the wines and corn I say,
And wenches for the marriage day
And boys to teach love's comely play
By Goddés fay, by Goddés fay!
It is the month, the jolly month,
It is the jolly month of May

As I went down by lane and lea,
The daisies reddened so pardie!
"Blushets!" I said, "I well do see,
By Goddés fay, by Goddés fay!
The thing ye think of in this month,
Heigho! this jolly month of May"

As down I went by rye and oats
The blossoms smelt of kisses, throats
Of birds turned kisses into notes
By Goddés fay, by Goddés fay!
The kiss it is a growing flower,
I trow, this jolly month of May

God send a mouth to every kiss,
Seeing the blossom of this bliss
By gathering doth grow, certes!
By Goddés fay, by Goddés fay!
Thy brow garland pushed all aslant
Tells—but I tell not, wanton May!

Francis Thompson

Corrymeela

OVER here in England I'm helpin' wi' the hay,
An I wisht I was in Ireland the livelong day,
Weary on the English hay, an' sorra take the wheat!
Och! Corrymeela an' the blue sky over it

There's a deep dumb river flowin by beyont the heavy trees,
This livin' air is moithered wi the bummin' o the bees
I wisht I'd hear the Claddagh burn go runnin' through the heat,
Past Corrymeela, wi' the blue sky over it

The people that's in England is richer nor the Jews,
There not the smallest young gossoon but thravels in his shoes!
I'd give the pipe between me teeth to see a barefut child,
Och! Corrymeela an' the low south wind

Here's hands so full o' money an' hearts so full o' care,
By the luck o' love! I'd still go light for all I did go bare
"God save ye, colleen dhas," I said the girl she thought me wild
Far Corrymeela an' the low south wind

D'ye mind me now, the song at night is mortial hard to raise,
The girls are heavy goin' here, the boys are ill to plase,
When onest I'm out this workin' hive, tis I'll be back again—
Ay, Corrymeela, in the same soft rain

The puff o' smoke from one ould roof before an English town!
For a shaugh wid Andy Feelan here I'd give a silver crown,
For a curl o' hair like Mollie's ye'll ask the like in vain,
Sweet Corrymeela, an' the same soft rain.

Moira O'Neill.

AND when at last
Escaped, so many a green slope built on slope
Betwixt me and the enemy's house behind,
I dared to rest, or wander, in a rest
Made sweeter for the step upon the grass,
And view the ground's most gentle dimplement
(As if God's finger touched but did not press
In making England) such an up and down
Of verdure,—nothing too much up or down,
A ripple of land, such little hills, the sky
Can stoop to tenderly and the wheatfields climb
Such nooks of valleys lined with orchises,
Fed full of noises by invisible streams,
And open pastures where you scarcely tell
White daisies from white dew—at intervals
The mythic oaks and elm trees standing out
Self poised upon their prodigy of shade,—
I thought my father's land was worthy too
Of being my Shakespeare's

Breaking into voluble ecstasy
I flattered all the beauteous country round,
As poets use, the skies, the clouds, the fields,
The happy violets hiding from the roads
The primroses run down to, carrying gold
The tangled hedgerows, where the cows push out
Impatient horns and tolerant churning mouths

'Twixt dripping ash boughs,—hedgerows all alive
With birds and gnats and large white butter flies
Which look as if the May flower had caught life
And palpitated forth upon the wind,
Hills vales, woods, netted in a silver mist,
Farms, granges, doubled up among the hills
And cattle grazing in the watered vales,
And cottage chimneys smoking from the woods,
And cottage gardens smelling everywhere,
Confused with smell of orchards

Elizabeth Barrett Browning

England

SHOULDERS of upland brown laid dark to the sunset's bosom,
Living amber of wheat, and copper of new ploughed loam
Downs where the white sheep wander, little gardens in blossom,
Roads that wind through the twilight up to the lights of home
Lanes that are white with hawthorn, dykes where the sedges shiver
Hollows where caged winds slumber, moorlands where winds wake free

Sowing and reaping and gleaning, spring and torrent and river,
Are they not more, by worlds, than the whole of the world can be?
Is there a corner of land a furze fringed rag of a by way,
Coign of your foam white cliffs or swirl of your grass green waves,
Leaf of your peaceful copse, or dust of your strenuous highway,
But in our hearts is sacred, dear as our cradles, our graves?
Is not each bough in your orchards, each cloud in the skies above you,
Is not each byre or homestead furrow or farm or fold
Dear as the last dear drops of the blood in the hearts that love you,
Filling those hearts till the love is more than the heart can hold?

E Nesbit

(Italy Sweet too!

HAPPY is England! I could be content
To see no other verdure than its own
To feel no other breezes than are blown
Through its tall woods with high romances blent

Yet do I sometimes feel a languishment
For skies Italian, and an inward groan;
To sit upon an Alp as on a throne,
And half forget what world or worldling meant

Happy is England sweet her artless daughters
Enough their simple loveliness for me,
Enough their whitest arms in silence clinging
Yet do I often warmly burn to see
Beauties of deeper glance, and hear their singing
And float with them about the summer waters

John Keats)

Beauty Triumphant

A THING of beauty is a joy for ever
Its loveliness increases, it will never Pass into nothingness, but still will keep
A bower quiet for us and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing
Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth,
Spite of despondence, of the inhuman dearth
Of noble natures, of the gloomy days,
Of all the unhealthy and o'er-darken'd ways
Made for our searching: yes, in spite of all
Some shape of beauty moves away the pall
From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon

For simple sheep, and such are daffodils
With the green world they live in and clear rills
That for themselves a cooling covert make
'Gainst the hot season, the mid forest brake,
Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk rose blooms
And such too is the grandeur of the dooms
We have imagined for the mighty dead,
All lovely tales that we have heard or read
An endless fountain of immortal drink,
Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink

Cuttin' Rushes"

OH maybe it was yesterday, or fifty years ago!
Meself was risin early on a day for cuttin' rushes,
Walkin' up the Brabla' burn still the sun was low
Now I'd hear the burn run an' then I'd hear the thrushes
Young, still young!—an' drenchin' wet the grass,
Wet the golden honeysuckle hangin' sweetly down,
Here, lad, here! will ye follow where I pass,
An' find me cuttin' rushes on the mountain

Then was it only yesterday or fifty years or so?
Rippin' round the bog pools high among the heather.

The hook it made me hand sore I had to leave it go,
'Twas he that cut the rushes then for me to bind together
Come, dear come!—an' back along the burn
See the darlin honeysuckle hangin' like a crown
Quick, one kiss,—sure, there's someone at the turn!
'Oh, we're afther cuttin' rushes on the mountain"

Yesterday, yesterday, or fifty years ago
I waken out o' dreams when I hear the summer thrushes
Oh that s the Brabla burn, I can hear it sing an' flow,
For all that's fair, I'd sooner see a bunch o green rushes
Run burn, run! can ye mind when we were young?
The honeysuckle hangs above, the pool is dark an' brown
Sing, burn, sing! an ye mind the song ye sung
The day we cut the rushes on the mountain?

Nature and Humanity

FOR nature then
(The coarser pleasures of my boyish days,
And their glad animal movements all gone by)
To me was all in all.—I cannot paint
What then I was The sounding cataract
Haunted me like a passion the tall rock,

The mountain, and the deep and gloomy wood,
Their colours and their forms, were then to me
An appetite, a feeling and a love,
That had no need of a remoter charm,
By thought supplied, nor any interest
Unborrowed from the eye —That time is past,
And all its aching joys are now no more,
And all its dizzy raptures Not for this
Faint I nor mourn nor murmur, other gifts
Have followed for such loss, I would believe Abundant recompense For I have learned
To look on nature, not as in the hour
Of thoughtless youth but hearing oftentimes
The still, sad music of humanity,
Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power
To chasten and subdue And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man
A motion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things Therefore am I still A lover of the meadows and the woods
And mountains and of all that we behold
From this green earth of all the mighty world
Of eye and ear, both what they half create,
And what perceive, well pleased to recognise

In nature and the language of the sense,
The anchor of my purest thoughts, the nurse,
The guide, the guardian of my heart, and soul
Of all my moral being

William Wordsworth.

Hymn of Pan

FROM the forests and highlands
We come, we come,
From the river girt islands,
Where loud waves are dumb
Listening to my sweet pipings
The wind in the reeds and the rushes,
The bees on the bells of thyme,
The birds on the myrtle bushes
The cicale above in the lime
And the lizards below in the grass,
Were as silent as ever old Tmolus was,
Listening to my sweet pipings.

Liquid Peneus was flowing
And all dark Tempe lay
In Pelion's shadow, outgrowing
The light of the dying day,
Speeded by my sweet pipings.
The Sileni, and Sylvans, and Fauns,
And the Nymphs of the woods and waves,
To the edge of the moist river lawns,
And the brink of the dewy caves,

And all that did then attend and follow,
Were silent with love, as you now, Apollo
With envy of my sweet pipings

I sang of the dancing stars,
I sang of the dædal Earth,
And of Heaven—and the giant wars,
And Love, and Death, and Birth,—
And then I changed my pipings,— Singing how down the vale of Menalus
I pursued a maiden and clasped a reed
Gods and men, we are all deluded thus!
It breaks in our bosom and then we bleed
All wept, as I think both ye now would,
If envy or age had not frozen your blood,
At the sorrow of my sweet pipings

Pan's Piping

BREATHE music, O Pan that goest on the mountains, with thy sweet lips, breathe delight into thy pastoral reed, pouring song from the musical pipe, and make the melody sound in tune with the choral words, and about thee to the pulse of the rhythm let the inspired foot of these water nymphs keep falling free

Alcaeus of Messene
(J. W. Mackail's translation.)

THROUGH the black, rushing smoke bursts,
Thick breaks the red flame
All Etna heaves fiercely
Her forest-clothed frame

Not here O Apollo!
Are haunts meet for thee
But, where Helicon breaks down
In cliff to the sea

Where the moon silver'd inlets
Send far their light voice
Up the still vale of Thisbe
O speed, and rejoice!

On the sward, at the cliff top,
Lie strewn the white flocks
On the cliff side the pigeons
Roost deep in the rocks

In the moonlight the shepherds
Soft lull'd by the rills,
Lie wrapt in their blankets
Asleep on the hills

— What Forms are these coming
So white through the gloom?
What garments out glistening
The gold flower'd broom?

What sweet breathing Presence
Out perfumes the thyme?
What voices enrapture
The night's balmy prime?—

'Tis Apollo comes leading His choir, the Nine
—The Leader is fairest,
But all are divine

They are lost in the hollows!
They stream up again!
What seeks on this mountain
The glorified train?—

They bathe on this mountain,
In the spring by their road
Then on to Olympus,
Their endless abode

—Whose praise do they mention?
Of what is it told?—
What will be for ever
What was from of old

First hymn they the Father
Of all things, and then,
The rest of Immortals,
The action of men

The Day in its hotness,
The strife with the palm,
The Night in its silence,
The Stars in their calm

Matthew Arnold

Bacchus

AND as I sat, over the light blue hills
There came a noise of revellers the rills
Into the wide stream came of purple hue—
'Twas Bacchus and his crew!
The earnest trumpet spake, and silver thrills
From kissing cymbals made a merry din—
'Twas Bacchus and his kin!
Like to a moving vintage down they came,
Crown'd with green leaves, and faces all on flame,
All madly dancing through the pleasant valley,
To scare thee, Melancholy!

John Keats

THE LOVER SINGS

When I walk by myself alone
It doth me good my songs to render

William Wager

The sun it goes down the sky it looks red
On yonder pillow I lay down my head
I lift up my eyes to see the stars shine
But still this young damsel she runs in my mind

Old Sussex Song

Song

HOW sweet I roamed from field to field,
And tasted all the summer's pride
Till I the Prince of Love beheld
Who in the sunny beams did glide!

He shewed me lilies for my hair,
And blushing roses for my brow
He led me through his gardens fair
Where all his golden pleasures grow

With sweet May dews my wings were wet,
And Phœbus fired my vocal rage
He caught me in his silken net,
And shut me in his golden cage

He loves to sit and hear me sing
Then, laughing, sports and plays with me;
Then stretches out my golden wing,
And mocks my loss of liberty

William Blake

Song

MY true love hath my heart, and I have his,
By just exchange one to the other given
I hold his dear and mine he cannot miss,—
There never was a better bargain driven
My true love hath my heart, and I have his

His heart in me keeps him and me in one
My heart in him his thoughts and sen es guides
He loves my heart for once it was his own,
I cherish his because in me it bides
My true love hath my heart, and I have his

Sir Philip Sidney

Song

O MISTRESS mine, where are you roaming?
O, stay and hear your true Love's coming,
That can sing both high and low
Trip no further, pretty Sweeting
Journeys end in lovers' meeting,
Every wise man s son doth know

What is love? 'tis not hereafter
Present mirth hath present laughter,
What's to come is still unsure
In delay there lies no plenty:
Then come kiss me, Sweet-and twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure

William Shakespeare

Song

LET my voice ring out and over the earth,
Through all the grief and strife,
With a golden joy in a silver mirth
Thank God for Life!

Let my voice swell out through the great abyss
To the azure dome above
With a chord of faith in the harp of bliss
Thank God for Love!

Let my voice thrill out beneath and above
The whole world through
O my Love and Life, O my Life and Love
Thank God for you!

James Thomson

Song

OH, like a queen's her happy tread
And like a queen's her golden head!
But oh, at last, when all is said,
Her woman's heart for me!

We wandered where the river gleamed
'Neath oaks that mused and pines that dreamed
A wild thing of the woods she seemed,
So proud, and pure, and free!

All heaven drew nigh to hear her sing,
When from her lips her soul took wing,
The oaks forgot their pondering,
The pines their reverie

And oh, her happy queenly tread,
And oh, her queenly golden head!
But oh her heart, when all is said,
Her woman's heart for me!

William Watson

The Lady of the Lambs

SHE walks—the lady of my delight—
A shepherdess of sheep
Her flocks are thoughts. She keeps them white
She guards them from the steep
She feeds them on the fragrant height,
And folds them in for sleep

She roams maternal hills and bright,
Dark valleys safe and deep
Her dreams are innocent at night
The chastest stars may peep
She walks—the lady of my delight—
A shepherdess of sheep

She holds her little thoughts in sight,
Though gay they run and leap

She is so circumspect and right
 She has her soul to keep
She walks—the lady of my delight—
 A shepherdess of sheep

Alice Meynell

The Miller's Daughter

IT is the miller's daughter,
 And she is grown so dear, so dear
That I would be the jewel
 That trembles in her ear
For hid in ringlets day and night,
I'd touch her neck so warm and bright

And I would be the girdle
 About her dainty, dainty waist,
And her heart would beat against me,
 In sorrow and in rest
And I should know if it beat right,
I'd clasp it round so close and tight.

And I would be the necklace,
 And all day long to fall and rise
Upon her balmy bosom,
 With her laughter or her sighs,
And I would lie so light, so light,
I scarce should be unclasp'd at night.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

The Mâid var my Bride

AH! don t tell o mâidens the oone var my bride
Is but little lik' too many mâidens beside
Not brântèn, nar spitevul, nar wild —she'v' a mind
Var to think what is right, an a heart to be kind

She s stràight an' she's slender, but not auver tal,
Her limbs da move lightly her veet be so smal
A spirit o' heaven da breathe in her fiace,
An a queen, to be stately, must wake wi' her place

Her frocks be so tidy, an' pirty, an' plâin
She don't put on things that be fliarèn an vain
Her bonnet a got but two ribbons, a tied
Up under her chin, ar let down at the zide

When she da speak to oone she don't stiare an' grin
There s sense in her looks vrom her eyes to her chin
An' her vâice is so kind, var she's modest an' meek,
An' da look down to groun a beginnen to speak.

Her skin is so white as a lily, an each
Ov her cheaks is so downy an red as a peach
She s pirty enough zittèn still but my love
Da watch her to madness when oonce she da move

An' when she da wā'ke huome vrom church, droo the groun'
Wi oone yarm in mine, an' wi' oone hangèn down,
I'm a shiam'd o' myzuf, var I'm sure I must be Oncommonly ugly along zide o' she

Zoo don't ta'ke o' mâidens, the oone vu1 my bride
Is but little lik' too many mâidens bezide,
Not br'ntèn, nar spitevul, nar wild she v' a mind
Var to think what is right, an' a heart to be kind

William Barnes

Song

O SWEET delight O more than human bliss,
With her to live that ever loving is!
To hear her speak whose words are so well placed
That she by them, as they in her are graced!
Those looks to view that feast the viewer's eye,
How blest is he that may so live and die!

Such love as this the Golden Times did know,
When all did reap yet none took care to sow,
Such love as this an endless summer makes,
And all distaste from frail affection takes
So loved, so blest in my beloved am I
Which till their eyes do ache, let iron men envy!

Thomas Campion

A Match

IF love were what the rose is,
And I were like the leaf,
Our lives would grow together
In sad or singing weather,

Blown fields or flowerful closes,
 Green pleasure or grey grief,
If love were what the rose is,
 And I were like the leaf

If I were what the words are,
 And love were like the tune,
With double sound and single Delight our lips would mingle,
With kisses glad as birds are
 That get sweet rain at noon,
If I were what the words are
 And love were like the tune

If you were life my darling,
 And I your love were death,
We'd shine and snow together
Ere March made sweet the weather
With daffodil and starling
 And hours of fruitful breath;
If you were life, my darling
 And I your love were death

If you were thrall to sorrow,
 And I were page to joy,
We'd play for lives and seasons
With loving looks and treasons
And tears of night and morrow
 And laughs of maid and boy,
If you were thrall to sorrow,
 And I were page to joy

If you were April's lady,
And I were lord in May,
We'd throw with leaves for hours,
And draw for days with flowers,
Till day like night were shady
And night were bright like day
If you were April's lady
And I were lord in May

If you were queen of pleasure
And I were king of pain,
We'd hunt down love together
Pluck out his flying feather,
And teach his feet a measure,
And find his mouth a rein!
If you were queen of pleasure,
And I were king of pain

Algernon Charles Swinburne

Love's Garland

I WILL twine the white violet and I will twine the delicate narcissus with myrtle buds, and I will twine laughing lilies, and I will twine the sweet crocus, and I will twine therewithal the crimson hyacinth, and I will twine lovers' roses, that on balsam curled Heliodora's temples my garland may shed its petals over the lovelocks of her hair

Meleager

(J W Mackail's translation)

She Walks in Beauty

SHE walks in beauty, like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes
Thus mellow'd to that tender light
Which heaven to gaudy day denies

One shade the more one ray the less,
Had half impair'd the nameless grace
Which waves in every raven tress,
Or softly lightens o'er her face
Where thoughts serenely sweet express
How pure how dear their dwelling place

And on that cheek, and o'er that brow
So soft, so calm yet eloquent,
The smiles that win the tints that glow,
But tell of days in goodness spent,
A mind at peace with all below,
A heart whose love is innocent!

Lord Byron

Song

MY luve is like a red, red rose
That's newly sprung in June
My luve is like the melodie
That's sweetly played in tune

As fair thou art my bonnie lass,
So deep in luve am I
And I will luve thee still my dear,
Till a' the seas gang dry

Till a' the seas gang dry my dear,
And the rocks melt wi the sun
I will luve thee still my dear,
While the sands o life shall run

And fare thee weel my only luve!
And fare thee weel awhile!
And I will come again my luve
Tho' it were ten thousand mile

Robert Burns

Song

SHE is not fair to outward view
As many maidens be,
Her loveliness I never knew
Until she smiled on me,
Oh! then I saw her eye was bright
A well of love, a spring of light

But now her looks are coy and cold,
To mine they never reply,
And yet I cease not to behold
The love light in her eye
Her very frowns are fairer far
Than smiles of other maidens are

Hartley Coleridge

Ballad

IT was not in the winter
Our loving lot was cast
It was the time of roses —
We plucked them as we passed!

That churlish season never frowned
On early lovers yet!
Oh no—the world was newly crowned
With flowers when first we met

'Twas twilight, and I bade you go,
But still you held me fast
It was the time of roses,—
We plucked them as we passed!

What else could peer my glowing cheek
That tears began to stud?
And when I asked the like of Love
You snatched a damask bud,

And oped it to the dainty core
Still glowing to the last
It was the time of roses,—
We plucked them as we passed!

Thomas Hood

Song

GIVE a man a horse he can ride
Give a man a boat he can sail
And his rank and wealth his strength and health
On sea nor shore shall fail

Give a man a pipe he can smoke
Give a man a book he can read
And his home is bright with a calm delight,
Though the room be poor indeed

Give a man a girl he can love,
As I O my love love thee
And his heart is great with the pulse of Fate
At home, on land, on sea

James Thomson

The Message of the March Wind

(Fragment)

FAIR now is the springtide now earth lies beholding
With the eyes of a lover, the face of the sun
Long lasteth the daylight, and hope is enfolding
The green growing acres with increase begun

Now sweet, sweet it is through the land to be straying
'Mid the birds and the blossoms and beasts of the field
Love mingles with love, and no evil is weighing On thy heart or mine, where all sorrow is healed

From township to township o'er down and by village
Fair, fair have we wandered and long was the day
But now cometh eve at the end of the village
Where over the grey wall the church riseth grey

There is wind in the twilight in the white road before us
The straw from the ox yard is blowing about
The moon's rim is rising, a star glitters o'er us,
And the vane on the spire top is swinging in doubt

Down there dips the highway toward the bridge crossing over
The brook that runs on to the Thames and the sea.
Draw closer my sweet we are lover and lover,
This eve art thou given to gladness and me

Come back to the inn, love, and the lights and the fire,
And the fiddler's old tune and the shuffling of feet
For there in a while shall be rest and desire,
And there shall the morrow's uprising be sweet

William Morris

Beauty

I HAVE seen dawn and sunset on moors and windy hills
Coming in solemn beauty like slow old tunes of Spain
I have seen the lady April bringing the daffodils,
Bringing the springing grass and the soft warm April rain

I have heard the song of the blossoms and the old chant of the sea
And seen strange lands from under the arched white sails of ships
But the loveliest things of beauty God ever has showed to me,
Are her voice, and her hair and eyes, and the dear red curve of her lips

John Masefield

The Passionate Shepherd to his Love

COME live with me and be my Love,
And we will all the pleasures prove
That hills and valleys, dale and field,
And all the craggy mountains yield

There will we sit upon the rocks
And see the shepherds feed their flocks
By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals

There will I make thee beds of roses
And a thousand fragrant posies,
A cap of flowers, and a kirtle
Embroider d all with leaves of myrtle

A gown made of the finest wool,
Which from our pretty lambs we pull
Fair linéd slippers for the cold
With buckles of the purest gold

A belt of straw and ivy buds
With coral clasps and amber studs
And if these pleasures may thee move
Come live with me and be my Love

Thy silver dishes for thy meat
As precious as the gods do eat,
Shall on an ivory table be Prepared each day for thee and me

The shepherd swains shall dance and sing
For thy delight each May morning
If these delights thy mind may move,
Then live with me and be my Love.

Christopher Marlowe

Song

THERE is a garden in her face
Where roses and white lilies blow,
A heavenly paradise is that place,
Wherein all pleasant fruits do grow,
There cherries grow that none may buy,
Till Cherry Ripe themselves do cry

Those cherries fairly do enclose
Of orient pearl a double row,
Which when her lovely laughter shows,
They look like rose buds fill'd with snow
Yet them no peer nor prince may buy,
Till Cherry Ripe themselves do cry

Her eyes like angels watch them still,
Her brows like bended bows do stand
Threatning with piercing frowns to kill
All that approach with eye or hand
These sacred cherries to come nigh,
– Till Cherry Ripe themselves do cry!

Thomas Campion

On his Mistress, the Queen of Bohemia

YOU meaner beauties of the night,
That poorly satisfy our eyes
More by your number than your light,
You common people of the skies,
What are you when the moon shall rise?

You curious chanters of the wood,
That warble forth Dame Nature's lays,
Thinking your passions understood
By your weak accents what's your praise,
When Philomel her voice shall raise?

You violets that first appear
By your pure purple mantles known
Like the proud virgins of the year
As if the spring were all your own,
What are you when the rose is blown?

So when my mistress shall be seen
In form and beauty of her mind
By virtue first then choice, a Queen
Tell me if she were not designed
The eclipse and glory of her kind?

Sir Henry Wotton

Her Beauty

WHEN in the chronicle of wasted time
I see descriptions of the fairest wights
And beauty making beautiful old rhyme
In praise of ladies dead, and lovely knights,
Then in the blazon of sweet beauty's best
Of hand, of foot, of lip, of eye, of brow,
I see their antique pen would have exprest
Ev'n such a beauty as you master now

So all their praises are but prophecies
Of this our time, all, you prefiguring
And for they look'd but with divining eyes
They had not skill enough your worth to sing
For we, which now behold these present days
Have eyes to wonder, but lack tongues to praise

William Shakespeare

Constancy

WERE I as base as is the lowly plain,
And you my Love, as high as heaven above
Yet should the thoughts of me your humble swain
Ascend to heaven in honour of my Love

Were I as high as heaven above the plain,
And you, my Love as humble and as low
As are the deepest bottoms of the main
Whereso'er you were, with you my love should go

Were you the earth, dear Love, and I the skies,
My love should shine on you like to the sun,
And look upon you with ten thousand eyes
Till heaven wax'd blind and till the world were done

Whereso'er I am, below, or else above you,
Whereso'er you are my heart shall truly love you

John Sylvester

Laus Veneris

SWEET is snow in summer for the thirsty to drink, and sweet for sailors after winter to see the garland of spring but most sweet when one cloak shelters two lovers, and the tale of love is told by both

Asclepiades

(J. W. Mackail's translation.)

SUN AND CLOUD, AND THE WINDY HILLS

To see the sun to bed and to arise
Like some hot amourist with glowing eyes
Bursting the lazy bonds of sleep that bound him
With all his fires and travelling glories round him.

Charles Lamb

To persons standing alone on a hill during a clear midnight such as this the roll of the world eastward is almost a palpable movement The sensation may be caused by the panoramic glide of the stars past earthly objects which is perceptible in a few minutes of stillness or by the better outlook upon space that a hill affords or by the wind or by the solitude but what ever be its origin the impression of riding along is vivid and abiding The poetry of motion is a phrase much in use and to enjoy the epic form of that gratification it is necessary to stand on a hill at a small hour of the night and having first expanded with a sense of difference from the mass of civilised mankind who are dream wrapt and disregardful of all such proceedings at this time long and quietly watch your stately progress through the stars After such a nocturnal reconnoitre it is hard to get back to earth and to believe that the consciousness of such majestic speeding is derived from a tiny human frame

Thomas Hardy (Far from the Madding Crowd).

The Sun

THE curious have an insufficient motive for going to the mountains if they do it to see the sunrise The sun that leaps from a mountain peak is a sun past the dew of his birth he has walked some way towards the common fires of noon But on the flat country the uprising is early and fresh, the arc is wide the career is long The most distant clouds, converging in the beautiful and little studied order of cloud perspective (for most painters treat clouds as though they formed perpendicular and not horizontal scenery), are those that gather at the central point of sunrise On the plain and there only, can the construction—but that is too little vital a word I should rather say the organism — the unity, the design of a sky be understood The light wind that has been moving all night is seen to have not worked at random It has shepherded some small flocks of cloud afield and folded others There's husbandry in Heaven And the order has, or seems to have, the sun for its midst Not a line, not a curve, but confesses its membership in a design declared from horizon to horizon

Alice Meynell

Hymn of Apollo

THE sleepless Hours who watch me as I lie
Curtained with star-inwoven tapestries,
From the broad moonlight of the sky,
Fanning the busy dreams from my dim eyes
Waken me when their Mother, the grey Dawn
Tells them that dreams and that the moon is gone

Then I arise, and, climbing Heaven's blue dome
I walk over the mountains and the waves
Leaving my robe upon the ocean foam
My footsteps pave the clouds with fire the caves
Are filled with my bright presence and the air
Leaves the green Earth to my embraces bare

The sunbeams are my shafts with which I kill
Deceit, that loves the night and fears the day,
All men who do or even imagine ill
Fly me, and from the glory of my ray
Good minds and open actions take new might,
Until diminished by the reign of Night

I feed the clouds, the rainbows, and the flowers,
With their ethereal colours the Moon's globe,
And the pure stars in their eternal bowers,
Are cinctured with my power as with a robe,
Whatever lamps on Earth or Heaven may shine
Are portions of one power, which is mine

I stand at noon upon the peak of Heaven,
Then with unwilling steps I wander down
Into the clouds of the Atlantic even
For grief that I depart they weep and frown
What look is more delightful than the smile
With which I soothe them from the western isle?

I am the eye with which the Universe
Beholds itself, and knows itself divine,
All harmony of instrument or verse,
All prophecy, all medicine, are mine,
All light of art or nature —to my song
Victory and praise in their own right belong

Youth at the Summit

I GOT up the mountain edge and from the top saw the world stretcht out—cornlands and forest the river winding among meadow flats, and right off, like a hem of the sky, the moving sea, with snatches of foam, and large ships reaching forward, out bound And then I thought no more, but my heart leapt to meet the wind and I ran, and I ran I felt my legs under me, I felt the wind buffet me, hit me on the cheek, the sun shone, the bees swept past me singing, and I too sang, shouted, World world, I am coming!

(Pan and the Young Shepherd)

Morning on Etna

THE mules, I think, will not be here this hour
They feel the cool wet turf under their feet
By the stream side, after the dusty lanes
In which they have toil'd all night from Catana,
And scarcely will they budge a yard O Pan
How gracious is the mountain at this hour!
A thousand times have I been here alone
Or with the revellers from the mountain towns,
But never on so fair a morn —the sun
Is shining on the brilliant mountain crests,
And on the highest pines but further down
Here in the valley is in shade the sward
Is dark and on the stream the mist still hangs
One sees one's footprints crush'd in the wet grass
One's breath curls in the air and on these pines
That climb from the stream's edge the long grey tufts,
Which the goats love, are jewell'd thick with dew

Matthew Arnold

The Horizon

TO mount a hill is to lift with you something lighter and brighter than yourself or than any meaner burden You lift the world, you raise the horizon, you give a signal for the distance to stand up It is like the scene in the Vatican when a Cardinal with his dramatic Italian hands, bids the kneeling groups to arise He does more than bid them He lifts them, he gathers them up, far and near, with the upward gesture of both arms he takes them to their feet with the compulsion of his expressive force Or it is as when a conductor takes his players to successive heights of music You summon the sea, you bring the mountains the distances unfold unlooked for wings and take an even flight You are but a man lifting his weight upon the upward road but as you climb the circle of the world goes up to face you

It is the law whereby the eye and the horizon answer one another that makes the way up a hill so full of universal movement All the landscape is on pilgrimage The town gathers itself closer, and its inner harbours literally come to light the headlands repeat themselves little cups within the treeless hills open and show their farms In the sea are many regions A breeze is at play for a mile or two and the surface is turned There are roads and curves in the blue and in the white Not a step of your journey up the height that has not its replies in the steady motion of land and sea Things rise together like a flock of many feathered birds

MOVING up the sweet short turf, at every step my heart seemed to obtain a wider horizon of feeling, with every inhalation of rich pure air, a deeper desire The very light of the sun was whiter and more brilliant here By the time I had reached the summit I had entirely forgotten the petty circumstances and the annoyances of existence I felt myself, myself There was an intrenchment on the summit and going down into the fosse I walked round it slowly to recover breath On the south western side there was a spot where the outer bank had partially slipped leaving a gap There the view was over a broad plain, beautiful with wheat, and inclosed by a perfect amphitheatre of green hills Through these hills there was one narrow groove or pass southwards, where the white clouds seemed to close in the horizon Woods hid the scattered hamlets and farmhouses, so that I was quite alone

I was utterly alone with the sun and the earth Lying down on the grass I spoke in my soul to the earth, the sun, the air, and the distant sea far beyond sight I thought of the earth's firmness—I felt it bear me up, through the grassy couch there came an influence as if I could feel the great earth speaking to me I thought of the wandering air—its pureness, which is its beauty, the air touched me and gave me something of itself I spoke to the sea; though so far, in my mind I saw it, green at the rim of the earth and blue in deeper ocean I desired to have its strength, its mystery and glory Then I addressed the sun, desiring the soul equivalent of his light and brilliance, his endurance and unwearied race I turned to the blue heaven over, gazing into its depth, inhaling its exquisite colour and sweetness The rich blue of the unattainable flower of the sky drew my soul towards it, and there it rested, for pure colour is rest of heart By all these I prayed I felt an emotion of the soul beyond all definition prayer is a puny thing to it, and the word is a rude sign to the feeling, but I know no other

By the blue heaven, by the rolling sun bursting through untrodden space, a new ocean of ether every day unveiled By the fresh and wandering air encompassing the world by the sea sounding on the shore—the green sea white flecked at the margin and the deep ocean by the strong earth under me Then, returning I prayed by the sweet thyme, whose little flowers I touched with my hand by the slender grass by the crumble of dry chalky earth I took up and let fall through my fingers Touching the crumble of earth, the blade of grass, the thyme flower, breathing the earth encircling air, thinking of the sea and the sky, holding out my hand for the sunbeams to touch it, prone on the sward in token of deep reverence, thus I prayed that I might touch to the unutterable existence infinitely higher than deity

Richard Jefferies

"A Small Sweet Idyll'

COME down, O maid, from yonder mountain height
What pleasure lives n height (the shepherd sang)
In height and cold, the splendour of the hills?
But cease to move so near the Heavens, and cease
To glide a sunbeam by the blasted Pine,
To sit a star upon the sparkling spire
And come, for Love is of the valley, come,
For Love is of the valley come thou down
And find him by the happy thieshold he
Or hand in hand with Plenty in the maize
Or red with spirted purple of the vats,
Or foxlike in the vine nor cares to walk
With Death and Morning on the silver horns
Nor wilt thou snare him in the white ravine,
Nor find him dropt upon the firths of ice
That huddling slant in furrow cloven falls
To roll the torrent out of dusky doors
But follow let the torrent dance thee down
To find him in the valley let the wild
Lean headed Eagles yelp alone and leave
The monstrous ledges there to slope and spill
Their thousand wreaths of dangling water smoke
That like a broken purpose waste in air
So waste not thou but come for all the vales
Await thee, azure pillars of the hearth
Arise to thee, the children call, and I
Thy shepherd pipe, and sweet is every sound,
Sweeter thy voice, but every sound is sweet,

Myriads of rivulets hurrying thro' the lawn,
The moan of doves in immemorial elms,
And murmuring of innumerable bees

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

Knowledge

MEN say they know many things
But lo! they have taken wings,—
The arts and sciences,
And a thousand appliances,
The wind that blows
Is all that anybody knows

H D Thoreau

The South West Wind

THE most certain and most conquering of all is the south west wind You do not look to the weather vane to decide what shall be the style of your greeting to his morning There is no arbitrary rule of courtesy between you and him, and you need no arrow to point to his distinctions and to indicate to you the right manner of treating such a visitant

He prepares the dawn While it is still dark the air is warned of his presence, and before the window was opened he was already in the room His sun — for the sun is his—rises in the south west mood with a bloom on the blue, the grey or the gold When the south west is cold, the cold is his own cold—round, blunt, full and gradual in its very strength It is a fresh cold, that comes with an approach and does not challenge you in the manner of an unauthorised stranger but instantly gets your leave and even a welcome to your house of life He follows your breath in at your throat and your eyes are open to let him in even when he is cold Your blood cools, but does not hide from him

He has a splendid way with his sky In his flight, which is that not of a bird, but of a flock of birds he flies high and low at once high with his higher clouds that keep long in the sight of man, seeming to move slowly and low with the coloured clouds that breast the hills and are near to tree tops These the south west wind tosses up from his soft horizon, round and successive They are tinted somewhat like ripe clover fields or like hay fields just before the cutting, when all the grass is in flower and they are, oftener than all other clouds, in shadow These low lying flocks are swift and brief the wind casts them before him, from the western verge to the eastern

Ode to the West Wind

O WILD West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being Thou from whose unseen presence the leaves dead
Are driven like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing,
 Yellow, and black and pale and hectic red
Pestilence stricken multitudes! O thou
 Who chariotest to their dark wintry bed
The winged seeds, where they lie cold and low
 Each like a corpse within its grave until Thine azure sister of the Spring shall blow
 Her clarion o'er the dreaming earth and fill (Driving sweet buds like flocks to feed in air)
 With living hues and odours plain and hill
Wild Spirit which art moving everywhere
Destroyer and preserver hear oh hear!

Thou on whose stream mid the steep sky's commotion
 Loose clouds like earth's decaying leaves are shed
Shook from the tangled boughs of heaven and ocean
 Angels of rain and lightning! there are spread
On the blue surface of thine airy surge
 Like the bright hair uplifted from the head
Of some fierce Mænad even from the dim verge
 Of the horizon to the zenith's height
The locks of the approaching storm. Thou dirge
 Of the dying year to which this closing night
Will be the dome of a vast sepulchre,
 Vaulted with all thy congregated might

Of vapours, from whose solid atmosphere
Black rain, and fire, and hail, will burst Oh hear!

Thou who didst waken from his summer dreams
The blue Mediterranean, where he lay,
Lulled by the coil of his crystalline streams,
Beside a pumice isle in Baiæ's bay,
And saw in sleep old palaces and towers
Quivering within the wave's intenser day,
All overgrown with azure moss, and flowers
So sweet the sense faints picturing them! Thou
For whose path the Atlantic's level powers
Cleave themselves into chasms, while far below
The sea blooms and the oozy woods which wear
The sapless foliage of the ocean know
Thy voice, and suddenly grow grey with fear
And tremble and despoil themselves Oh hear!

If I were a dead leaf thou mightest bear,
If I were a swift cloud to fly with thee
A wave to pant beneath thy power and share
The impulse of thy strength only less free
Than thou, O uncontrollable if even
I were as in my boyhood, and could be
The comrade of thy wanderings over heaven,
As then, when to outstrip thy skiey speed
Scarce seemed a vision,—I would ne'er have striven
As thus with thee in prayer in my sore need
Oh lift me as a wave, a leaf, a cloud!
I fall upon the thorns of life! I bleed!

A heavy weight of hours has chained and bowed
One too like thee—tameless, and swift, and proud.

Make me thy lyre, even as the forest is
What if my leaves are falling like its own?
The tumult of thy mighty harmonies
Will take from both a deep autumnal tone,
Sweet though in sadness. Be thou, Spirit fierce
My spirit! Be thou me, impetuous one!
Drive my dead thoughts over the universe,
Like withered leaves, to quicken a new birth
And by the incantation of this verse,
Scatter, as from an unextinguished hearth
Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind!
Be through my lips to unawakened earth
The trumpet of a prophecy! O Wind,
If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?

Percy Bysshe Shelley

Curious Observations about the Weather

(Not only to know it for a month, but for ever by one that stiles himself Erra Pater)

To know the Weather by the rising and setting of the Sun.

IF the sun rise red and fiery, expect wind and rain. If at sun rising it be cloudy, and the clouds vanish away as the sun riseth higher, it is a sure sign of fair weather.

Likewise, if the sun setteth red, it is a sign of fair weather If it set in a muddy misty colour, it is a sign of rain

To know the Weather by the Moon

If the Moon shines clear and not compassed about with Mist it will be fair weather

If the Moon be compassed about with a circle, like a great wheel or is misty and dim wind or rain follows, or snow within twenty four hours

To know the Weather by the Stars

The stars more bright than ordinary in summer signifies great winds and wet

If they twinkle or blaze in winter the wind north or east, is a sign of great frost When they are seen to fall or shoot, is a sign of great rain and winds

To know the Weather by the Clouds

If they are round, and of a dapple grey colour, and the wind north or east fair weather for two or three days after

If the clouds appear like towers or rocks, signify great showers

If clouds that are small grow bigger and bigger, it is a sign of much rain But if great clouds waste and grow less, it is a sign of fair weather

If in spring there be north and east winds and great draughts so will the summer quarter be and consequently, scarcity of grass and hay So the contrary will be plenteous of grass and hay for there is as much south and west wind as north and east too, and consequently as many wet years as dry

Old Book

Rain

IT ain't no use to grumble and complain
It's jest as cheap and easy to rejoice
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain
Why, rain's my choice

James Whitcomb Riley

Morning

O WHITE wind of the dawn,
The path that you have trod
From night to day is drawn
From godhead unto God!

Your face is made aware
Of ardour and surprise,
The stars are in your hair,
The Sun is in your eyes

And all my blood is stung
To follow and to find Another world as young
As you are, and as kind

Ah me how more than sweet
To shake off weight of ills,
And follow where your feet
Have danced upon the hills!

Gerald Gould.

Clouds

THE cloud moreover, controls the sun not merely by keeping the custody of his rays but by becoming the counsellor of his temper The cloud veils an angry sun, or, more terribly, lets fly an angry ray, suddenly bright upon tree and tower, with iron grey storm for a background Or when anger had but threatened the cloud reveals him gentle beyond hope It makes peace, constantly, just before sunset

It is in the confidence of the winds, and wears their colours. There is a heavenly game, on south west wind days, when the clouds are bowled by a breeze from behind the evening They are round and brilliant, and come leaping up from the horizon for hours This is a frolic and haphazard sky

All unlike this is the sky that has a centre, and stands composed about it. As the clouds marshalled

he earthly mountains, so the clouds in turn are now ranged The tops of all the celestial Andes aloft are swept at once by a single ray, warmed with a single colour Promontory after league long promontory of a stiller Mediterranean in the sky is called out of mist and grey by the same finger The cloudland is very great, but a sunbeam makes all its nations and continents sudden with light

The Cloud

I BRING fresh showers for the thirsting flowers
From the seas and the streams
I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams
From my wings are shaken the dew that waken
The sweet buds every one,
When rocked to rest on their Mother's breast,
As she dances about the sun
I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
And whiten the green plains under
And then again I dissolve it in rain,
And laugh as I pass in thunder

I sift the snow on the mountains below,
And their great pines groan aghast,
And all the night 'tis my pillow white,
While I sleep in the arms of the Blast

Sublime on the towers of my skiey bowers
Lightning my pilot sits,
In a cavern under is fettered the thunder,
It struggles and howls at fits
Over earth and ocean with gentle motion
This pilot is guiding me,
Lured by the love of the Genii that move
In the depths of the purple sea
Over the rills and the crags and the hills,
Over the lakes and the plains
Wherever he dream under mountain or stream
The Spirit he loves remains
And I all the while bask in heaven's blue smile,
Whilst he is dissolving in rains

The sanguine Sunrise with his meteor eyes,
And his burning plumes outspread
Leaps on the back of my sailing rack,
When the morning star shines dead
As on the jag of a mountain-crag
Which an earthquake rocks and swings
An eagle alit one moment may sit
In the light of its golden wings
And, when Sunset may breathe from the lit sea beneath,
Its ardours of rest and of love,
And the crimson pall of eve may fall
From the depth of heaven above,
With wings folded I rest on mine airy nest,
As still as a brooding dove

That orbèd maiden with white fire laden
Whom mortals call the Moon
Glides glimmering o'er my fleece like floor
By the midnight breezes strewn
And wherever the beat of her unseen feet
Which only the angel hear
May have broken the woof of my tent's thin roof,
The Stars peep behind her and peer
And I laugh to see them whirl and flee
Like a swarm of golden bees,
When I widen the rent in my wind built tent, —
Till the calm rivers, lakes, and seas,
Like strips of the sky fallen through me on high,
Are each paved with the moon and these

I bind the Sun's throne with a burning zone
And the Moon's with a girdle of pearl
The volcanoes are dim and the Stars reel and swim
When the Whirlwinds my banner unfurl
From cape to cape, with a bridge like shape,
Over a torrent sea
Sunbeam proof, I hang like a roof
The mountains its columns be
The triumphal arch through which I march,
With hurricane fire and snow,
When the Powers of the air are chained to my chair,
Is the million coloured bow,
The Sphere fire above its soft colours wove,
While the moist Earth was laughing below

I am the daughter of Earth and Water,
And the nursling of the Sky
I pass through the pores of the ocean and shores,
I change but I cannot die
For after the rain, when with never a stain
The pavilion of heaven is bare
And the winds, and sunbeams with their convex gleams
Build up the blue dome of air,
I silently laugh at my own cenotaph —
And out of the caverns of rain,
Like a child from the womb, like a ghost from the tomb,
I arise, and unbuild it again

Percy Bysshe Shelley

Sussex

GOD gave all men all earth to love,
But since our hearts are small,
Ordained for each one spot should prove
Beloved over all,
That as He watched Creation's birth,
So we, in godlike mood,
May of our love create our earth
And see that it is good

So one shall Baltic pines content,
As one some Surrey glade
Or one the palm grove's droned lament
Before Levuka's trade

Each to his choice, and I rejoice
The lot has fallen to me
In a fair ground—in a fair ground—
Yea, Sussex by the sea!

No tender hearted garden crowns,
No bosomed woods adorn
Our blunt, bow headed whale backed Downs,
But gnarled and writhen thorn—
Bare slopes where chasing shadows skim
And through the gaps revealed
Belt upon belt, the wooded, dim
Blue goodness of the Weald

Clean of officious fence or hedge
Half wild and wholly tame
The wise turf cloaks the white cliff edge
As when the Romans came
What sign of those that fought and died
At shift of sword and sword?
The barrow and the camp abide,
The sunlight and the sward

Here leaps ashore the full Sou' west
All heavy winged with brine,
Here lies above the golden crest
The Channel's leaden line
And here the sea fogs lap and cling,
And here, each warning each,
The sheep bells and the ship bells ring
Along the hidden beach

We have no waters to delight
 Our broad and brookless vales—
Only the dewpond on the height
 Unfed, that never fails,
Whereby no tattered hedgerow tells
 Which way the season flies—
Only our close-bit thyme that smells
 Like dawn in Paradise

Here through the strong unhampered days
 The tinkling silence thrills
Of little lost Down churches praise
 The Lord who made the hills
But here the Old Gods guard their round,
 And, in her secret heart
The heathen Kingdom Wilfrid found
 Dreams as she dwells, apart

Though all the rest were all my share
 With equal soul I'd see
Her nine and thirty sisters fair,
 Yet none more fair than she Choose ye your need from Thames to Tweed,
 And I will choose instead
Such lands as lie 'twixt Rake and Rye
 Black Down and Beachy Head

I will go out against the sun
 Where the rolled scarp retires,
And the Long Man of Wilmington
 Looks naked towards the shires,

And east till doubling Rother crawls
To find the fickle tide
By dry and sea forgotten walls,
Our port of stranded pride

I will go north about the shaws
And the deep ghylls that breed
Huge oaks and old, the which we hold
No more than Sussex weed:
Or south where windy Piddinghoe's
Begilded dolphin veers
And black beside wide banked Ouse
Lie down our Sussex steers

So to the land our hearts we give Till the sure magic strike
And Memory, Use, and Love make live
Us and our fields alike—
That deeper than our speech and thought
Beyond our reason's sway,
Clay of the pit whence we were wrought
Yearns to its fellow clay

God gives all men all earth to love
But since man's heart is small Ordains for each one spot shall prove
Beloved over all
Each to his choice and I rejoice
The lot has fallen to me
In a fair ground—in a fair ground—
Yea, Sussex by the sea!

Rudyard Kipling

The Downs

O BOLD majestic downs smooth, fair and lonely,
O still solitude, only matched in the skies,
Perilous in steep places,
Soft in the level races,
Where sweeping in phantom silence the cloudland flies
With lovely undulation of fall and rise
Entrenched with thickets thorned,
By delicate immature dainty flowers adorned!

I climb your crown and lo! a sight surprising
Of sea in front uprising, steep and wide
And scattered ships ascending
To heaven lost in the blending
Of distant blues, where water and sky divide
Urging their engines against wind and tide,
And all so small and slow
They seem to be wearily pointing the way they would go

The accumulated murmur of soft plashing
Of waves on rocks dashing, and searching the sands
Takes my ear, in the veering
Baffled wind, as rearing
Upright at the cliff to the gullies and rifts he stands
And his conquering surges scour out over the lands,
While again at the foot of the downs
He masses his strength to recover the topmost crowns.

Robert Bridges

The South Country

WHEN I am living in the Midlands
That are sodden and unkind,
I light my lamp in the evening
My work is left behind,
And the great hills of the South Country
Come back into my mind

The great hills of the South Country
They stand along the sea
And it's there walking in the high woods
That I could wish to be
And the men that were boys when I was a boy
Walking along with me

The men that live in North England
I saw them for a day
Their hearts are set upon the waste fells
Their skies are fast and grey
From their castle walls a man may see
The mountains far away

The men that live in West England
They see the Severn strong,
A rolling on rough water brown
Light aspen leaves along
They have the secret of the Rocks,
And the oldest kind of song

But the men that live in the South Country
 Are the kindest and most wise,
They get their laughter from the loud surf
 And the faith in their happy eyes
Comes surely from our Sister the Spring
 When over the sea she flies
The violets suddenly bloom at her feet,
 She blesses us with surprise

I never get between the pines
 But I smell the Sussex air,
Nor I never come on a belt of sand
 But the old place is there
And along the sky the line of the downs
 So noble and so bare

A lost thing could I never find
 Nor a broken thing mend
And I fear I shall be all alone
 When I get towards the end
Who will there be to comfort me
 Or who will be my friend?

I will gather and carefully make my friends
 Of the men of the Sussex Weald
They watch the stars from silent folds
 They stiffly plough the field
By them and the God of the South Country
 My poor soul shall be healed

If I ever become a rich man,
Or if ever I grow to be old,
I will build a house with deep thatch
To shelter me from the cold
And there shall the Sussex songs be sung
And the story of Sussex told

I will hold my house in the high wood
Within a walk of the sea
And the men that were boys when I was a boy
Shall sit and drink with me

Hill Aspirations

ODDLY enough, that desire which we all have at times for wings, or at all events for the power of flight, and which, like other vague and idle promptings, is capable of cultivation and of being made a real source of pleasure, most often comes to me on these great green hills Here are no inviting woods and mysterious green shades that ask to be explored they stand naked to the sky and on them the mind becomes more aerial, less conscious of gravity and a too solid body Standing on one great green hill and looking across vast intervening hollows to other round heights and hills beyond and far away, the wish is more than a wish, and I can almost realise the sensation of being other than I am—a creature

with the instinct of flight and the correlated faculty, that in a little while, when I have gazed my full and am ready to change my place, I shall lift great heron like wings and fly with little effort to other points of view

II On a Favourite Dog

THOU who passest on the path, if haply thou dost mark this monument, laugh not, I pray thee, though it is a dog's grave tears fell for me, and the dust was heaped above me by a master's hands, who likewise engraved these words on my tomb

(J W Mackail's translation)

To Rufus, A Spaniel

RUFUS, a bright New Year! A savoury stew
Bones, broth and biscuits is prepared for you,
See how it steams in your enamelled dish,
Mixed in each part according to your wish

Hide in your straw the bones you cannot crunch—
They'll come in handy for to morrow's lunch
Abstract with care each tasty scrap of meat,
Remove each biscuit to a fresh retreat
(A dog, I judge, would deem himself disgraced Who ate a biscuit where he found it placed),
Then nuzzle round and make your final sweep,
And sleep, replete, your after dinner sleep
High in our hall we've piled the fire with logs
For you, the doyen of our corps of dogs
There when the stroll that health demands is done
Your right to ease by due exertion won,
There shall you come, and on your long haired mat,
Thrice turning round, shall tread the jungle flat,
And, rhythmically snoring, dream away
The peaceful evening of your New Year's day

Rufus! there are who hesitate to own
Merits, they say, your master sees alone
They judge you stupid, for you show no bent
To any poodle dog accomplishment
Your stubborn nature never stooped to learn
Tricks by which mumming dogs their biscuits earn
Men mostly find you, if they change their seat
Couchant obnoxious to their blundering feet
Then, when a door is closed, you steadily
Misjudge the side on which you ought to be;
Yelping outside when all your friends are in,
You raise the echoes with your ceaseless din,
Or always wrong, but turn and turn about,

Howling inside when all the world is out
They scorn your gestures and interpret ill
Your humble signs of friendship and goodwill
Laugh at your gambols, and pursue with jeers
The ringlets clustered on your spreading ears
See without sympathy your sore distress
When Ray obtains the coveted caress
And you, a jealous lump of growl and glare,
Hide from the world your head beneath a chair
They say your legs are bandy—so they are Nature so formed them that they might go far
They cannot brook your music they assail
The joyful quiverings of your stumpy tail—
In short, in one anathema confound
Shape, mind and heart, and all my little hound
Well, let them rail If, since your life began,
Beyond the customary lot of man
Staunchness was yours if of your faithful heart
Malice and scorn could never claim a part
If in your master, loving while you live,
You own no fault or own it to forgive
If, as you lay your head upon his knee,
Your deep drawn sighs proclaim your sympathy
If faith and friendship, growing with your age,
Speak through your eyes and all his love engage
If by that master's wish your life you rule—
If this be folly, Rufus, you're a fool.

Old dog, content you, Rufus, have no fear
While life is yours and mine your place is here.

And when the day shall come, as come it must
When Rufus goes to mingle with the dust
(If Fate ordains that you shall pass before
To the abhorred and sunless Stygian shore),
I think old Charon punting through the dark,
Will hear a sudden friendly little bark,
And on the shore he'll mark without a frown
A flap eared doggie, bandy legged and brown
He'll take you in since watermen are kind
He'd scorn to leave my little dog behind
He'll ask no obol but instal you there
On Styx's further bank without a fare
There shall you sniff his cargoes as they come,
And droop your head, and turn and still be dumb-
Till one fine day half joyful half in fear
You run and prick a recognising ear,
And last, oh rapture! leaping to his hand,
Salute your master as he steps to land

Dick

DICK still lives, and long may he live! As he was never born, possibly he may never die, be it so, he will miss us when we are gone I could say much of him, but agree with the lively and admirable Dr Jortin, when, in his dédication of his Remarks on Ecclesiastical History to the then (1752) Archbishop of Canterbury, he excuses himself for not following the modern custom of praising his Patron by reminding his Grace "that it was a custom amongst the ancients, not to sacrifice to heroes till after sunset I defer my sacrifice till Dick's sun is set

I think every family should have a dog it is like having a perpetual baby it is the plaything and crony of the whole house It keeps them all young All unite upon Dick And then he tells no tales betrays no secrets, never sulks asks no troublesome questions never gets into debt never coming down late for breakfast, or coming in by his Chubb too early to bed—is always ready for a bit of fun, lies in wait for it, and you may, if choleric to your relief kick him instead of someone else who would not take it so meekly, and moreover would certainly not, as he does, ask your pardon for being kicked

Never put a collar on your dog—it only gets him stolen give him only one meal a day and let that as Dame Dorothy Sir Thomas Browne's wife, would say, be rather under" Wash him once a week and always wash the soap out and let him be carefully combed and brushed twice a week

By the bye I was wrong in saying that it was Burns who said Man is the God of the Dog—he got it from Bacon's Essay on Atheism

The Ballad of Jenny the Mare

I'LL sing you a song, and a merry, merry song,
Concerning our Yorkshire Jen,
Who never yet ran with horse or mare,
That ever she cared for a pin

When first she came to Newmarket town
The sportsmen all view'd her around
All the cry was 'Alas, poor wench
Thou never can run this ground!

When they came to the starting post
The Mare look'd very smart
And let them all say what they will
She never lost her start

When they got to the two mile post
Poor Jenny was cast behind
She was cast behind, she was cast behind
All for to take her wind

When they got to the three mile post,
The Mare look'd very pale—
SHE LAID DOWN HER EARS ON HER BONNY NECK
AND BY THEM ALL DID SHE SAIL,

"Come follow me, come follow me,
All you that run so neat,
And ere that you catch me again,
I'll make you all to sweat"

When she got to the winning post,
The people all gave a shout,
And Jenny click'd up her lily white foot,
And jumped like any buck

The Jockey said to her 'This race you have run,
This race for me you have got
You could gallop it all over again,
When the rest could hardly trot!"

(From Euphranor)

The Irish Cob

OH, that ride! that first ride!—most truly it was an epoch in my existence and I still look back to it with feelings of longing and regret People may talk of first love—it is a very agreeable event, I dare say—but give me the flush, and triumph, and glorious sweat of a first ride, like mine on the mighty cob! My whole frame was shaken, it is true, and during one long week I could hardly move foot or hand but what of that? By that one trial I had become free as I may say of the whole equine species No more fatigue, no more stiffness of joints, after that first ride round the Devil's Hill on the cob Oh that cob! that Irish cob!—may the sod lie lightly over the bones of the strongest, speediest, and most gallant of its kind!

It was thus that the passion for the equine race was first awakened within me—a passion which, up to the present time, has been rather on the increase than diminishing It is no blind passion the horse being a noble and generous creature intended by the All Wise to be the helper and friend of man, to whom he stands next in the order of creation

George Borrow

BIRDS, BLOSSOMS, AND TREES

God s jocund lyttel fowles

Old Writer

The trees and the flowers
Shall now be my Friend
The trees and the flowers
That never pretend
They keep to their nature
As quiet and true
They grow to their stature
And bloom in their hue

Mary F Robinson

The holes were already dug and they set to work Winterborne s fingers were endowed with a gentle conjurer's touch in spreading the roots of each little tree resulting in a sort of caress under which the delicate fibres all laid themselves out in their proper directions for growth He put most of these roots towards the south west for he said in forty years time when some great gale is blowing from that quarter the trees will require the strongest holdfast on that side to stand against it and not fall

How they sigh directly we put em upright though while they are lying down they don t sigh at all said Marty

Do they' said Giles I ve never noticed it

She erected one of the young pines into its hole and held up her finger the soft musical breathing instantly set in which was not to cease night or day till the grown tree should be felled—probably long after the two planters should be felled themselves

Thomas Hardy (The Woodlanders)

Who does his duty is a question
Too complex to be solved by me
But he I venture the suggestion
Does part of his that plants a tree

J R Lowell

The Very Birds of the Air

NAY more, the very birds of the air, those that be not hawks, are both so many and so useful and pleasant to mankind, that I must not let them pass without some observations They both feed and refresh him—feed him with their choice bodies and refresh him with their heavenly voices I will not undertake to mention the several kinds of fowl by which this is done, and his curious palate pleased by day, and which with their very excrements afford him a soft lodging at night these I will pass by, but not those little nimble musicians of the air, that warble forth their curious ditties with which nature hath furnished them to the shame of art

As first the lark, when she means to rejoice to cheer herself and those that hear her she then quits the earth, and sings as she ascends higher into the air, and having ended her heavenly employment, grows then mute and sad, to think she must descend to the dull earth, which she would not touch, but for necessity

How do the blackbird and thrassel with their melodious voices bid welcome to the cheerful spring, as in their fixed months warble forth such ditties as no art or instrument can reach to!

Nay, the smaller birds also do the like in their particular seasons, as namely the leverock, the titlark, the little linnet, and the honest robin that loves mankind both alive and dead

But the nightingale, another of my airy creatures, breathes such sweet loud music out of her little instrumental throat that it might make mankind to think miracles are not ceased He that at midnight, when the very labourer sleeps securely, should hear, as I have very often, the clear airs the sweet descants the natural rising and falling the doubling and redoubling of her voice might well be lifted above earth, and say 'Lord, what music hast Thou provided for the saints in heaven, when Thou affordest bad men such music on earth?"

Izaak Walton

The Blackbird

O'er all the birds upon the wing
Between the sunny showers o spring,
Var al the lark a swingèn high,
Mid zing sweet ditties to the sky,
An' sparrers, clust'ren roun the bough,
Mid chatter to the men at plough,
The blackbird, hoppèn down along
The hedge, da zing the gâyest zong

'Tis sweet, wi yeily wal èn eye
To zee the zun when vust da rise
Ar, halen underwood an lops
Vrom new plesh'd hedges ar vrom copse
To snatch oon s nammet down below
A tree whor primruosen da grow,
But ther s noo time the whol dā long
Lik' eyemen wi the blackbird s zong

Var when my work is al a done
Avore the zetten o the zun,
Then blushen Jran da walk along
The hedge to mit me in the drong,
An stāy till al is dim an dark
Bezides the ashen trees white bark
An al bezides the blackbird s shrill
An' runnen eyemen whissle s still

How in my buoyhood I did rove
Wi' pryèn eyes along the drove Var blackbirds' nestes in the quick
Set hedges high, an' green, an thick
Ar clim' al up wi clingen knees
Var crows nestes in swayen trees,
While frighten d blackbirds down below
Did chatter o ther well know'd foe

An' we da hear the blackbirds zing
Ther sweetest ditties in the spring
When nippèn win's na muore da blow
Vrom naithern skies wi' sleet ar snow

But drēve light doust along between
The cluose lo ine hedges, thick an' green,
An' zoo th' blackbird down along
The hedge da zing the gāyest zong

Song

PACK clouds away and welcome day,
With night we banish sorrow
Sweet air, blow soft, mount, larks, aloft
To give my Love good morrow!
Wings from the wind to please her mind,
Notes from the lark I'll borrow
Bird prune thy wing, nightingale sing
To give my Love good morrow
To give my Love good morrow
Notes from them both I'll borrow

Wake from thy nest, Robin red breast,
Sing, birds, in every furrow
And from each hill, let music shrill
Give my fair Love good morrow!
Blackbird and thrush in every bush,
Stare, linnet, and cock sparrow!
You pretty elves, amongst yourselves
Sing my fair Love good morrow
To give my Love good morrow
Sing, birds, in every furrow!

Thomas Heywood

The Green Linnet

BENEATH these fruit tree boughs that shed
Their snow white blossoms on my head,
With brightest sunshine round me spread
Of Spring's unclouded weather
In this sequester'd nook how sweet
To sit upon my orchard seat!
And flowers and birds once more to greet,
My last year's friends together

One have I mark'd the happiest guest
In all this covert of the blest
Hail to Thee, far above the rest
In joy of voice and pinion!
Thou, Linnet! in thy green array
Presiding Spirit here to day
Dost lead the revels of the May,
And this is thy dominion

While birds and butterflies, and flowers
Make all one band of paramours,
Thou, ranging up and down the bowers
Art sole in thy employment,
A Life, a Presence like the air
Scattering thy gladness without care
Too blest with any one to pair,
Thyself thy own enjoyment

Amid yon tuft of hazel trees
That twinkle to the gusty breeze

Behold him perch'd in ecstasies
 Yet seeming still to hover
There, where the flutter of his wings
Upon his back and body flings
Shadows and sunny glimmerings,
 That cover him all over

My dazzled sight he oft deceives—
A brother of the dancing leaves
Then flits, and from the cottage eaves
 Pours forth his song in gushes
As if by that exulting strain
He mock'd and treated with disdain
The voiceless Form he chose to feign
 While fluttering in the bushes

W Wordsworth

Philomela

HARK! ah, the Nightingale!
 The tawny throated!
Hark! from that moonlit cedar what a burst!
What triumph! hark!—what pain!

O Wanderer from a Grecian shore,
Still, after many years, in distant lands,
Still [illegible]ing in thy bewilder'd brain
That [illegible]d, unquench'd, deep sunken, old world pain—

Say, will it never heal?
And can this fragrant lawn
With its cool trees, and night
And the sweet, tranquil Thames,
And moonshine, and the dew,
To thy rack'd heart and brain
Afford no balm?

Dost thou to-night behold
Here through the moonlight on the English grass,
The unfriendly palace in the Thracian wilds?
Dost thou again peruse
With hot cheeks and sear'd eyes
The too clear web, and thy dumb Sister's shame?
Dost thou once more assay
Thy flight, and feel come over thee,
Poor Fugitive, the feathery change
Once more, and once more seem to make resound
With love and hate triumph and agony
Lone Daulis, and the high Cephissian vale?
Listen Eugenia—
How thick the bursts come crowding through the leaves!
Again—thou hearest!
Eternal Passion!
Eternal Pain!

Matthew Arnold.

MY heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk,
Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains
One minute past, and Lethe wards had sunk
'Tis not through envy of thy happy lot
But being too happy in thine happiness,—
That thou, light winged Dryad of the trees
In some melodious plot
Of beechen green, and shadows numberless,
Singest of summer in full throated ease.

O, for a draught of vintage! that hath been Cooled a long age in the deep delved earth,
Tasting of Flora and the country green
Dance, and Provençal song, and sunburnt mirth!
O for a beaker full of the warm South,
Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,
With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
And purple stained mouth
That I might drink, and leave the world unseen,
And with thee fade away into the forest dim

Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
What thou among the leaves hast never known
The weariness, the fever, and the fret
Here, where men sit and hear each other groan;
Where palsy shakes a few sad, last gray hairs,
Where youth grows pale, and spectre-thin, and dies;

Where but to think is to be full of sorrow
And leaden-eyed despairs,
Where Beauty cannot keep her lustrous eyes,
Or new Love pine at them beyond to-morrow

Away! away! for I will fly to thee,
Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
But on the viewless wings of Poesy
Though the dull brain perplexes and retards
Already with thee! tender is the night
And haply the Queen-Moon is on her throne
Cluster'd around by all her starry Fays
But here there is no light,
Save what from heaven is with the breezes blown
Through verdurous glooms and winding mossy ways

I cannot see what flowers are at my feet,
Nor what soft incense hangs upon the boughs,
But, in embalmed darkness, guess each sweet
Wherewith the seasonable month endows
The grass, the thicket, and the fruit-tree wild
White hawthorn, and the pastoral eglantine,
Fast fading violets cover'd up in leaves
And mid-May's eldest child,
The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine,
The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves

Darkling I listen; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Call'd him soft names in many a mused rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath;

Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain
While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
In such an ecstasy!
Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain—
To thy high requiem become a sod

Thou wast not born for death immortal Bird!
No hungry generations tread thee down
The voice I hear this passing night was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown
Perhaps the self same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth when, sick for home
She stood in tears amid the alien corn
The same that oft times hath
Charm'd magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn

Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
To toll me back from thee to my sole self!
Adieu! the fancy cannot cheat so well
As she is fam'd to do deceiving elf
Adieu! adieu! thy plaintive anthem fades
Past the near meadows, over the still stream,
Up the hill side, and now 'tis buried deep
In the next valley glades
Was it a vision, or a waking dream?
Fled is that music —Do I wake or sleep?

John Keats

The Daisies

OVER the shoulders and slopes of the dune
I saw the white daisies go down to the sea
A host in the sunshine, an army in June,
The people God sends us to set our heart free

The bobolinks rallied them up from the dell
The orioles whistled them out of the wood
And all of their saying was, 'Earth it is well!'
And all of their dancing was, "Life thou art good!"

To the Daisy

WITH little here to do or see
Of things that in the great world be,
Sweet Daisy! oft I talk to thee
For thou art worthy
Thou unassuming common place
Of nature with that homely face
And yet with something of a grace,
Which love makes for thee!

Oft do I sit by thee at ease,
And weave a web of similes,
Loose types of things through all degrees,
Thoughts of thy raising

And many a fond and idle name
I give to thee, for praise or blame.
As is the humour of the game,
While I am gazing

A nun demure of lowly port
Or sprightly maiden of love's court,
In thy simplicity the sport
Of all temptations
A queen in crown of rubies dress'd,
A starveling in a scanty vest
Are all, as seem to suit thee best,
Thy appellations

A little Cyclops with one eye
Staring to threaten and defy—
That thought comes next—and instantly
The freak is over
The shape will vanish, and behold!
A silver shield with boss of gold,
That spreads itself, some fairy bold
In fight to cover

I see thee glittering from afar,—
And then thou art a pretty star
Not quite so fair as many are
In heaven above thee!
Yet like a star, with glittering crest,
Self-poised in air, thou seem'st to rest;
May peace come never to his nest
Who shall reprove thee!

Sweet flower! for by that name at last,
When all my reveries are past,
I call thee, and to that cleave fast,
Sweet silent creature!
That breath'st with me in sun and air
Do thou, as thou art wont repair
My heart with gladness, and a share
Of thy meek nature!

William Wordsworth

To Daffodils

FAIR Daffodils, we weep to see
You haste away so soon
As yet the early rising sun
Has not attained his noon
Stay stay,
Until the hasting day
Has run
But to the evensong,
And, having prayed together, we
Will go with you along

We have short time to stay as you,
We have as short a spring
As quick a growth to meet decay,
As you or anything
We die,

As your hours do, and dry
Away,
Like to the summer's rain,
Or as the pearls of morning's dew,
Ne'er to be found again

Robert Herrick

I Wandered Lonely as a Cloud

I WANDERED lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils
Beside the lake beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way
They stretched in never ending line
Along the margin of a bay
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance

The waves beside them danced but they
Out did the sparkling waves in glee
A poet could not but be gay,
In such a jocund company
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude,
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils

William Wordsworth

Perdita's Gifts

PERDITA Here's flowers for you
Hot lavender mints savory, marjoram
The marigold, that goes to bed with the sun
And with him rises weeping these are flowers
Of middle summer, and, I think, they are given
To men of middle age You are very welcome
Camillo I should leave grazing, were I of your flock,
And only live by gazing
Perdita Out, alas!
You'd be so lean, that blasts of January
Would blow you through and through —Now, my fairest friend,
I would I had some flowers o' the spring, that might Become your time of day and yours, and yours
That wear upon your virgin branches yet
Your maidenheads growing O Proserpina,
For the flowers now, that, frighted, thou let'st fall
From Dis's waggon!—daffodils
That come before the swallow dares, and take
The winds of March with beauty, violets, dim

But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes,
Or Cytherea's breath pale primroses,
That die unmarried ere they can behold
Bright Phœbus in his strength a malady
Most incident to maids, bold oxlips, and
The crown imperial lilies of all kinds,
The flower de luce being one! O, these I lack
To make you garlands of and, my sweet friend,
To strew him o'er and o'er

Florizel What! like a corse?

Perdita No, like a bank, for love to lie and play on

Not like a corse or if—not to be buried,
But quick and in mine arms Come take your flowers
Methinks I play as I have seen them do
In Whitsun pastorals sure, this robe of mine
Does change my disposition

Florizel What you do
Still betters what is done When you speak, sweet,
I'd have you do it ever when you sing,
I'd have you buy and sell so so give alms
Pray so, and, for the ordering your affairs,
To sing them too when you do dance, I wish you
A wave o' the sea, that you might ever do
Nothing but that, move still, still so, and own
No other function each your doing,
So singular in each particular,
Crowns what you are doing in the present deeds,
That all your acts are queens

William Shakespeare

To Primroses filled with Morning Dew

WHY do ye weep, sweet babes? can tears
Speak grief in you,
Who were but born
Just as the modest morn
Teem'd her refreshing dew?
Alas, you have not known that shower
That mars a flower,
Nor felt th' unkind
Breath of a blasting wind,
Nor are ye worn with years
Or warp'd as we
Who think it strange to see
Such pretty flowers like to orphans young
To speak by tears before ye have a tongue.

Speak, whimpering younglings and make known
The reason why
Ye droop and weep
Is it for want of sleep
Or childish lullaby?
Or that ye have not seen as yet
The violet?
Or brought a kiss
From that Sweet heart, to this —No, no, this sorrow shown
By your tears shed,
Would have this lecture read

That things of greatest so of meanest worth,
Conceived with grief are, and with tears brought forth

Robert Herrick

Child's Song in Spring

THE silver birch is a dainty lady
She wears a satin gown
The elm tree makes the old church shady,
She will not live in town

The English oak is a sturdy fellow,
He gets his green coat late
The willow is smart in a suit of yellow,
While brown the beech trees wait

Such a gay green gown God gives the larches—
As green as He is good!
The hazels hold up their arms for arches
When Spring rides through the wood

The chestnuts proud, and the lilac's pretty,
The poplar's gentle and tall
But the plane tree's kind to the poor dull city—
I love him best of all!

E. Nesbit.

Under the Oak

LOFTY HUNG boughs of the tall oak a shadowy height over men that take shelter from the fierce heat, fair foliaged, closer roofing than tiles, houses of wood pigeons houses of crickets O noon tide branches, protect me likewise who lie beneath your tresses, fleeing from the sun's rays

Antiphilus

(J W Mackail's translation)

The Woodlands

O'ER READ agen your leaves an flow'rs,
I uonesome woodlands! zunny woodlands!
Here underneäth the dewy show'rs
O warm ur'd spring time zunny woodlands
As when in drong ar oben groun
Wi' happy buoyish heart I roun
The twitt'ren birds a builden roun'
Your high bough'd hedges, zunny woodlands

Ya gie'd me life ya gie'd me joy
Luonesome woodlands, zunny woodlands
Ya gie'd me health as in my plây
I rambled droo ye, zunny woodlands
Ya gie'd me freedom var to rove
In âiry meäd, ar shiady grove,
Ya gie'd me smilen Fanny's love
The best ov al ö't, zunny woodlands.

My vust shrill skylark whiver'd high
 Luonesome woodlands, zunny woodlands
To zing below your deep blue sky
 An' white spring clouds, O zunny woodlands,
An' boughs o' trees that oonce stood here,
Wer glossy green the happy year
That gied me oon I lov'd so dear
 An' now ha lost O zunny woodlands

O let me rove agen unspied,
 Luonesome woodlands zunny woodlands,
Along your green bough'd hedges' zide
 As then I rambled zunny woodlands
An wher the missèn trees oonce stood,
Ar tongues oonce rung among the wood
My memory shall make em good,
 Though you've a lost em zunny woodlands

William Barnes

Tapestry Trees

Oak I am the Roof tree and the Keel
I bridge the seas for woe and weal

Fir High o'er the lordly oak I stand,
And drive him on from land to land

Ash I heft my brother's iron bane,
I shaft the spear and build the wain

Yew Dark down the windy dale I grow,
The father of the fateful Bow

Poplar The war shaft and the milking bowl
I make, and keep the hay warn whole

Olive The King I bless the lamps I trim;
In my warm wave do fishes swim

Apple tree I bowed my head to Adam's will
The cups of toiling men I fill

Vine I draw the blood from out the earth
I store the sun for winter mirth

Orange tree Amidst the greenness of my night
My odorous lamps hang round and bright

Fig tree I who im little among trees
In honey making mate the bees

Mulberry tree Love's lack hath dyed my berries red
For Love's attire my leaves are shed

Pear tree High o'er the mead flowers hidden feet
I bear aloft my burden sweet

Bay Look on my leafy boughs the Crown
Of living song and dead renown!

William Morris

Daphne

I KNOW that face!
In some lone forest place,
When June brings back the laurel to the hills,
Where shade and sunlight lace,

Where all day long
The brown birds make their song—
A music that seems never to have known
Dismay nor haste nor wrong—

I once before
Have seen thee by the shore
As if about to shed the flowery guise
And be thyself once more

Dear shy soft face
With just the elfin trace
That lends thy human beauty the last touch
Of wild, elusive grace!

Can it be true
A god did once pursue
Thy gleaming beauty through the glimmering wood,
Drenched in the Dorian dew,

Too mad to stay
His hot and headstrong way,
Demented by the fragrance of thy flight,
Heedless of thy dismay?

But I to thee
More gently fond would be
Nor less a lover woo thee with soft words
And woodland melody

Take pipe and play
Each forest fear away
Win thee to idle in the leafy shade
All the long summer day

Tell thee old tales
Of love, that still avails
More than all mighty things in this great world
Still wonder works nor fails

Teach thee new lore,
How to love more and more
And find the magical delirium
In joys unguessed before

I would try over
And over to discover
Some wild, sweet, foolish irresistible
New way to be thy lover—

New, wondrous ways
To fill thy golden days,
Thy lovely pagan body with delight,
Thy loving heart with praise.

For I would learn,
Deep in the brookside fern,
The magic of the syrinx whispering low
With bubbly fall and turn

Mock every note
Of the green woodbird's throat
Till some wild strain, impassioned yet serene
Should form and float

Far through the hills
Where mellow sunlight fills
The world with joy and from the purple vines
The brew of life distils

Ah, then indeed
Thy heart should have no need
To tremble at a footfall in the brake
And bid thy bright limbs speed

But night would come,
And I should make thy home
In the deep pines, lit by a yellow star
Hung in the dark blue dome—

A fragrant house
Of woven balsam boughs,
Where the great Cyprian mother should receive
Our warm unsullied vows

Sherwood

SHERWOOD in the twilight is Robin Hood awake?
Grey and ghostly shadows are gliding through the brake
Shadows of the dappled deer, dreaming of the morn,
Dreaming of a shadowy man that winds a shadowy horn.

Robin Hood is here again all his merry thieves
Hear a ghostly bugle note shivering through the leaves,
Calling as he used to call faint and far away,
In Sherwood, in Sherwood about the break of day.

Merry merry England has kissed the lips of June
All the wings of fairyland were here beneath the moon
Like a flight of rose leaves fluttering in a mist
Of opal and ruby and pearl and amethyst.

Merry, merry England is waking as of old
With eyes of blither hazel and hair of brighter gold
For Robin Hood is here again beneath the budding spray
In Sherwood in Sherwood about the break of day.

Love is in the greenwood building him a house
Of wild rose and hawthorn and honeysuckle boughs
Love is in the greenwood dawn is in the skies,
And Marian is waiting with a glory in her eyes.

Hark! The dazzled laverock climbs the golden steep
Marian is waiting — is Robin Hood asleep?
Round the fairy grass rings frolic elf and fay,
In Sherwood, in Sherwood, about the break of day

Oberon, Oberon rake away the gold
Rake away the red leaves, roll away the mould,
Rake away the gold leaves roll away the red
And wake Will Scarlett from his leafy forest bed

Friar Tuck and Little John are riding down together
With quarter staff and drinking can and grey goose feather;
The dead are coming back again — the years are rolled away
In Sherwood, in Sherwood, about the break of day

Softly over Sherwood the south wind blows
All the heart of England hid in every rose
Hears across the greenwood the sunny whisper leap,
Sherwood in the red dawn, is Robin Hood asleep?

Hark! the voice of England wakes him as of old
And shattering the silence with a cry of brighter gold,
Bugles in the greenwood echo from the steep,
Sherwood in the red dawn, is Robin Hood asleep?

Where the deer are gliding down the shadowy glen
All across the glades of fern he calls his merry men
Doublets of the Lincoln green glancing through the May
In Sherwood, in Sherwood, about the break of day

Calls them and they answer from aisles of oak and ash
Rings the Follow! Follow! and the boughs begin to crash,
The ferns begin to flutter and the flowers begin to fly
And through the crimson dawning the robber band goes by

Robin! Robin! Robin! All his merry thieves
Answer as the bugle note shivers through the leaves
Calling as he used to call faint and far away
In Sherwood, in Sherwood, about the break of day

Alfred Noyes

The Poet in the Woods

EV'N in the spring and playtime of the year,
That calls the unwonted villagers abroad
With all her little ones, a sportive train,
To gather king cups in the yellow mead,
And prink their hair with daisies or to pick
A cheap but wholesome salad from the brook,
These shades are all my own The timorous hare
Grown so familiar with her frequent guest
Scarce shuns me, and the stock dove unalarmed
Sits cooing in the pine tree nor suspends
His long love ditty for my near approach
Drawn from his refuge in some lonely elm
That age or injury has hollowed deep,

Where on his bed of wool and matted leaves
He has outslept the winter, ventures forth
To frisk awhile, and bask in the warm sun
The squirrel flippant pert and full of play
He sees me and at once, swift as a bird,
Ascends the neighb'ring beech, there whisks his brush
And perks his ears and stamps and scolds aloud
With all the prettiness of feign'd alarm,
And anger insignificantly fierce

William Cowper

On Solitude

HAIL old patrician trees so great and good!
Hail ye plebeian underwood!
Where the poetic birds rejoice
And for their quiet nests and plenteous food
Pay with their grateful voice

Hail, the poor muses richest manor seat!
Ye country houses and retreat,
Which all the happy gods so love,
That for you oft they quit their bright and great Metropolis above

Here nature does a house for me erect,
Nature the wisest architect
Who those fond artists does despise
That can the fair and living trees neglect,
Yet the dead timber prize

Here let me careless and unthoughtful lying Hear the soft winds above me flying
With all their wanton boughs dispute
And the more tuneful birds to both replying,
Nor be myself too mute

A silver stream shall roll his waters near,
Gilt with the sunbeams here and there
On whose enamel'd bank I'll walk
And see how prettily they smile, and hear
How prettily they talk

Ah wretched, and too solitary he
Who loves not his own company!
He'll feel the weight of 't many a day
Unless he call in sin or vanity
To help to bear 't away

O Solitude first state of human kind!
Which blest remain'd till man did find
Even his own helper's company
As soon as two (alas!) together join'd
The serpent made up three

The god himself, through countless ages thee
His sole companion chose to be,
Thee, sacred Solitude alone,
Before the branchy head of number's tree
Sprang from the trunk of one

Thou (though men think thine an unactive part)
Dost break and tame th unruly heart,
Which else would know no settled pace
Making it more well managed by thy art
With swiftness and with grace

Thou the faint beams of reason s scatterd light,
Dost like a burning glass unite
Dost multiply the feeble heat
And fortify the strength, till thou dost bright
And noble fires beget

Whilst this hard truth I teach methinks I see
The monster London laugh at me,
I should at thee too, foolish city
If it were fit to laugh at misery,
But thy estate I pity

Let but thy wicked men from out thee go,
And all the fools that crowd thee so,
Even thou who dost thy millions boast
A village less than Islington wilt grow
A solitude almost

Abraham Cowley

An Invocation

I NEVER prayed for Dryads to haunt the woods again
More welcome were the presence of hungering, thirsting men
Whose doubts we could unravel whose hopes we could fulfil,
Our wisdom tracing backward the river to the rill
Were such beloved forerunners one summer day restored
Then then we might discover the Muses mystic hoard.

Oh, dear divine Comatas I would that thou and I
Beneath this broken sunlight this leisure day might lie,
Where trees from distant forests whose names were strange to thee,
Should bend their amorous branches within thy reach to be,
And flowers thine Hellas knew not, which art hath made more fair
Should shed their shining petals upon thy fragrant hair

Then thou shouldst calmly listen with ever changing looks
To songs of younger minstrels and plots of modern books

And wonder at the daring of poets later born
Whose thoughts are unto thy thoughts as noon tide is to morn
And little shouldst thou grudge them their greater strength of soul
Thy partners in the torch race, though nearer to the goal

As when ancestral portraits look gravely from the walls
Upon the youthful baron who treads their echoing halls
And whilst he builds new turrets the thrice ennobled heir
Would gladly wake his grandsire his home and feast to share
So from Aegean laurels that hide their ancient urn
I fain would call thee hither my sweeter lore to learn

Or in thy cedarn prison thou waitest for the bee
Ah, leave that simple honey, and take thy food from me
My sun is stooping westward Entranced dreamer, haste
There's fruitage in my garden that I would have thee taste
Now lift the lid a moment now, Dorian shepherd, speak
Two minds shall flow together, the English and the Greek

William Cory

Song

UNDER the greenwood tree,
Who loves to lie with me
And tune his merry throat
Unto the sweet bird's note
Come hither come hither, come hither!
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather

Who doth ambition shun
And loves to live i' the sun,
Seeking the food he eats,
And pleased with what he gets
Come hither come hither, come hither!
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather

William Shakespeare

O Dreamy, Gloomy, Friendly Trees

O DREAMY gloomy, friendly trees
I came along your narrow track
To bring my gifts unto your knees,
And gifts did you give back
For when I brought this heart that burns
These thoughts that bitterly repine,
And laid them here amidst the ferns
And the hum of boughs divine,

Ye, vastest breathers of the air,
Shook down with slow and mighty poise
Your coolness on the human care
Your wonder on its toys,
Your greenness on the heart's despair
Your darkness on its noise

Herbert Trench

A Ballad of Trees and the Master

INTO the woods my Master went
Clean forspent forspent
Into the woods my Master came
Forspent with love and shame
But the olives were not blind to Him,
The little gray leaves were kind to Him
The thorn tree had a mind to Him
When into the woods He came

Out of the woods my Master went,
And He was well content
Out of the woods my Master came,
Content with death and shame
When Death and Shame would woo Him last,
From under the trees they drew Him last
'Twas on a tree they slew Him—last
When out of the woods He came

SUMMER SPORTS AND PASTIMES

A BOY'S PRAYER

God who created me
 Nimble and light of limb
In three elements free
 To run to ride to swim
 Not when the sense is dim
But now from the heart of joy
 I would remember Him
Take the thanks of a boy

CORIDON I will sing a song, if anybody will sing another else, to be plain with you I will sing none I am none of those that sing for meat, but for company I say, "'Tis merry in hall when men sing all"

Piscator I'll promise you I'll sing a song that was lately made at my request by Mr William Basse—one that hath made the choice songs of the 'Hunter in his career and of Tom of Bedlam and many others of note and this that I will sing is in praise of angling

Coridon And then mine shall be the praise of a countryman's life what will the rest sing of?

Peter I will promise you I will sing another song in praise of angling to morrow night for we will not part till then, but fish to morrow and sup together and the next day every man leave fishing and fall to his business.

Venator 'Tis a match and I will provide you a song or a catch against then, too, which shall give some addition of mirth to the company, for we will be civil and as merry as beggars

Piscator 'Tis a match my masters let's e'en say grace, and turn to the fire, drink the other cup to wet our whistles and so sing away all sad thoughts

Come on, my masters, who begins? I think it is best to draw cuts and avoid contention

Peter It is a match Look, the shortest cut falls to Coridon

Coridon Well, then I will begin for I hate contention

CORIDON'S SONG

Oh, the sweet contentment
The countryman doth find!
Heigh trololliе lollie loe,
Heigh trololliе lollie iee
That quiet contemplation
Possesseth all my mind
Then care away,
And wend along with me

For Courts are full of flattery
As hath too oft been tried
Heigh trololliе lollie loe, etc
The city full of wantonness,
And both are full of pride
Then care away, etc

But oh! the honest countryman
Speaks truly from his heart
 Heigh trololliе lollie loe etc
His pride is in his tillage
His horses and his cart
 Then care away etc

Our clothing is good sheep skins
Grey russet for our wives
 Heigh trololliе lollie loe, etc
'Tis warmth, and not gay clothing
That doth prolong our lives
 Then care away, etc

The ploughman though he labour hard
Yet on the holiday
 Heigh trololliе lollie loe, etc
No emperor so merrily
Doth pass his time away
 Then care away, etc

To recompense our tillage
The heavens afford us showers,
 Heigh trololliе lollie loe, etc
And for our sweet refreshments
The earth affords us bowers
 Then care away, etc

The cuckoo and the nightingale
Full merrily do sing,

Heigh trololliе lollie loe, etc
And with their pleasant roundelays
Bid welcome to the spring,
Then care away, etc

This is not half the happiness
The countryman enjoys
Heigh trololliе lollie loe etc
Though others think they have as much,
Yet he that says so lies
Then come away turn
Countryman with me —Jo Chalkhill

Piscator Well sung Coridon! this song was sung with mettle, and it was choicely fitted to the occasion I shall love you for it as long as I know you I would you were a brother of the angle for a companion that is cheerful, and free from swearing and scurrilous discourse, is worth gold I love such mirth as does not make friends ashamed to look upon one another next morning nor men that cannot well bear it, to repent the money they spend when they be warmed with drink and take this for a rule you may pick out such times and such companions that you may make yourselves merrier for a little than a great deal of money, for "'Tis the company and not the charge that makes the feast" and such a companion you prove, I thank you for it

But I will not compliment you out of the debt that

I owe you and therefore I will begin my song, and wish it may be so well liked

THE ANGLER'S SONG

As inward love breeds outward talk
The hound some praise and some the hawk
Some better pleased with private sport,
Use tennis some a mistress court
But these delights I neither wish
Nor envy while I freely fish

Who hunts, doth oft in danger ride
Who hawks, lures oft both far and wide
Who uses games shall often prove
A loser but who falls in love
Is fetter'd in fond Cupid's snare
My angle breeds me no such care

Of recreation there is none
So free as fishing is alone
All other pastimes do no less
Than mind and body both possess
My hand alone my work can do
So I can fish and study too

I care not I, to fish in seas—
Fresh rivers best my mind do please,
Whose sweet calm course I contemplate,
And seek in life to imitate
In civil bounds I fain would keep
And for my past offences weep

And when the timorous trout I wait
To take, and he devours my bait,
How poor a thing sometimes I find,
Will captivate a greedy mind,
And when none bite, I praise the wise,
Whom vain allurements ne'er surprise

But yet though while I fish I fast
I make good fortune my repast
And thereunto my friend invite
In whom I more than that delight,
Who is more welcome to my dish
Than to my angle was my fish

As well content no prize to take,
As use of taken prize to make
For so our Lord was pleasèd, when He fishers made fishèrs of men
Where (which is in no other game)
A man may fish and praise His name

The first men that our Saviour dear
Did choose to wait upon Him here
Bless'd fishers were, and fish the last
Food was that He on earth did taste
I therefore strive to follow those Whom He to follow Him hath chose

Coridon Well sung, brother! you have paid your debt in good coin We anglers are all beholden to the good man that made this song come, hostess, give us more ale and let's drink to him

The Angler's Virtues

NOW for the inward qualities of the minde albeit some writer reduce them to twelve heads which indeed whosoever enjoyeth, cannot chuse but be very compleat in much perfection, yet I must draw them into many more branches The first, and most especial whereof is that a skilful angler ought to be a general scoller and seen in all the Liberal Sciences, as a Crammarian to know how either to write or discourse of his art in true and fitting terms either without affectation or rudeness He should have sweetness of speech, to perswade and entice others to delight in an exercise so much laudable He should have strength of arguments to defend and maintain his profession, against envy or slander

He should have knowledge in the Sun, Moon, and Stars, that by their aspects he may guesse the seasonableness or unseasonableness of the weather, the breeding of storms, and from what coasts the winds are ever delivered He should be a good knower of countries and well used to High wayes that by taking the readiest paths to every Lake, Brook and River, his Journies may be more certain and less wearisome He should have knowledge in propor tions of all sorts, whether Circular, Square, or Diametrical, that when he shall be questioned of his diurnal progresses, he may give a Geographical description of the angles and channels of Rivers, how they fall from their heads, and what compasses they fetch in their several windings He must also have the perfect art of numbring that in the sounding of Lakes or Rivers, he may know how many foot or inches each severally containeth and by adding, subtracting or multiplying the same he may yield the reason of every River's swift or slow current He should not be unskilful in Musick that whensoever either melancholy, heaviness of his thoughts, or the perturbations of his own fancies stirreth up sadness in him he may remove the same with some godly Hymn or Anthem, of which David gives him ample examples

Gervase Markham

The Angler's Poesy

AND I do easily believe that peace and patience and a calm content, did cohabit in the cheerful heart of Sir Henry Wotton, because I know that when he was beyond seventy years of age he made this description of a part of the present pleasure that possessed him as he sat quietly in a summer's evening, on a bank a fishing It is a description of the spring, which, because it glided as soft and sweetly from his pen, as that river does at this time, by which it was then made, I shall repeat it unto you

This day dame Nature seem'd in love
The lusty sap began to move,
Fresh juice did stir th' embracing vines
And birds had drawn their valentines
The jealous trout that low did lie,
Rose at a well dissembled fly
There stood my friend with patient skill
Attending of his trembling quill
Already were the eaves possess'd
With the swift Pilgrim's daubèd nest
The groves already did rejoice
In Philomel's triumphing voice,
The showers were short the weather mild
The morning fresh, the evening smiled
Joan takes her neat rubbed pail, and now
She trips to milk the sand red cow,
Where, for some sturdy foot ball swain,
Joan strokes a syllabub or twain
The fields and gardens were beset
With tulips crocus violet
And now though late, the modest rose
Did more than half a blush disclose
Thus all looks gay and full of cheer,
To welcome the new livery'd year

These were the thoughts that then possessed the undisturbed mind of Sir Henry Wotton Will you hear the wish of another angler, and the commendation of his happy life, which he also sings in verse viz, Jo Davors I sq

Let me live harmlessly and near the brink
Of Trent or Avon have a dwelling place
Where I may see my quill or cork down sink
With eager bite of perch, or bleak or dace
And on the world and my Creator think
Whilst some men strive ill gotten goods t' embrace
And others spend their time in base excess
Of wine or worse, in war and wantonness

Let them that list, these pastimes still pursue
And on such pleasing fancies feed their fill
So I the fields and meadows green may view,
And daily by fresh rivers walk at will,
Among the daisies and the violets blue
Red hyacinth and yellow daffodil,
Purple narcissus like the morning rays,
Pale g inder grass and azure culverkeys

I count it higher pleasure to behold
The stately compass of the lofty sky
And in the midst thereof, like burning gold
The flaming chariot of the world's great eye,
The watery clouds that, in the air up roll'd,
With sundry kinds of painted colours fly,
And fair Aurora, lifting up her head,
Still blushing, rise from old Tithonus' bed

The hills and mountains raisèd from the plains
The plains extended level with the ground
The grounds divided into sundry veins
The veins enclos'd with rivers running round
These rivers making way through nature's chains
With headlong course into the sea profound
The raging sea, beneath the valleys low,
Where lakes and rills and rivulets do flow

The lofty woods, the forests wide and long
Adorn'd with leaves and branches fresh and green,
In whose cool bowers the birds with many a song
Do welcome with their choir the summer's queen
The meadows fair, where Flora's gifts among Are intermix'd with verdant grass between
The silver scalèd fish that softly swim
Within the sweet brook's crystal watery stream

All these and many more of His creation
That made the heavens, the angler oft doth see
Taking therein no little delectation,
To think how strange how wonderful they be!
Framing thereof an inward contemplation
To set his heart from other fancies free,
And whilst he looks on these with joyful eye
His mind is wrapt above the starry sky

Sir, I am glad my memory has not lost these last verses, because they are somewhat more pleasant and more suitable to May day than my harsh discourse

The South Wind

A Fisherman's Blessings

O BLESSED drums of Aldershot!
O blessed South west train!
O blessed blessed Speaker's clock
All prophesying rain!

O blessed yaffil laughing loud!
O blessed falling glass!
O blessed fan of cold gray cloud!
O blessed smelling grass!

O blessed South wind that toots his horn
Through every hole and crack!
I'm off at eight to-morrow morn
To bring us back fishes back!

Old Match Days

THERE was high feasting held on Broad Half penny during the solemnity of one of our grand matches Oh! it was a heart stirring sight to witness the multitude forming a complete and dense circle round that noble green Half the county would be present, and all their hearts with us —Little Hambledon, pitted against all England, was a proud thought for the Hampshire men Defeat was glory in such a struggle—Victory indeed, made us only a little lower than angels" How those fine brawn faced fellows of farmers would drink to our success! And then what stuff they had to drink!—Punch!—not your new Ponche à la Romaine or Ponche à la Groseille, or your modern cat lap milk punch punch be-deviled, but good unsophisticated John Bull stuff —stark!—that would stand on end punch that would make a cat speak! Sixpence a bottle! We had not sixty millions of interest to pay in those days The ale, too!—not the modern horror under the same name that drives as many men melancholy mad as the hypocrites do —not the beastliness of these days that will make a fellows inside like a shaking bog, and as rotten but barley corn, such as would put the souls of three butchers into one weaver Ale that would flare like turpentine– genuine Boniface!—This immortal viand (for it was more than liquor) was vended at twopence per pint The immeasurable villany of our vintners would with their march of intellect (if ever they could get such a brewing), drive a pint of it out into a gallon Then the quantity the fellows would eat! Two or three of them would strike dismay into a round of beef They could no more have pecked in that style than they could have flown had the infernal black stream (that type of Acheron!) which soddens the carcass of a Londoner, been the fertilizer of their clay There would this company consisting most likely of some thousands, remain patiently and anxiously watching every turn of fate in the game, as if the event had been the meeting of two armies to decide their liberty And whenever a Hambledon man made a good hit, worth four or five runs, you would hear the deep mouths of the whole multitude baying away in pure Hampshire —"Go hard!—go hard!—Itch and turn!—itch and turn!" To the honour of my countrymen let me bear testimony upon this occasion also as I have already done upon others Although their provinciality in general, and personal partialities individually, were naturally interested in behalf of the Hambledon men, I cannot call to recollection an instance of their wilfully stopping a ball that had been hit out among them by one of our opponents Like true English men, they would give an enemy fair play How strongly are all those scenes of fifty years by gone painted in my memory!—and the smell of that ale comes upon me as freshly as the new May flowers

The Cricket Ball Sings

LEATHER—the heart o' me, leather—the rind o' me,
O but the soul of me's other than that!
Else, should I thrill as I do so exultingly
Climbing the air from the thick of the bat?

Leather—the heart o me ay, but in verity
Kindred I claim with the sun in the sky
Heroes, bow all to the l ttle red ball,
And bow to my brother ball blazing on h gh

Pour on us torrents of light, good Sun,
Shine in the hearts of my cricketers, shine,
Fill them with gladness and might, good Sun,
Touch them with glory, O Brother of mine,
Brother of mine
Brother of mine
We are the lords of them, Brother and Mate
I but a little ball, thou but a Creat !

Give me the bowler whose finger embracing me
Tingle and throb with the joy of the game
One who can laugh at a smack to the boundary,
Single of purpose and steady of aim
That is the man for me striving in sympathy,
Ours is a fellowship sure to prevail
Willow must fall in the end to the ball—
See like a tiger I leap for the bail

Give me the fieldsman whose eyes never stray from me,
Eager to clutch me a roebuck in pace
Perish the unalert perish the 'buttery,
Perish the laggard I strip in the race
Grand is the ecstasy soaring triumphantly
Holding the gaze of the meadow is grand,
Grandest of all to the soul of the ball
Is the finishing grip of the honest brown hand

Give me the batsman who squanders his force on me,
Crowding the strength of his soul in a stroke,
Perish the muff and the little tin Shrewsbury,
Meanly contented to potter and poke.
He who would pleasure me, he must do doughtily,— Bruises and buffetings stir me like wine
Giants, come all, do your worst with the ball,
Sooner or later you're mine, sirs you're mine

Pour on us torrents of light, good Sun,
Shine in the hearts of my cricketers, shine,
Fill them with gladness and might, good Sun,
Touch them with glory, O Brother of mine,
Brother of mine,
Brother of mine!
We are the lords of them Brother and Mate
I but a little ball thou but a Great

William Beldham's Memories

"WE used to go as eagerly to a match as if it were two armies fighting we stood at nothing if masters allowed the time From our parish to Hambledon is twenty seven miles, and we used to ride both ways the same day, early and late At last, I and John Wells were about building a cart you have heard of tax carts, sir well the tax was put on then, and that stopped us The members of the Hambledon Club had a caravan to take their Eleven about they used once to play always in velvet caps They are so drawn in an old painting Lord Winchelsea's Eleven used to play in silver laced hats, and the fashionable dress was knee breeches and stockings We never thought of knocks and, remember, I played against Browne of Brighton too Certainly, you would see a bump heave under the stocking and even the blood come through but I never knew a man killed now you ask the question, and I never saw any accident of much consequence, in my long experience, though many an all but

"I remember one match when Ring was playing against David Harris, and the game was much against him, Sir Horace Mann was cutting about with his stick among the daisies and cheering every run — you would have thought his whole fortune (and he would often bet some hundreds) was staked upon the game—and as a new man was going in, he went across to Ring, and said Ring, carry your bat through and make up all the runs, and I'll give you £10 a year for life' Well Ring was out for sixty runs and only three to tie, and four to beat and the last man made them It was Sir Horace who took Aylward away with him out of Hampshire but the best bat made but a poor bailiff, we heard

"It was said that David Harris once bowled Tom 170 balls for one run! David was a potter by trade, and in a kind of skittle alley formed between hurdles, he used to practise by bowling four different balls from one end and then picking them up he would bowl them back again His bowling cost him a great deal of practice but it proved well worth his while, for no man ever bowled like David, and he was always first chosen of all the men in England" Nil sine labore remember young cricketers all

"In our days there were no padded gloves I have seen Tom Walker rub his bleeding fingers in the dust! David used to say he liked to rind him

"I believe that Walker, Fennex and myself first opened the Old Players eyes to what could be done with the bat Walker by cutting and Fennex and I by forward play but all improvement was owing to David Harris's bowling His bowling rose almost perpendicular it was once pronounced a jerk it was altogether most extraordinary —For thirteen years I averaged forty three a match, though frequently I had only one innings but I never could half play unless runs were really wanted

Going Down Hill on a Bicycle

A Boy's Song

WITH lifted feet, hands still,
I am poised, and down the hill
Dart with heedful mind
The air goes by in a wind

Swifter and yet more swift
Till the heart, with a mighty lift
Makes the lungs laugh, the throat cry
"O bird, see see, bird, I fly

"Is this, is this your joy,
O bird then I, though a boy,
For a golden moment share
Your feathery life in air!"

Say heart, is there aught like this
In a world that is full of bliss?
'Tis more than skating bound
Steel shod to the level ground

Speed slackens now I float
Awhile in my airy boat
Till when the wheels scarce crawl
My feet to the pedals fall

Alas that the longest hill
Must end in a vale but still,
Who climbs with toil, whereso'er,
Shall find wings waiting there

"With a Swimmer's Stroke"

HOW many a time have I
Cloven with arms still lustier, breast more daring,
The wave all roughened with a swimmer's stroke
Flinging the billows back from my drenched hair
And laughing from my lip the audacious brine
Which kiss'd it like a wine cup rising o'er
The waves as they arose, and prouder still
The loftier they uplifted me and oft
In wantonness of spirit plunging down
Into their green and glassy gulfs and making
My way to shells and seaweed all unseen
By those above, till they waxed fearful then Returning with my grasp full of such tokens
As showed that I had searched the deep Exulting,
With a far dashing stroke, and drawing deep
The long suspended breath again I spurned
The foam which broke around me, and pursued
My track like a sea bird.

REFRESHMENT AND THE INN

But hark! a sound is stealing on my ear
A soft and silvery sound—I know it well
Its tinkling tells me that a time is near Precious to me—it is the Dinner Bell
O blessed Bell! thou bringest beef and beer,
Thou bringest good things more than tongue may tell!
Seared is of course my heart—but unsubdued
Is and shall be my appetite for food

The Respect due to Hunger

I GRANT there is one subject on which it is pleasant to talk on a journey and that is what one shall have for supper when we get to our inn at night The open air improves this sort of conversation or friendly altercation by setting a keener edge on appetite Every mile of the road heightens the flavour of the viands we expect at the end of it How fine it is to enter some old town walled and turreted just at the approach of nightfall or to come to some straggling village, with the lights streaming through the surrounding gloom and then after inquiring for the best entertainment that the place affords, to take one's ease at one's inn! These eventful moments in our lives history are too precious, too full of solid heartfelt happiness to be frittered and dribbled away in imperfect sympathy I would have them all to myself, and drain them to the last drop they will do to talk of or to write about afterwards What a delicate speculation it is, after drinking whole goblets of tea,

"The cups that cheer but not inebriate, and letting the fumes ascend into the brain, to sit considering what we shall have for supper—eggs and a rasher, a rabbit smothered in onions, or an excellent veal cutlet! Sancho in such a situation once fixed upon cow heel, and his choice though he could not help it, is not to be disparaged. Then, in the intervals of pictured scenery and Shandean contemplation, to catch the preparation and the stir in the kitchen—Procul, O procul, este profani! These hours are sacred to silence and to musing, to be treasured up in the memory, and to feed the source of smiling thoughts hereafter. I would not waste them in idle talk.

William Hazlitt

In Praise of Ale

WHEN as the Chilly Rocko blowes
And Winter tells a heavy tale,
When Pyes and Dawes and Rookes and Crows
Sit cursing of the frosts and snowes
Then give me Ale

Ale in a Saxon Rumken then,
Such as will make Grim Malkin prate,
Rouseth up valour in all men,
Quickens the Poet's wit and pen,
Despiseth fate,

Ale that the absent battle fights,
And frames the march of Swedish drum,
Disputes the Prince's lawes and rights,
And what is past and what's to come
Tells mortal wights

Ale that the Plowman's heart up keeps
And equals it with Tyrants' thrones,
That wipes the eye that over weeps,
And lulls in dainty and sure sleeps
His wearied bones

Grandchild of Ceres, Barley's daughter
Wine's emulous neighbour though but stale
Innobling all the Nymphs of water
And filling each man's heart with laughter—
Ha! Ha! give me Ale!

Old Song

A Panegyric upon Excellent Strong Beer, which he drank at the Town of Wich, in Worcester shire, where Salt is made

THOU ever youthful god of wine,
Whose burnish'd cheeks with rubies shine
Thy brows with ivy chaplets crown'd
We dare thee here to pledge around.
Thy wanton grapes we do detest,
Here's richer juice from barley press'd.

Let not the Muses vainly tell,
What virtues in the horse hoof well,
That scarce one drop of good blood breeds
But with mere inspiration feeds
 Oh let them come and taste this beer
 And water henceforth they'll forswear

If that the Paracelsian crew
The virtues of this liquor knew,
Their endless toils they would give o'er
And never use extractions more
 'Tis medicine meat for young and old,
 Elixir, blood of tortur'd gold

It is sublim'd it's calcinate
'Tis rectified precipitate
It is Androgena, Sol's wife
It is the Mercury of life
 It is the quintessence of malt,
 And they that drink it want no salt

It heals it hurts it cures, it kills
Men's heads with proclamations fills
It makes some dumb, and others speak
Strong vessels hold, and crack'd ones leak
 It makes some rich, and others poor
 It makes, and yet mars many a score

The Meditative Tankard

THE parapet balustrade round the roof of Castle Ashby, in Northamptonshire, is carved into the letters, "Nisi Dominus custodiat domum, frustra vigilat qui custodit eam" This is not amiss to decipher as you come up the long avenue some summer or autumn day and to moralise upon afterwards at the little "Rose and Crown at Yardley if such good Homebrewed be there as used to be before I knew I was to die

Marie

THF Lion d'Or at Quimperle
Housed abbots in a holier day,
And yet the vesper bell
Means much in an hostel

Its pensive note moves saint and sinner,
It calls my heart and me to dinner
Whereof the plates are plied
By grace personified

But she who wields the coffee pot
(Smiling on some, on others not),
Ah! she is more divine
Than abbey, church, or shrine

Eyes like a moonbeam, and a face
Where dimples run a joyous race—
My friend, if you could see
How she hath smiled on me!

Ah, that I could for ever stay
In the Lion d'Or at Quimperle!

At the Lepre

"I WISH you could come to our mess at the 'Lepre It's such a dinner! such a table cloth! such a waiter! such a company! Every man has a beard and a sombrero and you would fancy we were a band of brigands We are regaled with wood cocks, snipes, wild swans, ducks robins and owls and οιωνοισι τε πασι for dinner and with three pauls' worth of wines and victuals the hungriest has enough, even Claypole the sculptor Did you ever know him? He used to come to the 'Haunt' He looks like the Saracen's head with his beard now. There is a French table still more hairy than ours, a German table, an American table After dinner we go and have coffee and mezzo caldo at the 'Caffè Greco' over the way Mezzo-caldo is not a bad drink, a little rum, a slice of fresh citron, lots of pounded sugar, and boiling water for the rest Here in various parts of the cavern (it is a vaulted low place), the various nations have their assigned quarters, and we drink our coffee and strong waters, and abuse Guido or Rubens, or Bernini, selon les goûts, and blow such a cloud of smoke as would make Warrington's lungs dilate with pleasure We get very good cigars for a bajocco and a half—that is, very good for us, cheap tobacconalians, and capital when you have got no others M'Collop is here he made a great figure at a cardinal's reception in the tartan of the M'Collop He is splendid at the tomb of the Stuarts, and wanted to cleave Haggard down to the chine with his clay more for saying that Charles Edward was often drunk."

Madeira

I FOUND his worship a jolly, red faced gentleman, of about fifty five he was dressed in a green coat, white corduroy breeches and drab gaiters, and sat on an old fashioned leather sofa, with two small thorough bred English terriers, one on each side of him He had all the appearance of a genuine old English gentleman who kept good wine in his cellar

"Sir," said I, "I have brought you a thousand pounds," and I said this after the servant had retired, and the two terriers had ceased their barking, which is natural to all such dogs at the sight of a stranger

And when the magistrate had received the money, and signed and returned a certain paper which I handed to him, he rubbed his hands, and looking very benignantly at me exclaimed—

"And now, young gentleman, that our business is over perhaps you can tell me where the fight is to take place?'

"I am sorry, sir said I, "that I can't inform you, but everybody seems to be anxious about it ' and then I told him what had occurred to me on the road with the ale house keeper

"I know him' said his worship "he's a tenant of mine, and a good fellow, somewhat too much in my debt, though But how is this young gentleman, you look as if you had been walking? You did not come on foot?"

"Yes, sir I came on foot'

"On foot! Why, it is sixteen miles"

"I shan t be tired when I have walked back"

"You can t ride, I suppose?

"Better than I can walk

'Then why do you walk?'

"I have frequently to make journeys connected with my profession, sometimes I walk, sometimes I ride, just as the whim takes me"

'Will you take a glass of wine?"

"Yes"

"That's right, what shall it be?"

"Madeira"

The magistrate gave a violent slap on his knee "I like your taste" said he "I am fond of a glass of Madeira myself, and can give you such a one as you will not drink every day Sit down, young gentleman you shall have a glass of Madeira, and the best I have'

Thereupon he got up, and, followed by his two terriers, walked slowly out of the room

I looked round the room and, seeing nothing which promised me much amusement I sat down, and fell again into my former train of thought

"What is truth?' said I

"Here it is" said the magistrate, returning at the end of a quarter of an hour, followed by the servant with a tray "here s the true thing, or I am no judge far less a justice It has been thirty years in my cellar last Christmas There," said he to the servant, put it down, and leave my young friend and me to ourselves Now what do you think of it?'

'It is very good" said I

"Did you ever taste better Madeira?'

"I never before tasted Madeira

"Then you ask for a wine without knowing what it is?"

"I ask for it sir, that I may know what it is'

"Well, there is logic in that, as Parr would say you have heard of Parr!'

"Old Parr?

"Yes, old Parr, but not that Parr, you mean the English, I the Greek Parr, as people call him"

"I don't know him.

"Perhaps not—rather too young for that; but were you of my age you might have cause to know him, coming from where you do. He kept school there, I was his first scholar. he flogged Greek into me till I loved him—and he loved me. he came to see me last year, and sat in that chair. I honour Parr—he knows much, and is a sound man."

"Does he know the truth?"

"Know the truth! He knows what's good, from an oyster to an ostrich—he's not only sound but round."

"Suppose we drink his health?"

'Thank you, boy. here's Parr's health, and Whiter's."

"Who is Whiter?"

"Don't you know Whiter? I thought everybody knew Reverend Whiter the philologist, though I suppose you scarcely know what that means. A man fond of tongues and languages quite out of your way—he understands some twenty. what do you say to that?"

"Is he a sound man?'

"Why, as to that, I scarcely know what to say. he has got queer notions in his head—wrote a book to prove that all words came originally from the earth; who knows? Words have roots, and roots live in the earth, but, upon the whole, I should not call him altogether a sound man, though he can talk nearly as fast as Parr."

"Is he a round man?"

"Ay, boy, rounder than Parr I'll sing you a song, if you like, which will let you into his character

'Give me the haunch of a buck to eat and to drink Madeira old
And a gentle wife to rest with and in my arms to fold
An Arabic book to study, a Norfolk cob to ride
And a house to live in shaded trees and near to a river side
With such good things around me and blessed with good health withal
Though I should live for a hundred years for death I would not call

Two Recipes

I The Best Marrow Bone Pye

AFTER you have mixt the crusts of the best sort for pasts, and raised the coffin in such a manner as you please you shall first in the bottome thereof lay a course of marrow of beef, mixt with currants; then upon it a lay of the soules of artichokes, after they have been boyled and are divided from the thistle then cover them with marrow, currants, and great raisins, the stones pickt out then lay a course of potatoes cut in thick slices, after they have been boiled soft, and are clean pilled, then cover them with marrow currants, great raisins, sugar, and cinnamon, then lay a layer of candied eringo roots mixt very thick with the slices of dates; then cover it with marrow, currants, great raisins, sugar, cinnamon, and dates, with a few Damask prunes, and so bake it, and after it is bak't, pour into it, as long as it will receive it, white wine, rosewater, sugar, and cinnamon and vinegar mixt together, and candy all the cover with rosewater and sugar only; and so set it into the oven a little, and serve it forth

II An Excellent Sallet

TAKE a good quantity of blancht almonds, and with your shredding knife cut them grossly, then take as many raisins of the sun clean washt, and the stones pickt out, as many figs shred like the almonds, as many capers, twice so many olives and as many currants as of all the rest, clean washt, a good handfull of the small tender leaves of red sage and spinage mixe all these well together with good store of sugar, and lay them in the bottome of a great dish, then put unto them vinegar and oyl, and scrape more sugar over all then take oranges and lemmons, and paring away the outward pills, cut them into thin slices, then with those slices cover the sallet all over, which done, take the fine thin leaf of the red cole flower, and with them cover the oranges and lemmons all over, then over those red leaves lay another course of old olives, and the slices of well pickled cucumbers, together with the very inward heart of cabbage lettuce cut into slices then adorn the sides of the dish, and the top of the sallet, with more slices of lemmons and oranges, and so serve it up

The Humble Feast

NOW for a more humble Feast, or an ordinary proportion which any good man may keep in his family, for the entertainment of his true and worthy friends, it must hold limitation with his provision and the season of the year, for Summer affords what Winter wants, and Winter is Master of that which Summer can but with difficulty have It is good then for him that intends to Feast to set down the full number of his full dishes, that is, dishes of meat that are of substance, and not empty, or for shew; and of these sixteen is a good proportion for one course unto one messe, as thus, for example First, a shield of Brawn with mustard, Secondly, a boyl'd Capon, Thirdly a boyl'd piece of Beef, Fourthly, a chine of Beef rosted, Fifthly, a Neat's tongue rosted, Sixthly, a Pig rosted, Seventhly, Chewets bak'd, Eighthly, a Goose rosted, Ninthly, a Swan rosted, Tenthly, a Turkey rosted, the Eleventh, a Haunch of Venison rosted, the Twelfth, a Pasty of Venison, the Thirteenth, a Kid with a pudding in the belly, the Fourteenth, an Olive pye, the Fifteenth, a couple of Capons, the sixteenth, a Custard or Dousets. Now to these full dishes may be added Sallets, Fricases, Quelque choses, and devised paste, as many dishes more, which make the full service no less than two and thirty dishes, which is as much as can conveniently stand on one Table, and in one mess, and after this manner you may proportion both your second and third Course, holding fulness in one half of the dishes, and shew in the other, which will be both frugall in the spender, content ment to the guests, and much pleasure and delight to the beholders

The Succedaneum

'TIS here this oval box well fill'd
With best tobacco finely mill'd,
Beats all Anticyra's pretences
To disengage the encumbered senses
"Oh! nymph of Transatlantic fame,
Where'er thine haunt, whate'er thy name,
Whether reposing on the side
Of Orobnoquo's spacious tide,
Or listening with delight not small
To Niagara's distant fall,
'Tis thine to cherish and to feed
The pungent nose-refreshing weed,

Which, whether pulverised it gain
A shady passage to the brain,
Or whether, touch'd with fire, it rise
In circling eddies to the skies,
Does thought more quicken and refine
Than all the breath of all the Nine
Forgive the bard, if bard he be,
Who once too wantonly made free
To touch with a satiric wipe
That symbol of thy power—the pipe,
So may no blight invest thy plums
And no unseasonable rains
And thou, secure from all alarms
Of thundering guns and glittering arms,
Rove unconfined beneath the shade
Thy wide expanded leaves have made,
So may thy victories increase
And fumigation never cease"

William Cowper

Salvation Yeo's Testimony to Tobacco

AH sir, no lie, but a blessed truth, as I can tell, who have ere now gone in the strength of this weed three days and nights without eating and therefore, sir, the Indians always carry it with them on their war parties and no wonder, for when all things were made none was made better than this, to be a lone man's companion, a bachelor's friend, a hungry man's food, a sad man's cordial, a wakeful man's sleep, and a chilly man's fire, sir; while for stanching of wounds, purging of rheum, and settling of the stomach there's no herb like unto it under the canopy of heaven

Charles Kingsley.

If I were King

IF I were King, my pipe should be premier
The skies of time and chance are seldom clear,
We would inform them all with azure weather
Delight alone would need to shed a tear,
For dream and deed should war no more together
Art should aspire, yet ugliness be dear,
Beauty, the shaft should speed with wit for feather,
And love, sweet love should never fall to sere,
If I were King

But politics should find no harbour near
The Philistine should dread to slip his tether
Tobacco should be duty free, and beer
In fact, in room of this the age of leather,
An age of gold all radiant should appear,
If I were King

GARDEN AND ORCHARD

The idle life I lead
Is like a pleasant sleep
Wherein I rest and heed
The dreams that by me sweep.

And still of all my dreams
In turn so swiftly past
Each in its fancy seem
A nobler than the last.

And every eve I say
Nothing my step in bliss
That I have known no day
In all my life like this

Robert Bridges

But in the orchard is a place
Where we may lie and feel the fall
Of apple petals on our face
And drowsing hear the cuckoo's call

The ring dove's melancholy note,
The blackbird's fluting and the hum
Of bees above us more remote
As slumber steals our senses come

F. C. Beeching

Nay, you shall see mine orchard where, in an arbour, we will eat a last year's pippin of my own grafting, with a dish of caraways, and so forth—come, cousin Silence—and then to bed.

Mr. Justice Shallow

My Garden

A GARDEN is a lovesome thing, God wot!
Rose plot,
Fringed pool
Ferned grot—
The veriest school
Of peace and yet the fool
Contends that God is not—
Not God! in gardens! when the eve is cool?
Nay, but I have a sign
'Tis very sure God walks in mine

Thomas Edward Brown

A Garden Song

HERE, in this sequestered close
Bloom the hyacinth and rose,
Here beside the modest stock
Flaunts the flaring hollyhock
Here, without a pang, one sees
Ranks, conditions, and degrees.

All the seasons run their race
In this quiet resting place,
Peach, and apricot, and fig
Here will ripen, and grow big;
Here is store and overplus,—
More had not Alcinous!

Here, in alleys cool and green,
Far ahead the thrush is seen,
Here along the southern wall
Keeps the bee his festival,
All is quiet else—afar
Sounds of toil and turmoil are

Here be shadows large and long
Here be spaces meet for song,
Grant, O garden god that I
Now that none profane is nigh,—
Now that mood and moment please,
Find the fair Pierides!

Austin Dobson

A Sunshiny Day

HERE is a glorious sunshiny day, all the morning I read about Nero in Tacitus, lying at full length on a bench in the garden a nightingale singing, and some red anemones eyeing the sun manfully not far off A funny mixture, all this,

Nero and the delicacy of Spring all very human, however Then at half past one lunch on Cambridge cream cheese, then a ride over hill and dale then spudding up some weeds from the grass, and then, coming in, I sit down to write to you, my sister winding red worsted from the back of a chair, and the most delightful little girl in the world chattering incessantly You think I live in Epicurean ease, but this happens to be a jolly day one isn't always well, or tolerably good the weather is not always clear, nor nightingales singing, nor Tacitus full of pleasant atrocity But such as life is, I believe I have got hold of a good end of it

Edward FitzGerald

The Garden

HOW vainly men themselves amaze,
To win the palm, the oak, or bays,
And their incessant labours see
Crowned from some single herb, or tree,
Whose short and narrow verged shade
Does prudently their toils upbraid,
While all the flowers and trees do close
To weave the garlands of repose!

Fair Quiet, have I found thee here,
And Innocence, thy sister dear?

Mistaken long, I sought you then
In busy companies of men.
Your sacred plants, if here below,
Only among the plants will grow
Society is all but rude
To this delicious solitude

No white nor red was ever seen
So amorous as this lovely green
Fond lovers, cruel as their flame,
Cut in these trees their mistress name
Little, alas! they know or heed,
How far these beauties her exceed!
Fair trees! where'er your barks I wound
No name shall but your own be found

When we have run our passion's heat
Love hither makes his best retreat
The gods, who mortal beauty chase,
Still in a tree did end their race
Apollo hunted Daphne so,
Only that she might laurel grow,
And Pan did after Syrinx speed,
Not as a nymph, but for a reed

What wondrous life is this I lead!
Ripe apples drop about my head,
The luscious clusters of a vine
Upon my mouth do crush their wine;

The nectarine, and curious peach
Into my hands themselves do reach
Stumbling on melons, as I pass,
Ensnared with flowers, I fall on grass

Meanwhile the mind, from pleasure less,
Withdraws into its happiness —
The mind, that ocean where each kind
Does straight its own resemblance find,
Yet it creates, transcending these,
Far other worlds and other seas,
Annihilating all that's made
To a green thought in a green shade

Here at the fountains sliding foot,
Or at some fruit trees mossy root
Casting the body's vest aside,
My soul into the boughs does glide
There, like a bird, it sits and sings,
Then whets and claps its silver wings,
And till prepared for longer flight,
Waves in its plumes the various light

Such was that happy garden state,
While man there walked without a mate
After a place so pure and sweet
What other help could yet be meet!
But 'twas beyond a mortal's share
To wander solitary there
Two paradises are in one,
To live in paradise alone

How well the skilful gardener drew
Of flowers, and herbs, this dial new,
Where, from above, the milder sun
Does through a fragrant zodiac run,
And, as it works the industrious bee
Computes its time as well as we!
How could such sweet and wholesome hours
Be reckoned but with herbs and flowers?

Andrew Marvell

Of Gardens

AND because the breath of flowers is far sweeter in the air, where it comes and goes, like the warbling of music, than in the hand, therefore nothing is more fit for that delight, than to know what be the flowers and plants that do best perfume the air
That which above all others yields the sweetest smell in the air is the violet especially the white double violet, which comes twice a year about the middle of April, and about Bartholomew tide Next to that is the musk rose then the strawberry leaves dying, with a most excellent cordial smell, then the flower of the vines—it is a little dust, like the dust of a bent, which grows upon the cluster, in the first coming forth, then sweet briar, then wallflowers, which are very delightful, to be set under a parlour, or lower chamber window, then pinks and gilliflowers, especially the

matted pink and clove gilliflower then the flowers of the lime tree then the honey suckles, so they be somewhat afar off Of bean flowers I speak not, because they are field flowers, but those which perfume the air most delightfully, not passed by as the rest, but being trodden upon and crushed, are three that is, burnet, wild thyme, and water mints Therefore you are to set whole alleys of them, to have the pleasure when you walk or tread

Of an Orchard

GOOD is an Orchard, the Saint saith
To meditate on life and death,
With a cool well, a hive of bees
A hermit's grot below the trees

Good is an Orchard very good,
Though one should wear no monkish hood,
Right good, when Spring awakes her flute,
And good in yellowing time of fruit

Very good in the grass to lie
And see the network gainst the sky,
A living lace of blue and green
And boughs that let the gold between

The bees are types of souls that dwell
With honey in a quiet cell,
The ripe fruit figures goldenly
The soul's perfection in God's eye

Prayer and praise in a country home,
Honey and fruit a man might come,
Fed on such meats, to walk abroad,
And in his Orchard talk with God

The Apple

THE boy is indeed the true apple eater, and is not to be questioned how he came by the fruit with which his pockets are filled It belongs to him, and he may steal it if it cannot be had in any other way His own juicy flesh craves the juicy flesh of the apple Sap draws sap His fruit eating has little reference to the state of his appetite Whether he be full of meat or empty of meat he wants the apple just the same Before meal or after meal it never comes amiss The farm boy munches apples all day long He has nests of them in the hay mow, mellowing, to which he makes frequent visits

The apple is indeed the fruit of youth As we grow old we crave apples less It is an ominous sign When you are ashamed to be seen eating them on the street when you can carry them in your pocket and your hand not constantly find its way to them when your neighbour has apples and you have none, and you make no nocturnal visits to his orchard, when your lunch basket is without them and you can pass a winter's night by the fireside with no thought of the fruit at your elbow, then be assured you are no longer a boy either in heart or years

John Burroughs

It was one of these delightfully irregular houses where you go up and down steps out of one room into another, and where you come upon more rooms when you think you have seen all there are, and where there is a bountiful provision of little halls and passages and where you find still older cottage rooms in unexpected places, with lattice windows and green growth pressing through them Mine which we entered first, was of this kind, with an up and down roof that had more corners in it than I ever counted afterwards, and a chimney (there was a wood fire on the hearth) paved all round with pure white tiles in every one of which a bright miniature of the fire was blazing Out of this room, you went down two steps into a charming little sitting room, looking down upon a flower garden which room was henceforth to belong to Ada and me Out of this you went up three steps, into Ada's bedroom which had a fine broad window, commanding a beautiful view (we saw a great expanse of darkness lying underneath the stars), to which there was a hollow window seat in which with a spring lock, three dear Adas might have been lost at once Out of this room, you passed into a little gallery, with which the other best rooms (only two) communicated, and so, by a little staircase of shallow steps, with a number of corner stairs in it, considering its length, down into the hall But if, instead of going out at Ada's door, you came back into my room, and went out at the door by which you had entered it, and turned up a few crooked steps that branched off on an unexpected manner from the stairs, you lost yourself in passages, with mangles in them, and three cornered tables, and a Native Hindoo chair, which was also a sofa, a box and a bedstead, and looked in every form, something between a bamboo skeleton and a great bird cage, and had been brought from India nobody knew by whom or when From these, you came on Richard's room which was part library part sitting room, part bed room, and seemed indeed a comfortable compound of many rooms Out of that, you went straight, with a little interval of passage, to the plain room where Mr Jarndyce slept, all the year round, with his window open his bedstead without any furniture standing in the middle of the floor for more air, and his cold bath gaping for him in a smaller room adjoining Out of that, you came into another passage, where there were back stairs, and where you could hear the horses being rubbed down, outside the stable, and being told to Hold up, and Get over, as they slipped about very much on the uneven stones Or you might, if you came out at another door (every room had at least two doors), go straight down to the hall again by half a dozen steps and a low archway, wondering how you got back there, or had ever got out of it

The furniture, old fashioned rather than old, like the house, was as pleasantly irregular Ada's sleeping-room was all flowers—in chintz and paper, in velvet, in needle work in the brocade of two stiff courtly chairs, which stood, each attended by a little page of a stool for greater state, on either side of the fire place Our sitting room was green, and had, framed and glazed, upon the walls, numbers of surprising and surprised birds, staring out of pictures at a real trout in a case, as brown and shining as if it had been served with gravy at the death of Captain Cook, and at the whole process of preparing tea in China, as depicted by Chinese artists In my room there were oval engravings of the months—ladies haymaking, in short waists, and large hats tied under the chin, for June—smooth legged noblemen, pointing, with cocked hats, to village steeples for October Half length portraits in crayons abounded all through the house but were so dispersed that I found the brother of a youthful officer of mine in the china closet, and the grey old age of my pretty young bride, with a flower in her bodice, in the breakfast room As substitutes, I had four angels, of Queen Anne's reign, taking a complacent gentleman to heaven, in festoons, with some difficulty and a composition in needle work, representing fruit, a kettle and an alphabet All the movables, from the wardrobes to the chairs and tables hangings, glasses even to the pincushions and scent bottles on the dressing tables, displayed the same quaint variety They agreed in nothing but their perfect neatness, their display of the whitest linen, and their storing up, wheresoever the existence of a drawer, small or large, rendered it possible, of quantities of rose-leaves and sweet lavender Such.

with its illuminated windows, softened here and there by shadows of curtains shining out upon the starlight night with its light, and warmth, and comfort, with its hospitable jingle, at a distance, of preparations for dinner with the face of its generous master brightening everything we saw and just wind enough without to sound a low accompaniment to everything we heard, were our first impressions of Bleak House

Charles Dickens

With an Armchair

ABOUT the oak that framed this chair of old,
The seasons danced their round delighted wings
Brought music to its boughs, shy woodland things
Shared its broad roof, neath whose green glooms grown bold,
Lovers, more shy than they, their secret told,
The resurrection of a thousand springs
Swelled in its veins, and dim imaginings
Teased them, perchance, of life more manifold
Such shall it know when its proud arms enclose
My Lady Goshawk, musing here at rest,
Careless of him who into exile goes,
Yet, while his gift by those fair limbs is prest,
Through some fine sympathy if nature knows
That, seas between us, she is still his guest

Old Homes

OLD homes among the hills! I love their gardens,
Their old rock fences, that our day inherits
Their doors, round which the great trees stand like wardens,
Their paths, down which the shadows march like spirits
Broad doors and paths that reach bird haunted gardens

I see them gray among their ancient acres,
Severe of front, their gables lichen sprinkled,
Like gentle hearted solitary Quakers,
Grave and religious with kind faces wrinkled,
Serene among their memory hallowed acres

Their gardens, banked with roses and with lilies—
Those sweet aristocrats of all the flowers—
Where Springtime mints her gold in daffodillies,
And Autumn coins her marigolds in showers,
And all the hours are toilless as the lilies

I love their orchards where the gay woodpecker
Flits flashing o'er you, like a winged jewel
Their woods, whose floors of moss the squirrels checker
With half hulled nuts and where, in cool renewal,
The wild brooks laugh, and raps the red woodpecker

Old homes! old hearts! Upon my soul forever
Their peace and gladness lie like tears and laughter,

Like love they touch me, through the years that sever,
With simple faith like friendship, draw me after
The dreamy patience that is theirs forever

A Country Sunday with Sir Roger de Coverley

Αθανάτους μὲν πρωτα θεους νόμῳ ως διάκειται
Τίμα— Pythag

First in obedience to thy country's rites
Worship th immortal gods

I AM always very well pleased with a country Sunday and think if keeping holy the seventh day were only a human institution, it would be the best method that could have been thought of for the polishing and civilising of mankind It is certain the country people would soon degenerate into a kind of savages and barbarians were there not such frequent returns of a stated time in which the whole village meet together with their best faces and in their cleanliest habits, to converse with one another upon indifferent subjects, hear their duties explained to them, and join together in adoration of the Supreme Being Sunday clears away the rust of the whole week, not only as it refreshes in their minds the notions of religion, but as it puts both the sexes upon appearing in their most agreeable forms, and exerting all such qualities as are apt to give them a figure in the eye of the village A country fellow distinguishes himself as much in the churchyard, as a citizen does upon the 'Change, the whole parish politics being generally discussed in that place either after sermon or before the bell rings

My friend Sir Roger, being a good churchman, has beautified the inside of his church with several texts of his own choosing He has likewise given a handsome pulpit cloth, and railed in the communion table at his own expense He has often told me that at his coming to his estate he found his parishioners very irregular and that, in order to make them kneel and join in the responses, he gave every one of them a hassock and a common Prayer book and at the same time employed an itinerant singing master, who goes about the country for that purpose, to instruct them rightly in the tunes of the Psalms upon which they now very much value themselves, and indeed outdo most of the country churches that I have ever heard

As Sir Roger is landlord to the whole congregation, he keeps them in very good order, and will suffer no body to sleep in it besides himself, for if by chance he has been surprised into a short nap at sermon, upon recovering out of it he stands up and looks about him, and if he sees anybody else nodding, either wakes them himself or sends his servant to them Several other of the old knight's particularities break out upon these occasions. Sometimes he will be lengthening out a verse in the singing Psalms half a minute after the rest of the congregation have done with it sometimes when he is pleased with the matter of his devotion, he pronounces amen three or four times to the same prayer, and sometimes stands up when everybody else is upon their knees, to count the congregation, or see if any of his tenants are missing

I was yesterday very much surprised to hear my old friend in the midst of the service calling out to one John Matthews to mind what he was about, and not disturb the congregation This John Matthews, it seems, is remarkable for being an idle fellow, and at that time was kicking his heels for his diversion This authority of the knight, though exerted in that odd manner which accompanies him in all circumstances of life, has a very good effect upon the parish, who are not polite enough to see anything ridiculous in his behaviour besides that the general good sense and worthiness of his character make his friends observe these little singularities as foils that rather set off than blemish his good qualities

As soon as the sermon is finished, nobody presumes to stir till Sir Roger is gone out of the church The knight walks down from his seat in the chancel between a double row of his tenants that stand bowing to him on each side and every now and then inquires how such a one's wife, or mother, or son, or father, do, whom he does not see in church, which is understood as a secret reprimand to the person that is absent

The chaplain has often told me that upon a cate

chising day, when Sir Roger has been pleased with a boy that answers well, he has ordered a Bible to be given him next day for his encouragement, and sometimes accompanies it with a flitch of bacon to his mother Sir Roger has likewise added five pounds a year to the clerk's place, and, that he may encourage the young fellows to make themselves perfect in the Church service, has promised, upon the death of the present incumbent, who is very old, to bestow it according to merit

Joseph Addison.

MUSIC BENEATH A BRANCH

He [the poet] doth not only show you the way but giveth so sweet a prospect into the way as will entice any man to enter into it nay he doth as if your journey should lie through a fair vineyard at the very first give you a cluster of grapes that full of that taste you may long to pass farther He cometh to you with words set in delightful proportion and with a tale, forsooth, he cometh unto you with a tale which holdeth children from play and old men from the chimney corner

Sir Philip Sidney

The Scholar Gipsy

GO, for they call you, Shepherd, from the hill
Go, Shepherd, and untie the wattled cotes!
No longer leave thy wistful flock unfed
Nor let thy bawling fellows rack their throats,
Nor the cropp'd grasses shoot another head
But when the fields are still
And the tired men and dogs all gone to rest,
And only the white sheep are sometimes seen
Cross'd and recross the strips of moon blanch'd green,
Come, Shepherd, and again begin the quest

Here, where the reaper was at work of late
In this high field's dark corner, where he leaves
His coat, his basket, and his earthen cruse,
And in the sun all morning binds the sheaves,
Then here, at noon comes back his stores to use,
Here will I sit and wait,
While to my ear from uplands far away
The bleating of the folded flocks is borne,
With distant cries of reapers in the corn—
All the live murmur of a summer's day

Screen'd is this nook o'er the high, half reap'd field,
And here till sun down, Shepherd! will I be Through the thick corn the scarlet poppies peep
And round green roots and yellowing stalks I see
Pale blue convolvulus in tendrils creep,
And air swept lindens yield
Their scent and rustle down their perfum'd showers
Of bloom on the bent grass where I am laid
And bower me from the August sun with shade
And the eye travels down to Oxford's towers

And near me on the grass lies Glanvil's book—
Come, let me read the oft read tale again,
The story of that Oxford scholar poor
Of piegnant parts and quick inventive brain,
Who tir'd of knocking at Preferment's door
One summer morn forsook
His friends and went to learn the Cipsy lore,
And roam'd the world with that wild brotherhood,
And came, as most men deem'd, to little good
But came to Oxford and his friends no more

But once years after in the country lanes
Two scholars, whom at college erst he knew,
Met him and of his way of life enquir'd
Whereat he answer'd, that the Cipsy crew,
His mates, had arts to rule as they desir'd
The workings of men's brains,
And they can bind them to what thoughts they will
"And I" he said "the secret of their art,

When fully learn'd, will to the world impart
But it needs happy moments for this skill'

This said, he left them, and return'd no more,
But rumours hung about the country side,
That the lost Scholar long was seen to stray,
Seen by rare glimpses pensive and tongue tied,
In hat of antique shape, and cloak of grey,
The same the Gipsies wore
Shepherds had met him on the Hurst in spring
At some lone alehouse in the Berkshire moors
On the warm ingle bench the smock frock'd boors
Had found him seated at their entering,

But, mid their drink and clatter he would fly
And I myself seem half to know thy looks,
And put the shepherds Wanderer! on thy trace
And boys who in lone wheatfields scare the rooks
I ask if thou hast pass'd their quiet place
Or in my boat I lie
Moor'd to the cool bank in the summer heats
Mid wide grass meadows which the sunshine fills
And watch the warm, green muffled Cumner hills
And wonder if thou haunt'st their shy retreats

For most, I know, thou lov'st retired ground!
Thee, at the ferry, Oxford riders blithe
Returning home on summer nights, have met
Crossing the stripling Thames at Bab lock lithe, Trailing in the cool stream thy fingers wet,
As the slow punt swings round

And leaning backwards in a pensive dream,
And fostering in thy lap a heap of flowers
Pluck'd in shy fields and distant woodland bowers,
And thine eyes resting on the moonlit stream

And then they land, and thou art seen no more
Maidens, who from the distant hamlets come
To dance around the Fyfield elm in May
Oft through the darkening fields have seen thee roam,
Or cross a stile into the public way
Oft thou hast given them store
Of flowers—the frail leaf'd white anemone—
Dark bluebells drench'd with dews of summer eves—
And purple orchises with spotted leaves—
But none hath words she can report of thee

And above Godstow Bridge, when hay time's here
In June and many a scythe in sunshine flames,
Men who through those wide fields of breezy grass
Where black wing'd swallows haunt the glittering Thames,
To bathe in the abandon'd lasher pass,
Have often pass'd thee near Sitting upon the river bank o'ergrown
Mark'd thine outlandish garb, thy figure spare,
Thy dark vague eyes, and soft abstracted air,
But, when they came from bathing, thou wert gone!

At some lone homestead in the Cumner hills,
Where at her open door the housewife darns
Thou hast been seen, or hanging on a gate
To watch the threshers in the mossy barns
Children, who early range these slopes and late
For cresses from the rills,
Have known thee watching all in April day,
The springing pastures and the feeding kine,
And mark'd thee, when the stars come out and shine,
Through the long dewy grass move slow away

In Autumn on the skirts of Bagley Wood—
Where most the Gipsies by the turf edg'd way
Pitch their smok'd tents, and every bush you see
With scarlet patches tagg'd and shreds of grey,
Above the forest ground call'd Thessaly —
The blackbird, picking food,
Sees thee, nor stops his meal nor fears at all
So often has he known thee past him stray,
Rapt, twirling in thy hand a wither'd spray,
And waiting for the spark from Heaven to fall

And once, in winter, on the causeway chill
Where home through flooded fields foot travellers go,
Have I not pass'd thee on the wooden bridge,
Wrapt in thy cloak and battling with the snow,
Thy face towards Hinksey and its wintry ridge?
And thou hast climb'd the hill,

And gain'd the white brow of the Cumner range,
Turn'd once to watch, while thick the snowflakes fall,
The line of festal light in Christ Church hall—
Then sought thy straw in some sequester'd grange

But what—I dream! Two hundred years are flown
Since first thy story ran through Oxford halls,
And the grave Glanvil did the tale inscribe
That thou wert wander'd from the studious walls
To learn strange arts, and join a Gipsy tribe,
And thou from earth art gone
Long since, and in some quiet churchyard laid—
Some country nook where o'er thy unknown grave
Tall grasses and white flowering nettles wave,
Under a dark, red fruited yew tree's shade

—No, no, thou hast not felt the lapse of hour!
For what wears out the life of mortal men?
'Tis that from change to change their being rolls,
'Tis that repeated shocks, again, again,
Exhaust the energy of strongest souls
And numb the elastic powers
Till having us'd our nerves with bliss and teen,
And tir'd upon a thousand schemes our wit,
To the just pausing Genius we remit
Our worn out life, and are—what we have been

Thou hast not liv'd, why should'st thou perish, so?
Thou hadst one aim, one business, one desire,
Else wert thou long since number'd with the dead!

Else hadst thou spent, like other men thy fire
The generations of thy peers are fled,
And we ourselves shall go;
But thou possessest an immortal lot,
And we imagine thee exempt from age
And living as thou liv'st on Glanvil's page,
Because thou hadst—what we alas! have not

For early didst thou leave the world, with powers
Fresh, undiverted to the world without Firm to their mark, not spent on other things
Free from the sick fatigue the languid doubt,
Which much to have tried, in much been baffled, brings
O Life unlike to ours!
Who fluctuate idly without term or scope
Of whom each strives, nor knows for what he strives
And each half lives a hundred different lives;
Who wait like thee, but not, like thee, in hope

Thou waitest for the spark from heaven! and we Light half believers of our casual creeds,
Who never deeply felt, nor clearly will'd,
Whose insight never has born fruit in deeds,
Whose vague resolves never have been fulfill'd
For whom each year we see
Breeds new beginnings, disappointments new;
Who hesitate and falter life away
And lose to-morrow the ground won to day—
Ah! do not we, Wanderer! await it too?

Yes, we await it, but it still delays,
And then we suffer! and amongst us One,
Who most has suffer'd, takes dejectedly
His seat upon the intellectual throne,
And all his store of sad experience he Lays bare of wretched days
Tells us his misery's birth and growth and signs,
And how the dying spark of hope was fed,
And how the breast was sooth'd, and how the head,
And all his hourly varied anodynes

This for our wisest and we others pine,
And wish the long unhappy dream would end
And waive all claim to bliss, and try to bear
With close lipp'd Patience for our only friend,
Sad Patience, too near neighbour to Despair—
But none has hope like thine!
Thou through the fields and through the woods dost stray,
Roaming the country side a truant boy,
Nursing thy project in unclouded joy,
And every doubt long blown by time away

O born in days when wits were fresh and clear,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames,
Before this strange disease of modern life,
With its sick hurry, its divided aims,
Its head o'ertax'd, its palsied hearts, was rife—
Fly hence, our contact fear!

Still fly, plunge deeper in the bowering wood!
Averse, as Dido did with gesture stern
From her false friend's approach in Hades turn,
Wave us away, and keep thy solitude!

Still nursing the unconquerable hope
Still clutching the inviolable shade,
With a free, onward impulse brushing through,
By night, the silver'd branches of the glade—
Far on the forest skirts, where none pursue,
On some mild pastoral slope
Emerge, and resting on the moonlit pales
Freshen thy flowers as in former years
With dew, or listen with enchanted ears,
From the dark dingles, to the nightingales!

But fly our paths, our feverish contact fly!
For strong the infection of our mental strife
Which, though it gives no bliss yet spoils for rest
And we should win thee from thy own fair life,
Like us distracted, and like us unblest
Soon, soon thy cheer would die,
Thy hopes grow timorous, and unfix'd thy powers,
And thy clear aims be cross and shifting made,
And then thy glad perennial youth would fade,
Fade, and grow old at last, and die like ours

Then fly our greetings, fly our speech and smiles!
—As some grave Tyrian trader from the sea,
Descried at sunrise an emerging prow

Lifting the cool hair'd creepers stealthily,
The fringes of a southward facing brow
Among the Ægæan Isles,
And saw the merry Grecian coaster come,
Freighted with amber grapes, and Chian wine,
Green bursting figs, and tunnies steep'd in brine,
And knew the intruders on his ancient home,

The young light hearted Masters of the waves—
And snatch'd his rudder, and shook out more sail
And day and night held on indignantly
O'er the blue Midland waters with the gale,
Betwixt the Syrtes and soft Sicily,
To where the Atlantic raves
Outside the Western Straits, and unbent sails
There, where down cloudy cliffs, through sheets of foam,
Shy traffickers, the dark Iberians come
And on the beach undid his corded bales

Matthew Arnold

L Allegro

HENCE, loathéd Melancholy,
Of Cerberus and blackest Midnight born
In Stygian cave forlorn,
'Mongst horrid shapes, and shrieks, and sights unholy!

Find out some uncouth cell
Where brooding Darkness spreads his jealous wings
And the night raven sings
There, under ebon shades and low browed rocks
As ragged as thy locks
In dark Cimmerian desert ever dwell
But come, thou goddess fair and free,
In heaven yclept Euphrosyne,
And by men heart easing Mirth
Whom lovely Venus, at a birth
With two sister Graces more,
To ivy crowned Bacchus bore
Or whether (as some sager sing)
The frolic wind that breathes the spring,
Zephyr, with Aurora playing,
As he met her once a Maying,
There, on beds of violets blue
And fresh blown roses washed in dew
Filled her with thee a daughter fair,
So buxom, blithe, and debonair
Haste thee nymph, and bring with thee
Jest, and youthful Jollity,
Quips, and Cranks, and wanton Wiles
Nods, and Becks, and wreathed Smiles
Such as hang on Hebe s cheek
And love to live in dimple sleek
Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
And Laughter holding both his sides.
Come, and trip it, as you go
On the light fantastic toe,

And in thy right hand lead with thee
The mountain nymph, sweet Liberty,
And, if I give thee honour due,
Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
To live with her, and live with thee,
In unreprovéd pleasures free —
To hear the lark begin his flight,
And, singing, startle the dull night
From his watch tower in the skies,
Till the dappled dawn doth rise,
Then to come, in spite of sorrow,
And at my window bid good morrow
Through the sweet briar, or the vine,
Or the twisted eglantine,
While the cock, with lively din,
Scatters the rear of darkness thin,
And to the stack, or the barn door,
Stoutly struts his dames before,
Oft listening how the hounds and horn
Cheerly rouse the slumbering morn,
From the side of some hoar hill,
Through the high wood echoing shrill,
Sometime walking, not unseen,
By hedgerow elms, on hillocks green,
Right against the eastern gate
Where the great sun begins his state
Robed in flames and amber light,
The clouds in thousand liveries dight,
While the ploughman, near at hand,
Whistles o'er the furrowed land,

And the milkmaid singeth blithe,
And the mower whets his scythe,
And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the dale
Straight mine eye hath caught new pleasures
Whilst the landscape round it measures
Russet lawns, and fallows gray,
Where the nibbling flocks do stray,
Mountains, on whose barren breast
The labouring clouds do often rest
Meadows trim, with daisies pied,
Shallow brooks and rivers wide
Towers and battlements it sees
Bosomed high in tufted trees,
Where, perhaps some beauty lies
The cynosure of neighbouring eyes
Hard by, a cottage chimney smokes
From betwixt two aged oaks
Where Corydon and Thyrsis met,
Are at their savoury dinner set
Of herbs and other country messes,
Which the neat handed Phillis dresses,
And then in haste her bower she leaves,
With Thestylis to bind the sheaves,
Or, if the earlier season lead
To the tanned haycock in the mead
Sometimes, with secure delight,
The upland hamlets will invite,
When the merry bells ring round
And the jocund rebecks sound

To many a youth and many a maid
Dancing in the checkered shade
And young and old come forth to play
On a sunshine holyday,
Till the livelong daylight fail
Then to the spicy nut brown ale,
With stories told of many a feat
How fairy Mab the junkets eat
She was pinched, and pulled, she said
And he by friar's lantern led,
Tells how the drudging goblin sweat
To earn his cream bowl duly set,
When, in one night, ere glimpse of morn,
His shadowy flail hath threshed the corn
That ten day labourers could not end,
Then lies him down the lubber fiend,
And, stretched out all the chimney's length,
Basks at the fire his hairy strength,
And crop full, out of doors he flings,
Ere the first cock his matin rings
Thus done the tales to bed they creep
By whispering winds soon lulled asleep
Towered cities please us then,
And the busy hum of men,
Where throngs of knights and barons bold,
In weeds of peace, high triumphs hold,
With store of ladies, whose bright eyes
Rain influence, and judge the prize
Of wit or arms, while both contend
To win her grace whom all commend

There let Hymen oft appear
In saffron robe, with taper clear,
And pomp, and feast, and revelry,
With mask and antique pageantry,
Such sights as youthful poets dream
On summer eves by haunted stream
Then to the well trod stage anon
If Jonson's learned sock be on,
Or sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child
Warble his native wood notes wild,
And ever, against eating cares,
Lap me in soft Lydian airs
Married to immortal verse,
Such as the meeting soul may pierce
In notes with many a winding bout
Of linkéd sweetness long drawn out,
With wanton heed and giddy cunning,
The melting voice through mazes running
Untwisting all the chains that tie
The hidden soul of harmony
That Orpheus' self may heave his head,
From golden slumber on a bed
Of heaped Elysian flowers, and hear
Such strains as would have won the ear
Of Pluto to have quite set free
His half regained Eurydice
These delights if thou canst give,
Mirth, with thee I mean to live

John Milton.

Song

RARELY, rarely comest thou
Spirit of Delight!
Wherefore hast thou left me now
Many a day and night?
Many a weary night and day
'Tis since thou art fled away

How shall ever one like me
Win thee back again?
With the joyous and the free
Thou wilt scoff at pain
Spirit false! thou hast forgot
All but those who need thee not

As a lizard with the shade
Of a trembling leaf,
Thou with sorrow art dismayed;
Even the sighs of grief
Reproach thee that thou art not near
And reproach thou wilt not hear

Let me set my mournful ditty
To a merry measure
Thou wilt never come for pity
Thou wilt come for pleasure
Pity then will cut away
Those cruel wings, and thou wilt stay

I love all that thou lovest
 Spirit of Delight!
The fresh Earth in new leaves dressed
 And the starry night,
Autumn evening and the morn
When the golden mists are born

I love snow, and all the forms
 Of the radiant frost
I love waves, and winds and storms—
 Everything almost
Which is Nature's, and may be Untainted by man's misery

I love tranquil solitude,
 And such society
As is quiet, wise and good,
 Between thee and me
What difference? But thou dost possess
The things I seek not love them less

I love I ove— hough he has wings
 And like light can flee
But above all other things,
 Spirit I love thee—
Thou art love and life! Oh come
Make once more my heart thy home!

Percy Bysshe Shelley

In the Highlands

IN the highlands, in the country places,
Where the old plain men have rosy faces,
And the young fair maidens
Quiet eyes,
Where essential silence cheers and blesses,
And for ever in the hill recesses
Her more lovely music
Broods and dies

O to mount again where erst I haunted,
Where the old red hills are bird-enchanted,
And the low green meadows
Bright with sward
And when even dies, the million tinted
And the night has come and planets glinted,
Lo, the valley hollow
Lamp bestarred!

O to dream O to awake and wander
There, and with delight to take and render Through the trance of silence
Quiet breath;
Lo! for there, among the flowers and grasses,
Only the mightier movement sounds and passes
Only winds and rivers,
Life and Death

Robert Louis Stevenson.

BEHOLD her, single in the field,
Yon solitary Highland Lass!
Reaping and singing by herself,
Stop here or gently pass!
Alone she cuts and binds the grain,
And sings a melancholy strain
O listen! for the Vale profound
Is overflowing with the sound

No Nightingale did ever chaunt
More welcome notes to weary bands
Of travellers in some shady haunt
Among Arabian sands
A voice so thrilling ne'er was heard
In spring time from a Cuckoo bird,
Breaking the silence of the seas
Among the farthest Hebrides

Will no one tell me what she sings?
Perhaps the plaintive numbers flow
For old, unhappy, far off things,
And battles long ago
Or is it some more humble lay,
Familiar matter of to day?
Some natural sorrow, loss, or pain,
That has been, and may be again?

Whate'er the theme, the Maiden sang
As if her song could have no ending,

I saw her singing at her work,
And o'er the sickle bending,—
I listened, motionless and still,
And, as I mounted up the hill,
The music in my heart I bore,
Long after it was heard no more

William Wordsworth

Ruth

SHE stood breast high among the corn,
Clasped by the golden light of morn,
Like the sweetheart of the sun,
Who many a glowing kiss had won

On her cheek an autumn flush
Deeply ripened —such a blush
In the midst of brown was born,
Like red poppies grown with corn

Round her eyes her tresses fell,
Which were blackest none could tell
But long lashes veiled a light,
That had else been all too bright

And her hat, with shady brim
Made her tressy forehead dim
Thus she stood amid the stooks,
Praising God with sweetest looks

Sure, I said, Heav'n did not mean,
Where I reap thou shouldst but glean
Lay thy sheaf adown and come
Share my harvest and my home

Thomas Hood

Cadmus and Harmonia

FAR, far from here,
The Adriatic breaks in a warm bay
Among the green Illyrian hills and there
The sunshine in the happy glens is fair,
And by the sea and in the brakes
The grass is cool, the sea side air
Buoyant and fresh the mountain flowers
More virginal and sweet than ours

And there, they say, two bright and aged Snakes,
Who once were Cadmus and Harmonia,
Bask in the glens or on the warm sea shore,
In breathless quiet, after all their ills
Nor do they see their country, nor the place
Where the Sphinx lived among the flowering hills,
Nor the unhappy palace of their race,
Nor Thebes, nor the Ismenus, any more

There those two live, far in the Illyrian brakes
They had stay'd long enough to see,

In Thebes, the billow of calamity
Over their own dear children roll'd,
Curse upon curse, pang upon pang,
For years, they sitting helpless in their home,
A grey old man and woman, yet of old
The gods had to their marriage come,
And at the banquet all the Muses sang

Therefore they did not end their days
In sight of blood but were rapt far away,
To where the west wind plays
And murmurs of the Adriatic come
To those untrodden mountain lawns, and there
Placed safely in changed forms the Pair
Wholly forget their first sad life, and home
And all that Theban woe and stray
For ever through the glens placid and dumb

Matthew Arnold

Ode on a Grecian Urn

THOU still unravish'd bride of quietness,
Thou foster child of silence and slow time,
Sylvan historian, who canst thus express
A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme
What leaf fring'd legend haunts about thy shape
Of deities or mortals, or of both,
In Tempé or the dales of Arcady?

What men or gods are these? What maidens loth?
What mad pursuit? What struggle to escape?
What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy?

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
Are sweeter, therefore ye soft pipes, play on,
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endear'd,
Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone
Fair youth, beneath the trees, thou canst not leave
Thy song, nor ever can those trees be bare,
Bold Lover, never, never canst thou kiss,
Though winning near the goal—yet, do not grieve,
She cannot fade, though thou hast not thy bliss,
For ever wilt thou love and she be fair!

Ah happy, happy boughs! that cannot shed
Your leaves, nor ever bid the Spring adieu
And, happy melodist, unwearied
For ever piping songs for ever new,
More happy love! more happy, happy love!
For ever warm and still to be enjoy'd,
For ever panting, and for ever young,
All breathing human passion far above,
That leaves a heart high sorrowful and cloy'd,
A burning forehead, and a parching tongue

Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
And all her silken flanks with garlands drest?

What little town by river or sea shore,
Or mountain built with peaceful citadel,
Is emptied of this folk, this pious morn?
And, little town, thy streets for evermore
Will silent be, and not a soul to tell
Why thou art desolate, can e'er return

O Attic shape! Fair attitude! with brede
Of marble men and maidens overwrought,
With forest branches and the trodden weed
Thou, silent form, dost tease us out of thought
As doth eternity Cold Pastoral!
When old age shall this generation waste,
Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
"Beauty is truth, truth beauty,—that is all
Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know

John Keats.

The Lotus Eaters

"COURAGE!" he said, and pointed toward the land,
"This mounting wave will roll us shoreward soon."
In the afternoon they came unto a land
In which it seemed always afternoon
All round the coast the languid air did swoon,
Breathing like one that hath a weary dream
Full-faced above the valley stood the moon.

And like a downward smoke, the slender stream
Along the cliff to fall and pause and fall did seem

A land of streams! some, like a downward smoke,
Slow dropping veils of thinnest lawn, did go,
And some thro' wavering lights and shadows broke,
Rolling a slumbrous sheet of foam below
They saw the gleaming river seaward flow
From the inner land far off, three mountain tops,
Three silent pinnacles of aged snow,
Stood sunset flush'd and, dew'd with showery drops,
Up clomb the shadowy pine above the woven copse

The charmed sunset linger'd low adown
In the red West thro' mountain clefts the dale
Was seen far inland, and the yellow down
Border'd with palm, and many a winding vale
And meadow set with slender galingale
A land where all things always seem'd the same!
And round about the keel with faces pale,
Dark faces pale against that rosy flame,
The mild eyed melancholy Lotus-eaters came

Branches they bore of that enchanted stem
Laden with flower and fruit, whereof they gave
To each, but whoso did receive of them,
And taste, to him the gushing of the wave
Far far away did seem to mourn and rave
On alien shores, and if his fellow spake,
His voice was thin, as voices from the grave;

And deep-asleep he seem'd, yet all awake,
And music in his ears his beating heart did make.

They sat them down upon the yellow sand,
Between the sun and moon upon the shore;
And sweet it was to dream of Fatherland,
Of child, and wife, and slave; but evermore
Most weary seem'd the sea, weary the oar,
Weary the wandering fields of barren foam.
Then some one said, "We will return no more";
And all at once they sang, "Our island home
Is far beyond the wave, we will no longer roam"

Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

The Forsaken Merman

COME, dear children let us away,
Down and away below
Now my brothers call from the bay,
Now the great winds shorewards blow;
Now the salt tides seawards flow,
Now the wild white horses play,
Champ and chafe and toss in the spray.
Children dear let us away!
This way, this way!

Call her once before you go
Call once yet
In a voice that she will know
"Margaret! Margaret!"

Children's voices should be dear
(Call once more) to a mother's ear
Children's voices, wild with pain
Surely she will come again
Call her once, and come away
This way, this way
"Mother dear, we cannot stay"
The wild white horses foam and fret.
Margaret! Margaret!

Come, dear children, come away down
Call no more
One last look at the white walled town,
And the little grey church on the windy shore
Then come down
She will not come though you call all day
Come away, come away

Children dear, was it yesterday
We heard the sweet bells over the bay?
In the caverns where we lay,
Through the surf and through the swell
The far off sound of a silver bell?
Sand strewn caverns, cool and deep,
Where the winds are all asleep
Where the spent lights quiver and gleam,
Where the salt weed sways in the stream,
Where the sea beasts, ranged all round,
Feed in the ooze of their pasture ground,
Where the sea snakes coil and twine,
Dry their mail and bask in the brine;

Where great whales come sailing by,
Sail and sail, with unshut eye,
Round the world for ever and aye?
When did music come this way?
Children dear, was it yesterday?

Children dear was it yesterday
(Call yet once) that she went away?
Once she sate with you and me,
On a red gold throne in the heart of the sea,
And the youngest sate on her knee
She combed its bright hair and she tended it well,
When down swung the sound of the far off bell
She sighed she looked up through the clear green sea
She said "I must go for my kinsfolk pray
In the little grey church on the shore to day
'Twill be Easter time in the world—ah me!
And I lose my poor soul, Merman, here with thee"
I said "Go up, dear heart, through the waves,
Say thy prayer, and come back to the kind sea caves!"
She smiled, she went up through the surf in the bay
Children dear, was it yesterday?

Children dear, were we long alone?
"The sea grows stormy the little ones moan,
Long prayers," I said, "in the world they say.
Come," I said, and we rose through the surf in the bay

We went up the beach, by the sandy down
Where the sea stocks bloom, to the white walled town
Through the narrow paved streets, where all was still
To the little grey church on the windy hill
From the church came a murmur of folk at their prayers
But we stood without in the cold blowing airs
We climbed on the graves, on the stones, worn with rains,
And we gazed up the aisle through the small leaded panes
She sate by the pillar, we saw her clear
"Margaret, hist! come quick, we are here!
Dear heart' I said, 'we are long alone
The sea grows stormy the little ones moan'
But, ah, she gave me never a look,
For her eyes were sealed to the holy book
"Loud prays the priest, shut stands the door"
Come away, children, call no more!
Come away, come down, call no more!

Down down down
Down to the depths of the sea
She sits at her wheel in the humming town,
Singing most joyfully
Hark what she sings "O joy, O joy,
For the humming street, and the child with its toy
For the priest, and the bell and the holy well
For the wheel where I spun,
And the blessed light of the sun!"

And so she sings her fill,
Singing most joyfully,
Till the shuttle drops from her hand,
And the whizzing wheel stands still
She steals to the window, and looks at the sand;
And over the sand at the sea;
And her eyes are set in a stare,
And anon there breaks a sigh,
And anon there drops a tear
From a sorrow clouded eye,
And a heart sorrow laden,
A long, long sigh
For the cold strange eyes of a little Mermaiden
And the gleam of her golden hair

Come away, away, children
Come, children come down
The hoarse wind blows colder,
Lights shine in the town
She will start from her slumber
When gusts shake the door,
She will hear the winds howling,
Will hear the waves roar
We shall see, while above us
The waves roar and whirl,
A ceiling of amber,
A pavement of pearl
Singing "Here came a mortal,
But faithless was she

And alone dwell for ever
The kings of the sea."

But, children, at midnight,
When soft the winds blow,
When clear falls the moonlight
When spring tides are low
When sweet airs come seaward
From heaths starred with broom
And high rocks throw mildly
On the blanched sands a gloom
Up the still, glistening beeches
Up the creeks we will hie
Over banks of bright seaweed
The ebb tide leaves dry
We will gaze from the sand hills
At the white, sleeping town
At the church on the hill side—
And then come back down,
Singing "There dwells a loved one,
But cruel is she
She left lonely for ever
The kings of the sea'

Matthew Arnold

Kubla Khan

IN Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure dome decree
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sunless sea.
So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round
And there were gardens bright with sinuous rills
Where blossomed many an incense bearing tree,
And here were forests ancient as the hills,
Enfolding sunny spots of greenery

But O! that deep romantic chasm which slanted
Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon lover!
And from this chasm with ceaseless turmoil seething,
As if this Earth in fast thick pants were breathing,
A mighty fountain momently was forced Amid whose swift half intermitted burst
Huge fragments vaulted like rebounding hail,
Or chaffy grain beneath the thresher's flail
And mid these dancing rocks at once and ever
It flung up momently the sacred river
Five miles meandering with a mazy motion
Through wood and dale the sacred river ran,

Then reached the caverns measureless to man
And sank in tumult to a lifeless ocean
And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from far
Ancestral voices prophesying war!

The shadow of the dome of pleasure
Floated midway on the waves
Where was heard the mingled measure
From the fountain and the caves
It was a miracle of rare device
A sunny pleasure dome with caves of ice!
A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora
Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould win me
That with music loud and long,
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice
And close your eyes with holy dread
For he on honey dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise.

Samuel Taylor Coleridge

YET once more, O ye laurels and once more,
Ye myrtles brown, with ivy never sere,
I come, to pluck your berries harsh and crude,
And with forced fingers rude
Shatter your leaves before the mellowing year
Bitter constraint and sad occasion dear
Compels me to disturb your season due
For Lycidas is dead, dead ere his prime,
Young Lycidas and hath not left his peer
Who would not sing for Lycidas? He knew,
Himself to sing, and build the lofty rhyme
He must not float upon his watery bier
Unwept, and welter to the parching wind
Without the meed of some melodious tear
Begin, then, sisters of the sacred well
That from beneath the seat of Jove doth spring
Begin, and somewhat loudly sweep the string
Hence with denial vain, and coy excuse
So may some gentle muse
With lucky words favour my destined urn,
And, as he passes, turn,
And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud
For we were nursed upon the self same hill,
Fed the same flock, by fountain, shade, and rill
Together both, ere the high lawns appeared
Under the opening eyelids of the morn
We drove a field, and both together heard
What time the grey fly winds her sultry horn

Battening our flocks with the fresh dews of night,
Oft till the star that rose at evening bright
Toward heaven's descent had sloped his westering wheel
Meanwhile the rural ditties were not mute
Tempered to the oaten flute
Rough satyrs danced and fauns with cloven heel
From the glad sound would not be absent long
And old Damœtas loved to hear our song
But, oh! the heavy change, now thou art gone
Now thou art gone and never must return!
Thee, Shepherd thee the woods, and desert caves,
With wild thyme and the gadding vine o'ergrown,
And all their echoes, mourn
The willows, and the hazel copses green,
Shall now no more be seen
Fanning their joyous leaves to thy soft lays
As killing as the canker to the rose,
Or taint worm to the weanling herds that graze
Or frost to flowers that their gay wardrobe wear
When first the white thorn blows
Such, Lycidas, thy loss to shepherd's ear
Where were ye, Nymphs, when the remorseless deep
Closed over the head of your loved Lycidas?
For neither were ye playing on the steep
Where your old bards, the famous Druids, lie
Nor on the shaggy top of Mona high,
Nor yet where Deva spreads her wizard stream
Ah me! I fondly dream

Had ye been there for what could that have done?
What could the Muse herself that Orpheus bore
The Muse herself, for her enchanting son
Whom universal nature did lament,
When by the rout that made the hideous roar
His gory visage down the stream was sent,
Down the swift Hebrus to the Lesbian shore?
 Alas! what boots it with incessant care
To tend the homely, slighted, shepherd's trade,
And strictly meditate the thankless Muse?
Were it not better done as others use,
To sport with Amaryllis in the shade,
Or with the tangles of Neæra's hair?
Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise (That last infirmity of noble mind)
To scorn delights and live laborious days
But the fair guerdon when we hope to find,
And think to burst out into sudden blaze,
Comes the blind Fury with the abhorred shears
And slits the thin spun life But not the praise," Phœbus replied, and touched my trembling ears
"Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil,
Nor in the glistening foil
Set off to the world, nor in broad rumour lies,
But lives and spreads aloft by those pure eyes
And perfect witness of all judging Jove
As he pronounces lastly on each deed,
Of so much fame in heaven expect thy meed"—
 O fountain Arethuse, and thou honoured flood,
Smooth-sliding Mincius, crowned with vocal reeds,

That strain I heard was of a higher mood
But now my oat proceeds,
And listens to the herald of the sea
That came in Neptune's plea
He asked the waves, and asked the felon winds,
What hard mishap hath doomed this gentle swain?
And questioned every gust, of rugged winds,
That blows from off each beaked promontory
They knew not of his story,
And sage Hippotades their answer brings,
That not a blast was from his dungeon strayed
The air was calm and on the level brine
Sleek Panope with all her sisters played
It was that fatal and perfidious bark,
Built in the eclipse, and rigged with curses dark,
That sunk so low that sacred head of thine
Next, Camus, reverend sire, went footing slow
His mantle hairy, and his bonnet sedge
Inwrought with figures dim and on the edge
Like to that sanguine flower inscribed with woe
"Ah! who hath reft,' quoth he, "my dearest pledge!'—
Last came, and last did go,
The pilot of the Galilean lake
Two massy keys he bore, of metals twain,
The golden opes, the iron shuts amain,
He shook his mitred locks and stern bespake
"How well could I have spared for thee, young swain, Enow of such as, for their bellies' sake,

Creep, and intrude, and climb into the fold!
Of other care they little reckoning make
Than how to scramble at the shearers' feast
And shove away the worthy bidden guest
Blind mouths! that scarce themselves know how to hold
A sheep hook or have learned aught else the least
That to the faithful herdsman's art belongs!
What recks it them? What need they? They are sped,
And, when they list, their lean and flashy songs
Grate on their scrannel pipes of wretched straw
The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed,
But, swoln with wind and the rank mist they draw,
Rot inwardly, and foul contagion spread,
Besides what the grim wolf, with privy paw,
Daily devours apace, and nothing said
But that two handed engine at the door
Stands ready to smite once, and smite no more'—
Return, Alpheus, the dread voice is past,
That shrunk thy streams, return Sicilian Muse,
And call the vales, and bid them hither cast
Their bells and flowerets of a thousand hues
Ye valleys low, where the mild whispers use
Of shades, and wanton winds, and gushing brooks,
On whose fresh lap the swart star sparely looks,
Throw hither all your quaint enamelled eyes
That on the green turf suck the honeyed showers,
And purple all the ground with vernal flowers
Bring the rathe primrose that forsaken dies,

The tufted crow toe, and pale jessamine,
The white pink and the pansy freaked with jet
The glowing violet,
The musk rose, and the well attired woodbine
With cowslips wan that hang the pensive head,
And every flower that sad embroidery wears
Bid amaranthus all his beauty shed,
And daffodillies fill their cups with tears,
To strew the laureate hearse where Lycid lies
For so, to interpose a little ease,
Let our frail thoughts dally with false surmise
Ah me! whilst thee the shores and sounding seas
Wash far away where er thy bones are hurled
Whether beyond the stormy Hebrides,
Where thou, perhaps under the whelming tide,
Visit'st the bottom of the monstrous world
Or whether thou to our moist vows denied,
Sleep st by the fable of Bellerus old,
Where the great vision of the guarded mount
Looks toward Namancos and Bayona's hold
Look homeward, angel, now, and melt with ruth,
And, O ye dolphins, waft the hapless youth
Weep no more, woeful shepherds weep no more
For Lycidas, your sorrow, is not dead,
Sunk though he be beneath the watery floor
So sinks the day star in the ocean bed,
And yet anon repairs his drooping head,
And tricks his beams, and, with new spangled ore
Flames in the forehead of the morning sky
So Lycidas sunk low, but mounted high,

Through the dear might of Him that walked the waves,
Where, other groves and other streams along,
With nectar pure his oozy locks he laves,
And hears the unexpressive nuptial song
In the blest kingdoms meek of joy and love
There entertain him all the saints above,
In solemn troops and sweet societies
That sing, and, singing, in their glory move,
And wipe the tears for ever from his eyes
Now, Lycidas, the shepherds weep no more
Henceforth thou art the genius of the shore
In thy large recompense, and shalt be good
To all that wander in that perilous flood
Thus sang the uncouth swain to the oaks and rills,
While the still morn went out with sandals gray
He touched the tender stops of various quills,
With eager thought warbling his Doric lay
And now the sun had stretched out all the hills,
And now was dropt into the western bay
At last he rose, and twitched his mantle blue
To morrow to fresh woods and pastures new

John Milton.

Ode on Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood

The Child is father of the Man
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety

THERE was a time when meadow, grove, and stream,
The earth, and every common sight,
To me did seem
Apparelled in celestial light,
The glory and the freshness of a dream
It is not now as it hath been of yore —
Turn wheresoe'er I may,
By night or day,
The things which I have seen I now can see no more

The Rainbow comes and goes
And lovely is the Rose,
The Moon doth with delight
Look round her when the heavens are bare
Waters on a starry night
Are beautiful and fair,
The sunshine is a glorious birth
But yet I know, where'er I go,
That there hath passed away a glory from the earth.

III

Now, while the Birds thus sing a joyous song,
And while the young Lambs bound
As to the tabor's sound,
To me alone there came a thought of grief
A timely utterance gave that thought relief,
And I again am strong
The Cataracts blow their trumpets from the steep
No more shall grief of mine the season wrong
I hear the Echoes through the mountains throng,
The Winds come to me from the fields of sleep,
And all the earth is gay
Land and Sea
Give themselves up to jollity,
And with the heart of May Doth every Beast keep holiday —
Thou Child of Joy,
Shout round me, let me hear thy shouts, thou happy
Shepherd boy!

IV

Ye blessèd Creatures, I have heard the call
Ye to each other make I see
The heavens laugh with you in your jubilee
My heart is at your festival,
My head hath its coronal,
The fulness of your bliss, I feel—I feel it all
Oh evil day! if I were sullen
While Earth herself is adorning

This sweet May morning,
And the Children are culling
On every side,
In a thousand valleys far and wide,
Fresh flowers while the sun shines warm,
And the Babe leaps up on his Mother's arm —
I hear, I hear, with joy I hear!
—But there's a Tree, of many one
A single Field which I have looked upon,
Both of them speak of something that is gone
The Pansy at my feet
Doth the same tale repeat
Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory and the dream?

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting
The Soul that rises with us, our life's Star
Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home
Heaven lies about us in our infancy!
Shades of the prison house begin to close
Upon the growing Boy,
But he beholds the light, and whence it flows,
He sees it in his joy,

The Youth, who daily farther from the East
Must travel, still is Nature's Priest,
And by the vision splendid
Is on his way attended
At length the Man perceives it die away,
And fade into the light of common day

VI

Earth fills her lap with pleasures of her own,
Yearnings she hath in her own natural kind,
And even with something of a Mother's mind,
And no unworthy aim,
The homely Nurse doth all she can
To make her Foster child, her Inmate Man,
Forget the glories he hath known
And that imperial palace whence he came

VII

Behold the Child among his new born blisses,
A six years' darling of a pigmy size!
See, where 'mid work of his own hand he lies,
Fretted by sallies of his Mother's kisses,
With light upon him from his Father's eyes!
See, at his feet, some little plan or chart,
Some fragment from his dream of human life,
Shaped by himself with newly learned art,
A wedding or a festival,
A mourning or a funeral,

And this hath now his heart
And unto this he frames his song
Then will he fit his tongue
To dialogues of business, love, or strife
But it will not be long
Ere this be thrown aside
And with new joy and pride
The little Actor cons another part,
Filling from time to time his "humorous stage"
With all the Persons down to palsied Age,
That Life brings with her in her equipage
As if his whole vocation
Were endless imitation

VIII

Thou, whose exterior semblance doth belie
Thy Soul's immensity
Thou best Philosopher, who yet dost keep
Thy heritage, thou Eye among the blind,
That, deaf and silent, read'st the eternal deep
Haunted for ever by the eternal mind —
Mighty Prophet! Seer blest!
On whom those truths do rest,
Which we are toiling all our lives to find,
In darkness lost, the darkness of the grave
Thou, over whom thy Immortality
Broods like the Day, a master o'er a Slave,
A Presence which is not to be put by Thou little Child, yet glorious in the might
Of heaven-born freedom on thy being's height,

Why with such earnest pains dost thou provoke
The years to bring the inevitable yoke,
Thus blindly with thy blessedness at strife?
Full soon thy Soul shall have her earthly freight,
And custom lie upon thee with a weight,
Heavy as frost, and deep almost as life!

IX

O joy! that in our embers
Is something that doth live,
That nature yet remembers
What was so fugitive!

The thought of our past years in me doth breed
Perpetual benediction: not indeed
For that which is most worthy to be blest
Delight and liberty, the simple creed
Of Childhood, whether busy or at rest,
With new fledged hope still fluttering in his breast:
Not for these I raise
The song of thanks and praise,
But for those obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings
Blank misgivings of a Creature
Moving about in worlds not realised,
High instincts before which our mortal Nature
Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised:
But for those first affections,
Those shadowy recollections,
Which, be they what they may,

Are yet the fountain light of all our day,
Are yet a master light of all our seeing Uphold us, cherish, and have power to make Our noisy years seem moments in the being
Of the eternal Silence truths that wake
To perish never
Which neither listlessness, nor mad endeavour
Nor Man nor Boy,
Nor all that is at enmity with joy,
Can utterly abolish or destroy!
Hence, in a season of calm weather
Though inland far we be,
Our Souls have sight of that immortal sea
Which brought us hither
Can in a moment travel thither
And see the children sport upon the shore,
And hear the mighty waters rolling evermore

X

Then sing, ye Birds, sing, sing a joyous song!
And let the young Lambs bound
As to the tabor's sound!
We in thought will join your throng
Ye that pipe and ye that play,
Ye that through your hearts to day
Feel the gladness of the May!
What though the radiance which was once so bright
Be now for ever taken from my sight,
Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower

We will grieve not, rather find
Strength in what remains behind
In the primal sympathy
Which having been must ever be,
In the soothing thoughts that spring
Out of human suffering
In the faith that looks through death
In years that bring the philosophic mind

XI

And O, ye Fountains, Meadows, Hills, and Groves
Forebode not any severing of our loves!
Yet in my heart of hearts I feel your might
I only have relinquished one delight
To live beneath your more habitual sway
I love the Brooks which down their channels fret,
Even more than when I tripped lightly as they
The innocent brightness of a new born Day
Is lovely yet
The Clouds that gather round the setting sun
Do take a sober colouring from an eye
That hath kept watch o'er man's mortality,
Another race hath been, and other palms are won
Thanks to the human heart by which we live,
Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, its fears,
To me the meanest flower that blows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.

William Wordsworth

THE SEA AND THE RIVER

I will go back to the great sweet mother
Mother and lover of men the sea
I will go down to her I and none other
Close with her kiss her and mix her with me
Cling to her, strive with her hold her fast
O fair white mother in days long past
Born without sister born without brother
Set free my soul as thy soul is free

Algernon Charles Swinburne

As the stars come out, and the night wind
Brings up the stream
Murmurs and scents of the infinite sea

Matthew Arnold.

O to sail in a ship
To leave this steady unendurable land
To leave the tiresome sameness of the streets the sidewalks and the houses
To leave you O you solid motionless land, and entering a ship
To sail and sail and sail!

Walt Whitman.

The sea is in the splendid sun
Plunging so careless and grand

Duncan Campbell Scott

The Brook

I COME from haunts of coot and hern
I make a sudden sally,
And sparkle out among the fern,
To bicker down a valley

By thirty hills I hurry down,
Or slip between the ridges,
By twenty thorps, a little town,
And half a hundred bridges

Till last by Philip's farm I flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go
But I go on for ever

I chatter over stony ways
In little sharps and trebles,
I bubble into eddying bays,
I babble on the pebbles

With many a curve my banks I fret
By many a field and fallow,
And many a fairy foreland set
With willow weed and mallow

I chatter, chatter, as I flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on for ever

I wind about, and in and out,
With here a blossom sailing,
And here and there a lusty trout,
And here and there a grayling

And here and there a foamy flake
Upon me as I travel
With many a silvery waterbreal
Above the golden gravel

And draw them all along, and flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on for ever

I steal by lawns and grassy plots,
I slide by hazel covers
I move the sweet forget me nots
That grow for happy lovers

I slip I slide, I gloom, I glance,
Among my skimming swallows,
I make the netted sunbeam dance
Against my sandy shallows

I murmur under moon and stars
In brambly wildernesses;

I linger by my shingly bars,
I loiter round my cresses,

And out again I curve and flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go
But I go on for ever

Alfred Lord Tennyson

The River and the Sea

ONE evening he asked the miller where the river went

"It goes down the valley," answered he, "and turns a power of mills—six score mills, they say, from here to Unterdeck—and it none the wearier after all And then it goes out into the lowlands and waters the great corn country, and runs through a sight of fine cities (so they say) where kings live all alone in great palaces, with a sentry walking up and down before the door And it goes under bridges with stone men upon them, looking down and smiling so curious at the water, and living folks leaning their elbows on the wall and looking over too And then it goes on and on, and down through marshes and sands, until at last it falls into the sea, where the ships are that bring parrots and tobacco from the Indies Ay, it has a long trot before it as it goes singing over our weir, bless its heart!"

"And what is the sea?" asked Will

"The sea!" cried the miller "Lord help us all, it is the greatest thing God made! That is where all the water in the world runs down into a great salt lake There it lies, as flat as my hand and as innocent like as a child, but they do say when the wind blows it gets up into water mountains bigger than any of ours, and swallows down great ships bigger than our mill, and makes such a roaring that you can hear it miles away upon the land There are great fish in it five times bigger than a bull, and one old serpent as long as our river and as old as all the world, with whiskers like a man, and a crown of silver on her head"

R L Stevenson

The Little Waves of Breffny

THE grand road from the mountain goes shining to the sea,
And there is traffic in it, and many a horse and cart,
But the little roads of Cloonagh are dearer far to me,
And the little roads of Cloonagh go rambling through my heart

A great storm from the ocean goes shouting o'er the hill,
And there is glory in it and terror on the wind,
But the haunted air of twilight is very strange and still,
And the little winds of twilight are dearer to my mind

The great waves of the Atlantic sweep storming on their way,
Shining green and silver with the hidden herring shoal,
But the Little Waves of Breffny have drenched my heart in spray,
And the Little Waves of Breffny go stumbling through my soul

Salt and Sunny Days

OH silent glory of the summer day!
How, then, we watched with glad and indolent eyes
The white sailed ships dream on their shining way,
Till, fading, they were mingled with the skies
Have we not watched her, too, on nights that steep
The soul in peace of moonlight, softly move
As a most passionate maiden, who in sleep
Laughs low, and tosses in a dream of love?

And when the heat broke up, and in its place,
Came the strong, shouting days and nights, that run,
All white with stars, across the labouring ways
Of billows warm with storm, instead of sun,
In gray and desolate twilights, when no feet
Save ours might dare the shore, did we not come Through winds that all in vain against us beat
Until we had the warm sweet smelling foam

Full in our faces, and the frantic wind
 Shrieked round us, and our cheeks grew numb, then warm,
Until we felt our souls, no more confined,
 Mix with the waves, and strain against the storm?
Oh! the immense, illimitable delight
 It is, to stand by some tempestuous bay,
What time the great sea waxes warm and white
 And beats and blinds the following wind with spray!

Philip Bourke Marston

The Sea Gipsy

I AM fevered with the sunset,
 I am fretful with the bay,
For the wander thirst is on me
And my soul is in Cathay

There's a schooner in the offing,
With her topsails shot with fire,
And my heart has gone aboard her
For the Islands of Desire

I must forth again to morrow!
With the sunset I must be Hull down on the trail of rapture
In the wonder of the Sea

Sailor's Song

TO sea, to sea ! The calm is o'er,
The wanton water leaps in sport,
And rattles down the pebbly shore
The dolphin wheels, the sea cows snort,
And unseen mermaids pearly song
Comes bubbling up the weeds among Fling broad the sail, dip deep the oar
To sea to sea ! the calm is o er

To sea, to sea ! our wide winged bark
Shall billowy cleave its sunny way,
And with its shadow, fleet and dark,
Break the caved Tritons' azure day
Like mighty eagle soaring light
O er antelopes on Alpine height
The anchor heaves, the ship swings free,
The sails swell full To sea, to sea !

Thomas Lovell Beddoes

I Spring on the Coast

NOW is the season for a ship to run through the gurgling water, and no longer does the sea gloom, fretted with gusty squalls, and now the swallow plasters her round houses under the eaves, and the soft leafage laughs in the meadows Therefore wind up your soaked cables, O sailors, and weigh your hidden anchors from the harbours, and stretch the forestays to carry your well woven sails This I the son of Bromius bid you, Priapus of the Anchorage

Antipater of Sidon

II Saved by Faith

THEY call me the little one, and say I cannot go straight and fearless on a prosperous voyage like ships that sail out to sea, and I deny it not, I am a little boat, but to the sea all is equal, fortune, not size, makes the difference Let another have the advantage in rudders for some put their confidence in this and some in that but may my salvation be of God.

Leonidas of Tarentum

III Worship in Spring

OCEAN lies purple in calm; for no gale whitens the fretted waves with its ruffling breath, and no longer is the sea shattered round the rocks and sucked back again down towards the deep. West winds breathe, and the swallow twitters over the straw glued chamber that she has built Be of good cheer, O skilled in seafaring, whether thou sail to the Syrtis or the Sicilian shingle only by the altars of Priapus of the Anchorage burn a scarus or ruddy wrasse

Agathias

IV To the Gods of Harbour and Headland

HARBOUR GOD, do thou, O blessed one, send with a gentle breeze the outward bound sail of Archelaus down smooth water even to the sea and thou who hast the point of the shore inward, keep the convoy that is bound for the Pythian shrine and thenceforward, if all we singers are in Phoebus' care I will sail cheerily on with a fair flowing west wind

Antiphilus

V To Apollo of Leucas

PHOEBUS who holdest the sheer steep of Leucas, far seen of mariners and washed by the Ionian sea, receive of sailors this mess of hand kneaded barley bread and a libation mingled in a little cup, and the gleam of a brief shining lamp that drinks with half saturate mouth from a sparing oil flask, in recompence whereof be gracious, and send on their sails a favourable wind to run with them to the harbours of Actium

Philippus

VI To the Gods of Sea and Weather

O MELICERTA son of Ino, and thou, sea-green Leucothea, mistress of Ocean, deity that shieldest from harm, and choirs of the Nereids, and waves, and thou Poseidon, and Thracian Zephyrus, gentlest of the winds, carry me propitiously, sped through the broad wave, safe to the sweet shore of the Peiraeus

Philodemus

(J W Mackail's translation)

The Wander Lovers

DOWN the world with Marna!
That's the life for me!
Wandering with the wandering wind,
Vagabond and unconfined!
Roving with the roving rain
Its unboundaried domain!
Kith and kin of wander kind,
Children of the sea!

Petrels of the sea drift!
Swallows of the lea!
Arabs of the whole wide girth
Of the wind-encircled earth!
In all climes we pitch our tents,
Cronies of the elements
With the secret lords of birth
Intimate and free.

All the seaboard knows us
From Fundy to the Keys,
Every bend and every creek
Of abundant Chesapeake
Ardise hills and Newport coves
And the far off orange groves
Where Floridian oceans break,
Tropic tiger seas

Down the world with Marna,
Tarrying there and here!
Just as much at home in Spain
As in Tangier or Touraine!
Shakespeare's Avon knows us well
And the crags of Neufchâtel
And the ancient Nile is fain
Of our coming near

Down the world with Marna,
Daughter of the air!
Marna of the subtle grace,
And the vision in her face!
Moving in the measures trod
By the angels before God!
With her sky blue eyes amaze
And her sea blue hair!

Marna with the trees' life
In her veins a stir!
Marna of the aspen heart
Where the sudden quivers start!

Quick responsive, subtle, wild!
Artless as an artless child,
Spite of all her reach of art!
Oh, to roam with her!

Marna with the wind's will Daughter of the sea!
Marna of the quiel disdain,
Starting at the dream of stain!
At a smile with love aglow,
At a frown a statued woe,
Standing pinnacled in pain
Till a kiss sets free!

Down the world with Marna,
Daughter of the fire!
Marna of the deathless hope
Still alert to win new scope
Where the wings of life may spread
For a flight unhazarded!
Dreamy of the speech to cope
With the heart's desire

Marna of the far quest
After the divine!
Striving ever for some goal
Past the blunder god's control!
Dreaming of potential years
When no day shall dawn in fears!
That's the Marna of my soul,
Wander bride of mine!

At Sea

BUT the mere fact of its being a tramp ship gave us many comforts we could cut about with the men and officers, stay in the wheel house, discuss all manner of things, and really be a little at sea. And truly there is nothing else I had literally forgotten what happiness was, and the full mind—full of external and physical things not full of cares and labours and rot about a fellow's behaviour My heart literally sang I truly care for nothing so much as that

R L Stevenson

The Nantucketers

THE Nantucketer he alone resides and riots on the sea, he alone, in Bible language, goes down to it in ships to and fro ploughing it as his own special plantation There is his home; there lies his business, which a Noah's flood would not interrupt, though it overwhelmed all the millions in China He lives on the sea, as prairie cocks in the prairie, he hides among the waves, he climbs them as chamois hunters climb the Alps For years he knows not the land, so that when he comes to it at last, it smells like another world, more strangely than the moon would to an Englishman With the landless gull, that at sunset folds her wings and is rocked to sleep between the billows, so at nightfall, the Nantucketer, out of sight of land, furls his sails, and lays him to his rest, while under his very pillow rush herds of walruses and whales

Suffolk Sea Song

THE REDDENING LEAF

Laden deep with fruity cluster,
 Then September ripe and hale
Bees about his basket fluster,—
Laden deep with fruity cluster
Skies have now a softer lustre
 Barns resound to flap of flail

Thou then too of woodlands lover,
 Dusk October berry stained
Wailed about of parting plover —
Thou then too of woodlands lover
Fading now are copse and cover;
 Forests now are sere and waned

Austin Dobson

Lo! sweeten'd with the summer light
The full juiced apple waxing over mellow
Drops in a silent autumn night.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

The Departure of Summer

SUMMER is gone on swallows' wings
And Earth has buried all her flowers
No more the lark, the linnet sings,
But Silence sits in faded bowers
There is a shadow on the plain
Of Winter ere he comes again,—
There is in woods a solemn sound
Of hollow warnings whispered round
As Echo in her deep recess
For once had turned a prophetess
Shuddering Autumn stops to list,
And breathes his fear in sudden sighs,
With clouded face, and hazel eyes
That quench themselves, and hide in mist

T Hood

To Autumn

SEASON of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom friend of the maturing sun,
Conspiring with him how to load and bless

With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run
To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core
To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells
With a sweet kernel to set budding more,
And still more, later flowers for the bees,
Until they think warm days will never cease,
For Summer has o'er brimm'd their clammy cells

Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find
Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,
Thy hair soft lifted by the winnowing wind
Or on a half reap'd furrow sound asleep,
Drows'd with the fume of poppies, while thy hook
Spares the next swath and all its twined flowers
And sometimes like a gleaner thou dost keep Steady thy laden head across a brook
Or by a cyder press, with patient look,
Thou watchest the last oozings hours by hours

Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too,—
While barred clouds bloom the soft dying day,
And touch the stubble plains with rosy hue,
Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river sallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies,

And full grown lambs loud bleat from hilly bourn,
Hedge crickets sing, and now with treble soft
The red breast whistles from a garden croft
And gathering swallows twitter in the skies

John Keats

Sweet Fern

THE subtle power in perfume found
Nor priest nor sibyl vainly learned
On Grecian shrine or Aztec mound
No censer idly burned

That power the old time worships knew,
The Corybantes frenzied dance,
The Pythian priestess swooning through
The wonderland of trance

And Nature holds, in wood and field,
Her thousand sunlit censers still
To spells of flower and shrub we yield
Against or with our will

I climbed a hill path strange and new
With slow feet, pausing at each turn
A sudden waft of west wind blew
The breath of the sweet fern

That fragrance from my vision swept
The alien landscape, in its stead,

Up fairer hills of youth I stepped,
As light of heart as tread.

I saw my boyhood's lakelet shine
Once more through rifts of woodland shade;
I knew my river's winding line
By morning mist betrayed

With me June's freshness, lapsing brook,
Murmurs of leaf and bee, the call
Of birds, and one in voice and look
In keeping with them all

A fern beside the way we went
She plucked, and smiling, held it up,
While from her hand the wild sweet scent
I drank as from a cup

O potent witchery of smell!
The dust-dry leaves to life return,
And she who plucked them owns the spell
And lifts her ghostly fern

Or sense or spirit? Who shall say
What touch the chord of memory thrills?
It passed, and left the August day
Ablaze on lonely hills

John Greenleaf Whittier.

Carn A Turnen Yoller

THE copse ha' got his shiady boughs,
 Wi' blackbirds' evemen whissles
The hills ha' sheep upon ther brows,
 The zummerleaze ha' thissles
The meads be gay in grassy May,
 But O vrom hill to holler,
Let I look down upon a groun'
 O' carn a turnen yoller

An' pease da grow in tangled beds,
 An' beans be sweet to snuff, O
The taper woats da bend ther heads,
 The barley's beard is rough, O
The turnip green is fresh between
 The carn in hill ar holler,
But I'd look down upon the groun'
 O' wheat a turnen yoller

'Tis merry when the brawny men
 Da come to reap it down, O,
Wher glossy red the poppy head
 'S among the sta'ks so brown, O
'Tis merry while the wheat's in hile
 Ar when, by hill ar holler,
The leazers thick da stoop to pick
 The ears so ripe an' yoller

William Barnes

IF you would have your kennel for sweetness of cry, then you must compound it of some large dogs, that have deep solemn Mouthes, and are swift in spending, which must as it were bear the base in the consort then a double number of roaring and loud ringing Mouthes which must bear the counter tenor, then some hollow plain sweet Mouthes, which must bear the mean or middle part and so with these three parts of musick you shall make your cry perfect and herein you shall observe that these Hounds thus mixt, do run just and even together and not hang off loose from one another, which is the vilest sight that may be and you shall understand, that this composition is best to be made of the swiftest and largest deep mouthed dog, the slowest middle siz'd dog, and the shortest legg'd slender dog Amongst these you may cast in a couple or two small single beagles, which as small trebles may warble amongst them the cry will be a great deal the more sweet If you would have your kennel for depth of mouth, then you shall compound it of the largest dogs which have the greatest mouths and deepest slews, such as your West Countrey, Che shire and Lanca shire dogs are, and to five or six base couple of mouths shall not add above two couple of counter tenors, as many means, and not above one couple of Roarers, which being heard but now and then as at the opening or hitting of a scent, will give much sweetness to the solemnness and graveness of the cry, and the musick thereof will be much more delightfull to the ears of every beholder

Gervase Markham.

The Find

YON sound's neither sheep bell nor bark,
They're running—they're running, Go hark
The sport may be lost by a moment s delay,
So whip up the puppies and scurry away
Dash down through the cover by dingle and dell
There's a gate at the bottom—I know it full well
And they're running—they're running,
Go hark!

They're running—they're running, Go hark!
One fence and we're out of the park
Sit down in your saddles and race at the brook,
Then smash at the bullfinch, no time for a look,
Leave cravens and skirters to dangle behind
He's away for the moors in the teeth of the wind,
And they're running—they're running,
Go hark!

They're running—they're running, Go hark!
Let them run on and run till it's dark!

Well with them we are, and well with them we'll be,
While there's wind in our horses and daylight to see
Then shog along homeward, chat over the fight,
And hear in our dreams the sweet music all night
Of—They're running—they're running,
Go hark!

Charles Kingsley

NIGHT AND THE STARS

Hail Twilight, sovereign of one peaceful hour!
Not dull art Thou as undiscerning Night
But studious only to remove from sight
Day's mutable distinctions Ancient Power!
Thus did the waters gleam the mountains lower
To the rude Briton when in wolf skin vest
Here roving wild he laid him down to rest
On the bare rock or through a leafy bower
Look'd ere his eyes were closed By him was seen
The self same vision which we now behold
At thy meek bidding shadowy Power brought forth
These mighty barriers and the gulf between
The flood the stars —a spectacle as old
As the beginning of the heavens and earth!

William Wordsworth

The Dog star and Aldebaran pointing to the restless Pleiades, were half way up the Southern sky and between them hung Orion which gorgeous constellation never burnt more vividly than now as it swung itself forth above the rim of the landscape Castor and Pollux with their quiet shine were almost on the meridian the barren and gloomy Square of Pegasus was creeping round to the north west far away through the plantation Vega sparkled like a lamp suspended amid the leafless trees, and Cassiopeia's chair stood daintily poised on the uppermost boughs

One o'clock' said Gabriel

Thomas Hardy

To the Evening Star

THOU fair-haired Angel of the Evening,
Now whilst the sun rests on the mountains, light
Thy bright torch of love—thy radiant crown
Put on, and smile upon our evening bed!
Smile on our loves and while thou drawest the Blue curtains of the sky, scatter thy silver dew
On every flower that shuts its sweet eyes
In timely sleep. Let thy West Wind sleep on The lake speak silence with thy glimmering eyes
And wash the dusk with silver—Soon full soon
Dost thou withdraw then the wolf rages wide
And the lion glares through the dun forest,
The fleeces of our flocks are covered with Thy sacred dew, protect them with thine influence!

William Blake

Evemen in the Village

NOW the light o the west is a turn'd to gloom,
An' the men be at huome vrom ground,
An' the bells be a zenden āl down the Coombe
A-muoanen an' dyen sound

An' the wind is still,
An' the house-dogs da bark,
An' the rooks be a vled to the elems high an' dark,
An' the water da roar at mill

An' out droo yander cottage's winder plane
The light o' the candle da shoot,
An' young Jemmy the blacksmith is down the lane
A playen his jarman flute
An' the miller's man
Da zit down at his ease
'Pon the girt wooden seat that is under the trees,
Wi' his pipe an' his cider can

Tha' da zā that tis zom'hat in towns to zee
Fresh fiazen vrom day to day
Tha' mid zee em var me, ef the two or dree
I da love should but smile an' stay
Zoo gi'e me the sky,
An' the air an' the zun,
An' a huome in the dell wher the water da run,
An' there let me live an' die

William Barnes.

Night

THE sun descending in the west,
The evening star does shine;
The birds are silent in their nest,
And I must seek for mine

The moon, like a flower
In heaven's high bower,
With silent delight
Sits and smiles on the night

Farewell, green fields and happy grove
Where flocks have ta'en delight,
Where lambs have nibbled, silent move
The feet of angels bright
Unseen they pour blessing,
And joy without ceasing,
On each bud and blossom,
On each sleeping bosom

They look in every thoughtless nest,
Where birds are covered warm,
They visit caves of every beast,
To keep them all from harm
If they see any weeping
That should have been sleeping
They pour sleep on their head,
And sit down by their bed

When wolves and tigers howl for prey
They pitying stand and weep,
Seeking to drive their thirst away,
And keep them from the sheep
But if they rush dreadful
The angels most heedful
Receive each mild spirit
New worlds to inherit

And there the lion's ruddy eyes
Shall flow with tears of gold
And pitying the tender cries,
And walking round the fold,
Saying Wrath by His meekness,
And by His health sickness,
Are driven away
From our immortal day

And now beside thee, bleating lamb,
I can lie down and sleep,
Or think on Him who bore thy name,
Graze after thee, and weep
For washed in life's river,
My bright mane for ever
Shall shine like the gold,
As I guard o'er the fold

William Blake

Invocation

I AM he that walks with the tender and growing night,
I call to the earth and sea half hid by the night
Press close, bare bosomed night—press close, magnetic nourishing night!
Night of south winds—night of the large few stars.
Still nodding night—mad naked summer night

Smile, O voluptuous cool breath d earth!
Earth of the slumbering and liquid trees!
Earth of departed sunset—earth of the mountains misty topt!
Earth of the vitreous pour of the full moon just tinged with blue!
Earth of shine and dark mottling the tide of the river!
Earth of the limpid grey of clouds brighter and clearer for my sake!
Far swooping elbow'd earth—rich apple blossom'd earth—
Smile, for your lover comes

Walt Whitman

To Night

SWIFTLY walk o er the western wave,
Spirit of Night!
Out of the misty eastern cave
Where, all the long and lone daylight,
Thou wovest dreams of joy and fear
Which make thee terrible and dear,
Swift be thy flight!

Wrap thy form in a mantle grey,
Star in wrought,
Blind with thine hair the eyes of Day,
Kiss her until she be wearied out.

Then wander o'er city, and sea, and land,
Touching all with thine opiate wand—
Come, long sought!

When I arose and saw the dawn
I sighed for thee
When light rode high, and the dew was gone,
And noon lay heavy on flower and tree,
And the weary Day turned to his rest,
Lingering like an unloved guest,
I sighed for thee

Thy brother Death came, and cried,
"Would'st thou me?"
Thy sweet child Sleep, the filmy eyed
Murmured like a noontide bee,
"Shall I nestle near thy side?
Would'st thou me?"—And I
"No, not thee!"

Death will come when thou art dead,
Soon, too soon—
Sleep will come when thou art fled;
Of neither would I ask the boon
I ask of thee, beloved Night—
Swift be thine approaching flight,
Come soon, soon!

Percy Bysshe Shelley

Species Aeternitatis

I KNOW that I am mortal and ephemeral, but when I scan the multitudinous circling spirals of the stars, no longer do I touch earth with my feet but sit with Zeus himself and take my fill of the ambrosial food of the gods

Ptolemaeus
(J W Mackail s translation)

Bevis and the Stars

UP through the branches of the oak he saw Lyra, the pure star in the heavens, white as whitest and clearest light may be, gleaming at the zenith of the pale azure dome But just above the horizon northwards the sky was faint white light, the faintest hint of dawn Perhaps noon was rising there

Then the North star minute but clear—so small and yet central for the axle and focus of the sky, instead of an axis—the North Star always shone just over the group of elms by the orchard Summer and winter, spring and autumn it was always there, always over the elms—whether they were reddening with the buds and flowers of February, whether they were full green now in the heats of August, whether the were yellow in October

Dick and his team, whose waggon goes backwards, swung round it like a stone in a sling whirled about the shoulders. Sometimes the tail of the Bear, where Dick bestrides his second horse, hung down behind the elms into the vapour of the horizon Sometimes the Pointers were nearly overhead If they were hidden by a cloud, the Lesser Bear gave a point, or you could draw a line through Cassiopeia, and tell the North by her chair of stars

When the few leaves left on this young oak were brown, and rustled in a frosty night, the massy shoulder of Orion came heaving up through it—first one bright star then another, then the gleaming girdle and the less definite scabbard, then the great constellation stretched across the east At the first sight of Orion s shoulder Bevis always felt suddenly stronger, as if a breath of the mighty hunter's had come down and entered into him

He stood upright, his frame enlarged his instep lifted him as he walked as if he too could swing the vast club and chase the lion from his lair The sparkle of Orion's stars brought to him a remnant of the immense vigour of the young world, the frosty air braced his sinews, and power came into his arms

As the constellation rose so presently new vigour too entered into the trees, the sap moved, the buds thrust forth, the new leaf came, and the nightingale travelling up from the south sang in the musical April nights But this was when Orion was south, and Sirius flared like a night sun over the great oak at the top of the Home Field.

Richard Jefferies

NIGHT is a dead monotonous period under a roof but in the open world it passes lightly, with its stars and dews and perfumes, and the hours are marked by changes in the face of Nature What seems a kind of temporal death to people choked between walls and curtains, is only a light and living slumber to the man who sleeps a field All night long he can hear Nature breathing deeply and freely, even as she takes her rest she turns and smiles and there is one stirring hour unknown to those who dwell in houses, when a wakeful influence goes abroad over the sleeping hemisphere, and all the outdoor world are on their feet It is then that the cock first crows, not this time to announce the dawn, but like a cheerful watchman speeding the course of night Cattle awake on the meadows sheep break their fast on dewy hillsides, and change to a new lair among the ferns, and houseless men who have lain down with the fowls, open their dim eyes and behold the beauty of the night

At what inaudible summons, at what gentle touch of Nature, are all these sleepers thus recalled in the same hour to life? Do the stars rain down an influence, or do we share some thrill of mother earth below our resting bodies? Even shepherds and old country folk, who are the deepest read in these arcana, have not a guess as to the means or purpose of this nightly resurrection Towards two in the morning they declare the thing takes place, and neither know nor inquire further And at least it is a pleasant incident We are disturbed in our slumber only, like the luxurious Montaigne, "that we may the better, and more sensibly relish it' We have a moment to look upon the stars And there is a special pleasure for some minds in the reflection that we share the impulse with all out door creatures in our neighbourhood that we have escaped out of the Bastille of civilisation, and are become, for the time being, a mere kindly animal and a sheep of Nature s flock

To Sleep

A FLOCK of sheep that leisurely pass by,
One after one, the sound of rain, and bees
Murmuring the fall of rivers, winds, and seas,
Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure sky
I've thought of all by turns and yet do lie
Sleepless and soon the small bird s melodies
Must hear first utter d from my orchard trees
And the first cuckoo's melancholy cry
Even thus last night, and two nights more I lay
And could not win thee, Sleep ! by any stealth
So do not let me wear to night away
Without Thee what is all the morning's wealth ?

Come, blessèd barrier between day and day,
Dear mother of fresh thoughts and joyous health!
William Wordsworth

I Met at Eve

I MET at eve the Prince of Sleep,
His was a still and lovely face
He wandered through a valley steep,
Lovely in a lonely place

His garb was grey of lavender,
About his brows a poppy wreath
Burned like dim coals, and everywhere
The air was sweeter for his breath

His twilight feet no sandals wore,
His eyes shone faint in their own flame,
Fair moths that gloomed his steps before
Seemed letters of his lovely name

His house is in the mountain ways,
A phantom house of misty walls,
Whose golden flocks at evening graze,
And witch the moon with muffled calls.

Upwelling from his shadowy springs
Sweet waters shake a trembling sound,
There flit the hoot-owl's silent wings,
There hath his web the silkworm wound.

Dark in his pools clear visions lurk,
And rosy, as with morning buds
Along his dales of broom and birk
 Dreams haunt his solitary woods

I met at eve the Prince of Sleep,
His was a still and lovely face
He wandered through a valley steep
 Lovely in a lonely place

Who can Live in Heart so Glad

WHO can live in heart so glad
As the merry Country Lad!
Who, upon a fair green balk,
May, at pleasure, sit and walk,
And, amid the azure skies,
See the morning sun arise!
While he hears, in every Spring,
How the birds do chirp and sing
Or, before the hounds in cry,
See the hare go stealing by
Or, along the shallow brook,
Angling with a baited hook
See the fishes leap and play,
In a blessed sunny day,
Or to hear the partridge call
Till she have her covey all
Or to see the subtle fox,
How the villain plies the box!
After feeding on his prey,
How he closely sneaks away

Through the hedge, and down the furrow,
Till he gets into his burrow!
Then the bee to gather honey
And the little black haired coney,
On a bank, for sunny place,
With her forefeet wash her face
Are not these with thousands moe
Than the Courts of Kings do know,
The true pleasing spirit's sights,
That may breed true love's delights?

The Barefoot Boy

BLESSINGS on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan!
With thy turned up pantaloons,
And thy merry whistled tunes
With thy red lip, redder still Kissed by strawberries on the hill
With the sunshine on thy face,
Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace,
From my heart I give thee joy,—
I was once a barefoot boy
Prince thou art,—the grown up man
Only is republican
Let the million dollared ride!
Barefoot, trudging at his side,

Thou hast more than he can buy
In the reach of ear and eye,— Outward sunshine, inward joy
Blessings on thee, barefoot boy

Oh for boyhood's painless play
Sleep that wakes in laughing day,
Health that mocks the doctor's rules,
Knowledge never learned of schools,
Of the wild bee's morning chase,
Of the wild flower's time and place,
Flight of fowl and habitude
Of the tenants of the wood,
How the tortoise bears his shell
How the woodchuck digs his cell
And the ground mole sinks his well
How the robin feeds her young,
How the oriole's nest is hung
Where the whitest lilies blow
Where the freshest berries grow,
Where the ground nut trails its vine,
Where the wood grapes clusters shine,
Of the black wasp's cunning way,
Mason of his walls of clay,
And the architectural plans
Of gray hornet artisans!
For, eschewing books and tasks,
Nature answers all he asks,
Hand in hand with her he walks,
Face to face with her he talks,

Part and parcel of her joy —
Blessings on the barefoot boy!

Oh for boyhood's time of June,
Crowding years in one brief moon,
When all things I heard or saw,
Me, their master, waited for
I was rich in flowers and trees,
Humming birds and honey bees,
For my sport the squirrel played,
Plied the snouted mole his spade,
For my taste the blackberry cone
Purpled over hedge and stone,
Laughed the brook for my delight
Through the day and through the night,
Whispering at the garden wall,
Talked with me from fall to fall,
Mine the sand rimmed pickerel pond,
Mine the walnut slopes beyond,
Mine, on bending orchard trees,
Apples of Hesperides!
Still as my horizon grew,
Larger grew my riches too
All the world I saw or knew
Seemed a complex Chinese toy,
Fashioned for a barefoot boy

Oh for festal dainties spread,
Like my bowl of milk and bread;

Pewter spoon and bowl of wood,
On the door stone, gray and rude!
O'er me, like a regal tent,
Cloudy ribbed, the sunset bent
Purple curtained, fringed with gold
Looped in many a wind swung fold,
While for music came the play
Of the pied frogs' orchestra
And to light the noisy choir,
Lit the fly his lamp of fire
I was monarch pomp and joy
Waited on the barefoot boy!

Cheerily, then my little man,
Live and laugh, as boyhood can!
Though the flinty slopes be hard,
Stubble speared the new mown sward,
Every morn shall lead thee through Fresh baptisms of the dew
Every evening from thy feet
Shall the cool wind kiss the heat
All too soon these feet must hide
In the prison cells of pride,
Lose the freedom of the sod,
Like a colt's for work be shod,
Made to tread the mills of toil,
Up and down in ceaseless moil
Happy if their track be found
Never on forbidden ground,

Happy if they sink not in Quick and treacherous sands of sin
Ah! that thou couldst know thy joy,
Ere it passes, barefoot boy!

John Greenleaf Whittier

A Fair and Happy Milkmaid

IS a country wench, that is so far from making her self beautiful by art, that one look of hers is able to put all face physic out of countenance She knows a fair look is but a dumb orator to commend virtue, therefore minds it not All her excellences stand in her so silently as if they had stolen upon her without her knowledge The lining of her apparel (which is herself) is far better than outsides of tissue, for though she be not arrayed in the spoil of the silk worm, she is decked in innocency, a far better wearing She doth not, with lying long a bed, spoil both her complexion and conditions nature hath taught her too immoderate sleep is rust to the soul, she rises therefore with chanticleer her dame's cock, and at night makes lamb her curfew In milking a cow and straining the teats through her fingers, it seems that so sweet a milk press makes the milk the sweeter or whiter, for never came almond glove or aromatic ointment off her palm to taint it The golden ears of corn fall and kiss her feet when she reaps them, as if they wished to be bound and led prisoners by the same hand that felled them Her breath is her own, which scents all the year long of June, like a new made haycock She makes her hand hard with labour, and her heart soft with pity, and when winter's evenings fall early (sitting at her merry wheel) she sings a defiance to the giddy wheel of fortune She doth all things with so sweet a grace it seems ignorance will not suffer her to do ill, because her mind is to do well She bestows her year's wages at next fair, and, in choosing her garments, counts no bravery in the world like decency The garden and beehive are all her physic and chirurgery, and she lives the longer for it She dares go alone and unfold sheep in the night, and fears no manner of ill because she means none, yet, to say truth, she is never alone, for she is still accompanied with old songs, honest thoughts, and prayers, but short ones yet they have their efficacy, in that they are not palled with ensuing idle cogitations Lastly, her dreams are so chaste that she dare tell them only a Friday's dream is all her superstition that she conceals for fear of anger Thus lives she and all her care is that she may die in the spring time, to have store of flowers stuck upon her winding sheet

The Shepherd o' the Farm

I BE the Shepherd o' the farm
An' be so proud a roven round
Wi' my long crook a thirt my yarm,
As ef I wer a king a crown'd

An' I da bide al day among
The bleaten sheep an pitch ther tuold,
An when the evemen shades be long
Da zee em al a penn'd an' tuold

An' I da zee the frisken lams,
Wi' swingen tails and woolly lags,
A playen roun' ther veeden dams,
An' pullen o' ther milky bags

An' I, beside a hawthorn tree,
Da zit upon the sunny down
While shades o zummer clouds da vlee
Wi silent flight along the groun'

An' there, among the many cries
O' sheep an' lams, my dog da pass
A zultry hour wi' blinken eyes,
An nose a stratch'd upon the grass,

But in a twinklen, at my word,
The shaggy rogue is up an' gone
Out roun' the sheep lik' any bird,
To do what he's a zent upon

An' wi' my zong, an' wi' my fife,
An' wi' my hut o' turf an' hurdles,
I wou'den channge my shepherd's life
To be a maade a king o' wordles

An I da goo to washen pool,
A sousen auver head an' ears
The shaggy sheep, to clean ther wool,
An' maake 'em ready var the shears

An' when the shearen time da come
I be at barn vrom dawn till dark,
Wher zome da catch the sheep, and zome
Da mark ther zides wi' master's mark

An' when the shearen's al a done
Then we da eat, an drink, an zing
In master's kitchen, till the tun
Wi' merry sounds da shiake an ring

I be the Shepherd o' the farm
An' be so proud a roven round
Wi my long crook a thirt my yarm,
As ef I were a king a crown d

The Shepherd

YOUR shepherd is very near to Earth He grows up from her lap he never quite leaves her bosom; he is her foster child He may hear her heart beats and drink of her tears If she smiles he knoweth why He has listened and he knoweth She telleth him her secret thoughts; all the day long he may lie close in her arms. No man so proper for that sweet bed no man may be so ready to die and mingle with her

The Pretty Washermaiden

THE pretty washermaiden
She washes on always!
And as she rubs, and as she wrings
Her shapely body sways and springs
As if to burst her stays

Her cheek is rich and shining
And brown as any egg,
And, when she dives into her tub
To duck the linen she's to scrub,
She shows the neatest leg!

Her round arms white with lather,
Her elbows fresh and red,
Her mouth the rosiest of buds,
Who would not risk a shower of suds
To kiss her dainty head?

W. E. Henley

I KNEW a man, a common farmer the father of five sons,

And in them the fathers of sons, and in them the fathers of sons

This man was of wonderful vigour, calmness beauty of person,

The shape of his head, the pale yellow and white of his hair and beard the immeasurable meaning of his black eyes, the richness and breadth of his manners,

These I used to go and visit him to see, he was wise also,

He was six feet tall he was over eighty years old, his sons were massive, clean, bearded, tan faced, handsome,

They and his daughters loved him, all who saw him loved him,

They did not love him by allowance they loved him with personal love,

He drank water only, the blood showed like scarlet through the clear brown of his face

He was a frequent gunner and fisher he sail'd his boat himself, he had a fine one presented to him by a ship joiner, he had fowling pieces presented to him by men that loved him,

When he went with his five sons and many grandsons to hunt or fish, you would pick him out as the most beautiful and vigorous of the gang,

You would wish long and long to be with him, you would wish to sit by him in the boat that you and he might touch each other

Walt Whitman

Tom Sueter

WHAT a handful of steel hearted soldiers are in an important pass, such was Tom in keeping the wicket Nothing went by him and for coolness and nerve in this trying and responsible post, I never saw his equal As a proof of his quickness and skill, I have numberless times seen him stump a man out with Brett's tremendous bowling Add to this valuable accomplishment he was one of the manliest and most graceful of hitters Few would cut a ball harder at the point of the bat, and he was, moreover, an excellent short runner He had an eye like an eagle—rapid and comprehensive He was the first who departed from the custom of the old players before him, who deemed it a heresy to leave the crease for the ball, he would get in at it, and hit it straight off and straight on, and, egad! it went as if it had been fired As by the rules of our club, at the trial matches no man was allowed to get more than thirty runs, he generally gained his number earlier than any of them I have seldom seen a handsomer man than Tom Sueter, who measured about five feet ten As if, too, Dame Nature wished to show at his birth a specimen of her prodigality, she gave him so amiable a disposition, that he was the pet of all the neighbourhood so honourable a heart, that his word was never questioned by the gentlemen who associated with him and a voice, which for sweetness, power, and purity of tone (a tenor) would, with proper cultivation, have made him a handsome fortune With what rapture have I hung upon his notes when he has given us a hunting song in the club room after the day's practice was over Lear was a short man, of a fair complexion well looking and of a pleasing aspect He had a sweet counter tenor voice Many a treat have I had in hearing him and Sueter join in a glee at the "Bat and Ball" on Broad Halfpenny

I have been there and still would go
'Twas like a little Heaven below!

Uncle an' Aunt

HOW happy uncle us d to be
O' zummer time, when aunt an' he
O' Zunday evemens, yarm in yarm,
Did walk about ther tiny farm,
While birds did zing an' gnats did zwarm,
Droo grass a'most above ther knees,
An' roun' by hedges an' by trees
Wi' leafy boughs a swayen.

His hat wer broad, his coäat wer brown,
Wi' two long flaps a hangèn down
An' vrom his knee went down a blue
Knit stockèn to his buckled shoe,
An' aunt did pull her gown tail droo
Her pocket hole, to keep en neat,
As she mid walk, or teäke a seat
By leafy boughs a swayen

An vust they d goo to zee their lots
O' pot yarbs in the gearden plots
An' he, i maybe, gwain droo hatch
Would zee aunt's vowls upon a patch
O' zeeds an' vow if he could catch
Em wi his gun, they shoudden vlee
Noo mwore into their roostèn tree,
Wi leafy boughs a swayen

An' then vrom gearden tha did pass
Drough archet var to zee the grass,
An' if the blooth, so thick an' white,
Mid be at all a touch'd wi blight,
An' uncle, happy at the zight,
Did guess what cider there mid be
In al the archet, tree wi' tree,
Wi' tutties all a swayen

An' then tha stump'd along vrom there
A vield, to zee the cows an' meare,
An she, when uncle come in zight,
Look'd up, an' prick'd her yeärs upright,

An' whicker'd out wi' al her might
An' he a chucklèn, went to zee
The cows below the shiady tree,
Wi' leafy boughs a swayen.

An last ov al, they went to know
How vast the grass in mead did grow
An' then aunt zed 'twer time to goo
In huome, a-holdèn up her shoe
To show how wet 'e wer wi dew
An' zoo they toddled huome to rest,
Lik' culvers vlee en to ther nest
In leafy boughs a swayen

William Barnes

Will Wimble

AS I was yesterday morning walking with Sir Roger before his house, a country fellow brought him a huge fish, which, he told him, Mr William Wimble had caught that very morning, and that he presented it with his service to him and intended to come and dine with him At the same time he delivered a letter, which my friend read to me as soon as the messenger left him

"SIR ROGER—I desire you to accept of a jack, which is the best I have caught this season. I intend to come and stay with you a week, and see how the perch bite in the Black River I observe with some concern the last time I saw you upon the bowling green that your whip wanted a lash to it, I will bring half a dozen with me that I twisted last week, which I hope will serve you all the time you are in the country I have not been out of the saddle for six days last past, having been at Eton with Sir John's eldest son He takes to his learning hugely— I am, Sir, Your humble servant,

"WILL WIMBLE"

This extraordinary letter and message that accompanied it made me very curious to know the character and quality of the gentleman who sent them, which I found to be as follows —Will Wimble is younger brother to a baronet and descended of the ancient family of the Wimbles He is now between forty and fifty but being bred to no business and born to no estate, he generally lives with his elder brother as superintendent of his game He hunts a pack of dogs better than any man in the country, and is very famous for finding out a hare He is extremely well versed in all the little handicrafts of an idle man He makes a May fly to a miracle, and furnishes the whole country with angle rods As he is a good natured, officious fellow, and very much esteemed upon account of his family, he is a welcome guest at every house, and keeps up a good correspondence among all the gentlemen about him. He carries a fulip root in his pocket from one to another, or exchanges a puppy between a couple of friends that live perhaps in the opposite sides of the county Will is a particular favourite of all the young heirs, whom he frequently obliges with a net that he has weaved, or a setting dog that he has made himself He now and then presents a pair of garters of his own knitting to their mothers or sisters, and raises a great deal of mirth among them by inquiring as often as he meets them 'how they wear'! These gentleman like manufactures and obliging little humours make Will the darling of the country

A Gentleman of the Old School

HE lived in that past Georgian day,
When men were less inclined to say
That "Time is Gold,' and overlay
With toil their pleasure
He held some land, and dwelt thereon,—
Where, I forget,—the house is gone
His Christian name, I think, was John,—
His surname, Leisure

Reynolds has painted him,—a face
Filled with a fine, old fashioned grace,
Fresh coloured, frank, with ne'er a trace
Of trouble shaded,

The eyes are blue, the hair is drest
In plainest way,—one hand is prest
Deep in a flapped canary vest,
With buds brocaded

He wears a brown old Brunswick coat,
With silver buttons,—round his throat,
A soft cravat — in all you note
An elder fashion —
A strangeness, which to us who shine
In shapely hats,—whose coats combine
All harmonies of hue and line,
Inspires compassion

He lived so long ago you see!
Men were untravelled then but we Like Ariel, post o'er land and sea
With careless parting
He found it quite enough for him
To smoke his pipe in 'garden trim,
And watch about the fish tank's brim
The swallows darting

He liked the well wheel's creaking tongue,—
He liked the thrush that stopped and sung,—
He liked the drone of flies among His netted peaches
He liked to watch the sunlight fall
Athwart his ivied orchard wall,
Or pause to catch the cuckoo's call
Beyond the beeches.

His were the times of Paint and Patch
And yet no Ranelagh could match
The sober doves that round his thatch
Spread tails and sidled
He liked their ruffling, puffed content,—
For him their drowsy wheelings meant
More than a Mall of Beaux that bent,
Or Belle that bridled

Not that, in truth, when life began
He shunned the flutter of the fan
He too had maybe pinked his man'
In Beauty's quarrel
But now his 'fervent youth" had flown
Where lost things go and he was grown
As staid and slow paced as his own
Old hunter, Sorrel

Yet still he loved the chase, and held
That no composer's score excelled
The merry horn, when Sweetlip swelled
Its jovial riot
But most his measured words of praise
Caressed the angler's easy ways,—
His idly meditative days,—
His rustic diet

Not that his 'meditating' rose Beyond a sunny summer doze
He never troubled his repose
With fruitless prying,

But held as law for high and low,
What God withholds no man can know,
And smiled away enquiry so,
Without replying

We read—alas, how much we read!—
The jumbled strifes of creed and creed
With endless controversies feed
Our groaning tables
His books—and they sufficed him—were Cotton's Montaigne, The Grave of Blair,
A "Walton"—much the worse for wear,
And Æsop's Fables

One more,—The Bible Not that he Had searched its page as deep as we No sophistries could make him see
Its slender credit
It may be that he could not count
The sires and sons to Jesse's fount,—
He liked the "Sermon on the Mount,"—
And more, he read it

Once he had loved, but failed to wed,
A red cheeked lass who long was dead
His ways were far too slow, he said,
To quite forget her,
And still when time had turned him gray
The earliest hawthorn buds in May
Would find his lingering feet astray,
Where first he met her

In Cœlo Quies heads the stone
On Leisure's grave,—now little known,
A tangle of wild-rose has grown
So thick across it,
The "Benefactions" still declare
He left the clerk an elbow-chair,
And "12 Pence Yearly to Prepare A Christmas Posset"

Lie softly, Leisure! Doubtless you,
With too serene a conscience drew
Your easy breath, and slumbered through
The gravest issue,
But we, to whom our age allows
Scarce space to wipe our weary brows
Look down upon your narrow house,
Old friend and miss you!

Austin Dobson

Mr Hastings

MR HASTINGS was low of stature, but very strong, and very active, of a ruddy complexion, with flaxen hair His cloaths were always of green cloth His house was of the old fashion in the midst of a large park, well stocked with deer, rabbits, and fish-ponds He had a long narrow bowling-green, in it, and used to play with round

sand bowls Here too he had a banqueting room built, like a stand, in a large tree He kept all sorts of hounds, that ran buck, fox, hare, otter, and badger, and had hawks of all kinds, both long, and short winged His great hall was commonly strewed with marrow bones and full of hawk perches, hounds, spaniels and terriers. The upper end of it was hung with fox skins of this and the last years killing Here, and there a pole cat was intermixed and hunter's poles in great abundance The parlour was a large room, compleatly furnished in the same stile On a broad hearth, paved with brick, lay some of the choicest terriers, hounds, and spaniels One or two of the great chairs, had litters of cats in them, which were not to be disturbed Of these three or four always attended him at dinner and a little white wand lay by his trencher, to defend it, if they were too troublesome In the windows, which were very large, lay his arrows, cross bows, and other accoutrements, The corners of the room were filled with his best hunting, and hawking poles His oister table stood at the lower end of the room, which was in constant use twice a day, all the year round for he never failed to eat oisters both at dinner, and supper with which the neighbouring town of Pool supplied him At the upper end of the room stood a small table with a double desk one side of which held a church bible; the other, the book of martyrs On different tables in the room lay hawk's hoods bells old hats, with their crowns thrust in, full of pheasant eggs, tables;

dice, cards, and store of tobacco pipes At one end of this room was a door, which opened into a closet where stood bottles of strong beer, and wine which never came out but in single glasses which was the rule of the house, for he never exceeded himself, nor permitted others to exceed Answering to this closet, was a door into an old chapel, which had been long disused for devotion, but in the pulpit, as the safest place, was always to be found a cold chine of beef, a venison pasty, a gammon of bacon, or a great apple pye, with thick crust, well baked His table cost him not much tho' it was good to eat at His sports supplied all, but beef and mutton except on Fridays, when he had the best of fish He never wanted a London pudding and he always sang it in with My part lies therein a He drank a glass or two of wine at meals, put syrup of gilly flowers into his sack, and had always a tun glass of small beer standing by him, which he often stirred about with rosemary He lived to be an hundred and never lost his eye sight, nor used spectacles He got on horseback without help, and rode to the death of the stag, till he was past fourscore

William Gilpin

Jack

1

EVERY village has its Jack, but no village ever had quite so fine a Jack as ours —
So picturesque
Versatile,
Irresponsible,
Powerful,
Hedonistic,
And lovable a Jack as ours

How Jack lived none knew, for he rarely did any work
True he set night lines for eels and invariably caught one
Often two,
Sometimes three
While very occasionally he had a day's harvesting or hay making
And yet he always found enough money for tobacco,
With a little over for beer, though he was no soaker

Jack had a wife
A soulless, savage woman she was, who disapproved volubly of his idle ways
But the only result was to make him stay out longer, (Like Rip Van Winkle)

Jack had a big black beard, and a red shirt which was made for another,
And no waistcoat
His boots were somebody else's,
He wore the Doctor's coat,
And the Vicar's trousers
Personally I gave him a hat, but it was too small

5

Everybody liked Jack
The Vicar liked him although he never went to church
Indeed he was a cheerful Pagan with no temptation to break more than the Eighth Commandment and no ambition as a sinner
The Curate liked him, although he had no simpering daughters
The Doctor liked him although he was never ill
I liked him too — chiefly because of his perpetual good temper, and his intimacy with Nature, and his capacity for colouring cutties
The girls liked him because he brought them the first wild roses and the sweetest honeysuckle
Also, because he could flatter so outrageously

But the boys loved him
They followed him in little bands
Jack was their hero

And no wonder, for he could hit a running rabbit with a stone,
And cut them long, straight fishing poles and equilateral catty forks
And he always knew of a fresh nest
Besides, he could make a thousand things with his old pocket knife

How good he was at cricket too!
On the long evenings he would saunter to the green and watch the lads at play,
And by and by some one would offer him a few knocks
Then the Doctor's coat would be carefully detached, and Jack would spit on his hands, and brandish the bat,
And away the ball would go, north and south and east and west,
And sometimes bang into the zenith
For Jack has little science
Upon each ball he made the same terrific and magnificent onslaught
Whether half volley or full pitch, or long hop, or leg break, or off break, or shooter, or yorker
And when the stumps fell he would cheerfully set them up again, while his white teeth flashed in the recesses of his beard

8

The only persons who were not conspicuously fond of Jack were his wife, and the schoolmaster, and the head keeper

The schoolmaster had an idea that if Jack were hanged there would be no more truants

His wife would attend the funeral without an extra ordinary show of grief

And the head keeper would mutter, "There's one poacher less"

Jack was quite as much a part of the village as the church spire,

And if any of us lazied along by the river in the dusk of the evening—

Waving aside nebulæ of gnats,

Turning head quickly at the splash of a jumping fish,

Peering where the water chuckled over a vanishing water-rat—

And saw not Jack's familiar form bending over his lines,

And smelt not his vile shag,

We should feel a loneliness, a vague impression that something was wrong

10

For ten years Jack was always the same,

Never growing older,

Or richer,
Or tidier,
Never knowing that we had a certain pride in possessing him
Then there came a tempter with tales of easily acquired wealth, and Jack went away in his company

II

He has never come back,
And now the village is like a man who has lost an eye
In the gloaming, no slouching figure with colossal idleness in every line, leans against my garden wall, with prophecies of the morrow's weather
And those who reviled Jack most wonder now what it was they found fault with
We feel our bereavement deeply
The Vicar, I believe would like to offer public prayer for the return of the wanderer
And the Doctor, I know, is a little unhinged, and curing people out of pure absence of mind
For my part I have hope and the trousers I discarded last week will not be given away just yet.

E. V. Lucas

The Vicar

SOME years ago, ere time and taste
Had turn'd our parish topsy turvy,
When Darnel Park was Darnel Waste,
And roads as little known as scurvy,

The man who lost his way, between St Mary's Hill and Sandy Thicket,
Was always shown across the green,
And guided to the Parson's wicket

Back flew the bolt of lissom lath
Fair Margaret, in her tidy kirtle,
Led the lorn traveller up the path,
Through clean clipt rows of box and myrtle
And Don and Sancho Tramp and Tray,
Upon the parlour steps collected,
Wagged all their tails, and seem'd to say —
"Our master knows you—you're expected!"

Uprose the Reverend Dr Brown,
Uprose the Doctor's winsome marrow
The lady laid her knitting down,
Her husband clasp'd his ponderous "Barrow"
Whate'er the stranger's caste or creed
Pundit or Papist, saint or sinner,
He found a stable for his steed,
And welcome for himself, and dinner

If, when he reach'd his journey's end,
And warm'd himself in Court or College,
He had not gain'd an honest friend
And twenty curious scraps of knowledge,—
If he departed as he came,
With no new light on love or liquor,—
Good sooth, the traveller was to blame,
And not the Vicarage, nor the Vicar

His talk was like a stream, which runs
With rapid change from rocks to roses
It slipt from politics to puns,
It passed from Mahomet to Moses,
Beginning with the laws which keep
The planets in their radiant courses
And ending with some precept deep
For dressing eels, or shoeing horses

He was a shrewd and sound Divine,
Of loud Dissent the mortal terror
And when, by dint of page and line,
He 'stablished Truth or startled Error,
The Baptist found him far too deep
The Deist sigh'd with saving sorrow,
And the lean Levite went to sleep,
And dream'd of tasting pork to morrow

His sermon never said or show'd
That Earth is foul, that Heaven is gracious,
Without refreshment on the road
From Jerome, or from Athanasius
And sure a righteous zeal inspired
The hand and head that penn'd and plann'd them
For all who understood admired,
And some who did not understand them

He wrote, too, in a quiet way,
Small treatises, and smaller verses,
And sage remarks on chalk and clay,
And hints to noble Lords—and nurses,

True histories of last year's ghost,
Lines to a ringlet, or a turban,
And trifles for the Morning Post,
And nothings for Sylvanus Urban

He did not think all mischief fair,
Although he had a knack of joking
He did not make himself a bear,
Although he had a taste for smoking,
And when religious sects ran mad
He held, in spite of all his learning,
That if a man's belief is bad
It will not be improved by burning

And he was kind, and loved to sit
In the low hut or garnished cottage,
And praise the farmer's homely wit
And share the widow's homelier pottage
At his approach complaint grew mild,
And when his hand unbarred the shutter
The clammy lips of fever smiled
The welcome which they could not utter

He always had a tale for me
Of Julius Cæsar, or of Venus,
From him I learnt the rule of three,
Cat's cradle, leap frog, and Quæ genus
I used to singe his powdered wig,
To steal the staff he put such trust in,
And make the puppy dance a jig,
When he began to quote Augustine

Alack the change! in vain I look
For haunts in which my boyhood trifled,—
The level lawn, the trickling brook,
The trees I climb'd the beds I rifled
The church is larger than before
You reach it by a carriage entry,
It holds three hundred people more,
And pews are fitted up for gentry!

Sit in the Vicar's seat you'll hear
The doctrine of a gentle Johnian,
Whose hand is white, whose tone is clear,
Whose phrase is very Ciceronian
Where is the old man laid?—look down,
And construe on the slab before you,
"Hic jacet GVLIELMVS BROWN

The Fiddler of Dooney

WHEN I play on my fiddle in Dooney,
Folk dance like a wave of the sea,
My cousin is priest in Kilvarnet,
My brother in Maharabuiee

I passed my brother and cousin
They read in their books of prayer,
I read in my book of songs
I bought at the Sligo fair

When we come at the end of time,
To Peter sitting in state,
He will smile on the three old spirits,
But call me first through the gate

For the good are always the merry,
Save by an evil chance
And the merry love the fiddle
And the merry love to dance

And when the folk there spy me
They will all come up to me
With "Here is the fiddler of Dooney!
And dance like a wave of the sea

Elegy on Captain Matthew Henderson a gentle man who held the patent for his honours immediately from Almighty God

Should the poor be flattered? —Shakespeare

O DEATH! thou tyrant fell and bloody!
The meikle devil wi' a woodie
Haurl thee hame to his black smiddie
O er hurcheon hides
And like stock fish come o er his studdie
Wi thy auld sides

He's gane! he's gane! he's frae us torn,
The ae best fellow e er was born!
Thee, Matthew Nature's sel' shall mourn
By wood and wild
Where, haply, pity strays forlorn,
Frae man exil d!

Ye hills! near neebors o the starns
That proudly cock your cresting cairns!
Ye cliffs, the haunts of sailing yearns,
Where echo slumbers!
Come join, ye Nature's sturdiest bairns,
My wailing numbers!

Mourn ilka grove the cushat kens!
Ye haz'lly shaws and briery dens!
Ye burnies wimplin down your glens,
Wi toddlin' din,
Or foaming strang, wi hasty stens
Frae lin to lin!

Mourn, little harebells o'er the lea
Ye stately foxgloves fair to see,
Ye woodbines, hanging bonnilie
In scented bow'rs
Ye roses on your thorny tree,
The first o' flow'rs

At dawn, when ev'ry grassy blade
Droops with a diamond at its head,

At even, when beans their fragrance shed
I' th rustling gale,
Ye maukins whiddin thro the glade,
Come join my wail

Mourn, ye wee songsters o the wood
Ye grouse that crap the heather bud
Ye curlews calling thro a clud,
Ye whistling plover
An' mourn ye whirring paitrick brood!—
He's gane for ever

Mourn, sooty coots, and speckled teals
Ye fisher herons watching eels
Ye duck and drake, wi' airy wheels
Circling the lake
Ye bitterns, till the quagmire reels,
Rair for his sake

Mourn clam'ring craiks at close o day,
'Mang fields o' flowering clover gay
And when ye wing your annual way
Frae our cauld shore,
Tell thae far warlds, wha lies in clay,
Wham we deplore

Ye houlets, frae your ivy bower,
In some auld tree, or eldritch tow'r,
What time the moon, wi' silent glow'r,
Sets up her horn,
Wail thro' the dreary midnight hour
Till waukrife morn!

O, rivers, forests, hills, and plains!
Oft have ye heard my canty strains
But now what else for me remains
But tales of woe?
And frae my een the drapping rains
Maun ever flow

Mourn, spring, thou darling of the year
Ilk cowslip cup shall kep a tear
Thou, simmer, while each corny spear
Shoots up its head,
Thy gray green flow'ry tresses shear
For him that's dead!

Thou autumn wi' thy yellow hair,
In grief thy sallow mantle tear
Thou winter hurling thro the air
The roaring blast,
Wide o'er the naked world declare,
The worth we've lost!

Mourn him, thou sun great source of light!
Mourn, empress of the silent night!
And you, ye twinkling starnies bright
My Matthew mourn!
For through your orbs he's ta'en his flight,
Ne'er to return

O, Henderson! the man—the brother!
And art thou gone, and gone for ever?

And hast thou crost that unknown river
Life's dreary bound?
Like thee, where shall I find another
The world around?

Go to your sculptur'd tombs, ye great,
In a' the tinsel trash o' state!
But by thy honest turf I'll wait
Thou man of worth!
And weep the ae best fellow's fate
E'er lay in earth

THE EPITAPH

Stop, passenger—my story's brief
And truth I shall relate man
I tell nae common tale o' grief—
For Matthew was a great man

If thou uncommon merit hast
Yet spurn'd at fortune's door, man
A look of pity hither cast—
For Matthew was a poor man

If thou a noble sodger art
That passest by this grave, man
There moulders here a gallant heart—
For Matthew was a brave man

If thou on men, their works and ways,
Canst throw uncommon light man
Here lies wha weel had won thy praise—
For Matthew was a bright man

If thou at friendship's sacred ca'
 Wad life itself resign, man,
Thy sympathetic tear maun fa'—
 For Matthew was a kind man!

If thou art staunch without a stain,
 Like the unchanging blue, man
This was a kinsman o thy ain—
 For Matthew was a true man

If thou hast wit and fun and fire
 And ne er guid wine did fear man
This was thy billie dam, and sire—
 For Matthew was a queer man

If ony whiggish whingin sot,
 To blame poor Matthew dare, man
May dool and sorrow be his lot!
 For Matthew was a rare man

But now his radiant course is run
 For Matthew's course was bright,
His soul was like the glorious sun
 A matchless heav'nly light!

Robert Burns

A HANDFUL OF PHILOSOPHY

SANCHO PANZA'S PROVERBS

There is still sun on the wall
It requires a long time to know any one.
All sorrows are bearable if there is bread
He who does not rise with the sun does not enjoy the day
Every one is as God made him and very often worse
Until death all is life
Praying to God and hammering away

The world is too much with us late and soon,
Getting and spending we lay waste our powers
Little we see in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away a sordid boon!
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon
The winds that will be howling at all hours
And are up gathered now like sleeping flowers
For this for every thing we are out of tune
It moves us not —Great God! I'd rather be A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn
So might I standing on this pleasant lea
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathèd horn

William Wordsworth

Content

ART thou poor yet hast thou golden slumbers?
O sweet content!
Art thou rich, yet is thy mind perplexéd?
O punishment!
Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vexéd
To add to golden numbers, golden numbers?
O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content!

Work apace apace, apace, apace
Hence labour bears a lovely face
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

Canst drink the waters of the crispéd spring?
O sweet content!
Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears?
O punishment!
Then he that patiently want's burden bears
No burden bears, but is a king, a king!
O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content!

Work apace, apace apace, apace
Honest labour beais a lovely face,
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

Thomas Dekker

Henry VI 's Pastoral Wish

OH God! methinks it were a happy life
To be no better than a homely swain
To sit upon a hill as I do now
To carve out dials quaintly point by point,
Thereby to see the minutes how they run
How many make the hour full complete,
How many hours bring about the day
How many days will finish up the year
How many years a mortal man may live
When this is known, then to divide the times,
So many hours must I tend my flock,
So many hours must I take my rest
So many hours must I contemplate,
So many hours must I sport myself
So many days my ewes have been with young,
So many weeks ere the poor fools will yean
So many months ere I shall shear the fleece
So many minutes, hours weeks, months, and years
Past over to the end they were created,
Would bring grey hairs unto a quiet grave

William Shakespeare

WELL then I now do plainly see,
This busy world and I shall ne er agree,
The very honey of all earthly joy
Does of all meats the soonest cloy,
And they, methinks deserve my pity,
Who for it can endure the stings,
The crowd and buzz, and murmurings
Of this great hive the city

Ah, yet ere I descend to th' grave
May I a small house and large garden have!
And a few friends, and many books, both true
Both wise and both delightful too!
And since love ne er will from me flee
A mistress moderately fair,
And good as guardian angels are Only belov d, and loving me!

O fountains when in you shall I
Myself, eased of unpeaceful thoughts espy?
O fields! O woods! when when shall I be made
The happy tenant of your shade?
Here s the spring head of pleasure's flood
Where all the riches lie that she Has coin'd and stamp'd for good

Pride and ambition here
Only in far fetched metaphors appear
Here nought but winds can hurtful murmurs scatter,
And nought but echo flatter

The gods, when they descended, hither
From heav'n did always choose their way
And therefore we may boldly say,
That 'tis the way too thither

How happy here should I,
And one dear she live, and embracing die!
She who is all the world, and can exclude
In deserts solitude
I should have then this only fear,
Lest men, when they my pleasure see,
Should hither throng to live like me,
And make a city here

Abraham Cowley

Give Me the Old

Old wine to drink old wood to burn old books to read and old friends to converse with

OLD wine to drink!—
Ay, give the slippery juice,
That drippeth from the grape thrown loose,
Within the tun,
Pluck'd from beneath the cliff
Of sunny sided Teneriffe
And ripened 'neath the blink
Of India's sun!

Peat whisky hot
Tempered with well boiled water!
These make the long nights shorter—
Forgetting not Good stout old English porter

Old wood to burn!—
Ay, bring the hill side beech
From where the owlets meet and screech
And ravens croak
The crackling pine and cedar sweet
Bring too a clump of fragrant peat,
Dug 'neath the fern
The knotted oak
A faggot too, perhaps,
Whose bright flame, dancing, winking
Shall light us at our drinking,
While the oozing sap
Shall make sweet music to our thinking

Old books to read!—
Ay, bring those nodes of wit
The brazen clasped, the vellum writ
Time honoured tomes!
The same my sire scanned before
The same my grandsire thumbèd o er
The same his sire homeward bore,
The well earned meed

Of Oxford s domes
Old Homer blind
Old Horace, rake Anacreon, by Old Tully, Plautus, Terence lie
Mort Arthur s olden minstrelsie,
Quaint Burton, quainter Spenser, ay,
And Gervase Markham s venerie—
Nor leave behind
The Holy Book by which we live and die

Old friends to talk!—
Ay, bring those chosen few,
The wise the courtly, and the true
So rarely found
Him for my wine him for my stud
Him for my easel, distich bud,
In mountain walk![1]

Robert H Messinger

A Thanksgiving to God

LORD, thou hast given me a cell
Wherein to dwell,
A little house, whose humble roof
Is weather proof
Under the spars of which I lie
Both soft and dry

[1] Two lines omitted

Where thou, my chamber for to ward,
Hast set a guard
Of harmless thoughts to watch and keep Me while I sleep
Low is my porch, as is my fate
Both void of state
And yet the threshold of my door
Is worn by th poor
Who thither come and freely get Good words, or meat
Like as my parlour, so my hall
And kitchen s small
A little buttery and therein
A little bin
Which keeps my little loaf of bread
Unchipt unflead
Some brittle sticks of thorn or briar
Make me a fire
Close by whose living coal I sit,
And glow like it
Lord I confess too, when I dine
The pulse is thine
And all those other bits that be
There placed by thee
The worts, the purslain, and the mess
Of water cress,
Which of thy kindness thou hast sent
And my content
Makes those, and my belovèd beet,
To be more sweet

'Tis thou that crown'st my glittering hearth
With guiltless mirth,
And giv'st me wassail bowls to drink,
Spiced to the brink
Lord 'tis thy plenty dropping hand
That soils my land,
And giv'st me, for my bushel sown,
Twice ten for one
Thou mak'st my teeming hen to lay
Her egg each day,
Besides my healthful ewes to bear
Me twins each year
The while the conduits of my kine
Run cream, for wine
All these, and better thou dost send Me to this end —
That I should render for my part
A thankful heart
Which, fired with incense, I resign,
As wholly thine,
—But the acceptance that must be,
My Christ, by Thee

Robert Herrick

The Dirge in "Cymbeline"

FEAR no more the heat o' the sun
Nor the furious winter's rages,
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone and ta'en thy wages

Golden lads and girls all must,
As chimney sweepers, come to dust

Fear no more the frown o the great
Thou art past the tyrant s stroke
Care no more to clothe and eat
To thee the reed is as the oak
The sceptre learning physic must
All follow this, and come to dust

Fear no more the lightning flash,
Nor the all dreaded thunder stone,
Fear not slander censure rash
Thou hast finished joy and moan
All lovers young all lovers must Consign to thee and come to dust

No exorciser harm thee !
Nor no witchcraft charm thee !
Ghost unlaid forbear thee !
Nothing ill come near thee !
Quiet consummation have
And renowned be thy grave !

THE RETURN

The Glamour of the Town

LET them talk of lakes and mountains and romantic dales—all that fantastic stuff give me a ramble by night, in the winter nights in London —the Lamps lit—the pavements of the motley Strand crowded with to and fro passengers—the shops all brilliant, and stuffed with obliging customers and obliged tradesmen—give me the old bookstalls of London — a walk in the bright Piazzas of Covent Garden I defy a man to be dull in such places— perfect Mahometan paradises upon earth! I have lent out my heart with usury to such scenes from my childhood up and have cried with fullness of joy at the multitudinous scenes of Life in the crowded streets of ever dear London I don't know if you quite comprehend my low Urban Taste but depend upon it that a man of any feeling will have given his heart and his love in childhood and in boy hood to any scenes where he has been bred, as well to dirty streets (and smoky walls as they are called)

as to green lanes, "where I've nibbling sheep," and to the everlasting hills and the Lakes and ocean A mob of men is better than a flock of sheep, and a crowd of happy faces jostling into the playhouse at the hour of six is a more beautiful spectacle to man than the shepherd driving his silly' sheep to fold

UP HILL

Does the road wind up hill all the w ıy?
 Yes to the very end
Will the day s journey take the whole long day
 From morn to night my friend

But is there for the night a resting place?
 A roof for when the slow dark hours begin
May not the darkness hide it from my face?
 You cannot miss that inn

Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
 Those who have gone before
Then must I knock or call when just in sight?
 They will not keep you standing at the door

Shall I find comfort travel sore and weak?
 Of labour you shall find the sum
Will there be beds for me and all who seek?
 Yes, beds for all who come
